INFLATION PLAN LOSES 43 TO 33 IN SENATE TEST

Gain Is Scored Over January Vote.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 17.—[Special.]—Thirty-three senators cast their votes for inflation today as the senate balloted on the old Bryan issue of free coinage of silver at 16 to 1.

That the amendment was not adopted was due to the warning that President Roosevelt did not favor it. The announcement by Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas kept enough Democrats in line to make a total of 43 against the measure.

As it was, 25 Democrats voted for the amendment, which was proposed by Senator Burton K. Wheeler [Dem., Mont.] and only 23 against it.

It was a notable gain for the inflationists over their showing last Jan. 24, when they were defeated by a vote of 56 to 18 on the same 16 to 1 measure, offered at that time as an amendment to the Glass banking bill.

Voted On as Amendment.

The Wheeler bill was balloted on today as a proposed amendment to the pending administration farm bill. It came up technically as a suggested substitute for another inflationary amendment supported by Senator Huey Long, Louisiana radical, under which the government would purchase silver bullion and issue currency against it.

Tomorrow will see a debate on another proposed substitute for the Long amendment—the so-called "four way" bill of Senator Elmer Thomas [Dem., Okla.], under which the President would be empowered to revive the old greenback act, remonetize silver, devaluate the gold dollar, and create a dollar stabilizing board. In addition the Long amendment itself must be voted on.

Senator Wheeler argued long and energetically for inflation via the free silver route. The farm bill, he declared, was not enough.

"Something more fundamental must be done," he asserted. "And I might point out that while President Roosevelt himself admitted that the farm bill is an experiment, free coinage of silver is not an experiment. Silver was coined freely until 1873."

Says Inflation Is Coming.

Inflation, preferably through remonetization of silver, must come, not only to aid the farmer but to restore American industry and commerce, Senator Wheeler declared. He pointed to the competition of imported foreign goods from countries with depreciated currencies, and to the lost foreign markets due to higher production costs in this country.

"What I am trying to do," he said, "is to raise the value of foreign countries' money so they can't dump goods on our market and to give their money power to purchase our goods."

Sees Farm Bill Inadequate.

"The farm bill will not restore commodity prices," he said. "It will prove as unsatisfactory as the farm marketing act unless we also deal with the money question."

That gave Leader Robinson his opportunity.

"I am informed," he said, "that President Roosevelt does not approve of any of the amendments pending."

When the roll call came a moment later Mr. Borah voted "no."

INMAN, WHO LEFT WIFE FOR GIRL, WRITES HOME

Springfield, Mo., April 17.—(AP)—A letter from the Rev. Sharon C. Inman, who recently eloped with Patsy Holdridge, 20 year old girl, was received today by his children, Lowell, 12, and Danice, 6.

It had been mailed from Joplin, Mo., last Tuesday. He told the children not to worry and that he was all right. There was no word for the minister's wife.

Taking the pulpit her husband abandoned, Mrs. Inman preached the Easter evening sermon in Cave Springs Presbyterian church last night.

Making an indirect reference to the breaking up of her home, she said: "Prayer softens the blow. We need to build a bulwark against the assault of circumstances, death, poverty, sickness, sin. Troubles that seem overwhelming, when seen in the realm of prayer, become smaller. Taken to God, our troubles seem easier to bear."

CATCHES 3 FISH WITH ONE HOOK AT SAME TIME

Tillamook, Ore., April 17.—(AP)—Jack Moore cast a clam-baited hook into the sea from the rocks at Barview, using a cane pole and ordinary tackle.

A 12 inch kelp fish took the hook. As Moore pulled up his catch a two foot long cod dashed and partly swallowed the kelp. Moore pulled more strenuously. Then up flashed a four foot long cod and swallowed what he could of the two footer.

Moore held on valiantly until Walter Zeller stepped in with a gaff and brought the triple catch to shore.

It was on exhibition at a store here.

Boy Dies of Alcoholism; Father Held for Inquest

Bloomington, Ind., April 17.—(AP)—John Davidson, 48, was held without bond tonight pending an inquest into the death of his 7 year old son, Robert. Dr. Ben Ross, coroner, said Robert's death resulted from acute alcoholism. Police said Mrs. Davidson sought their aid this morning, telling them Davidson had forced the boy to drink corn whisky and had driven her from their home. She expressed fear harm might come to their 3 weeks old baby.

New York, April 17.—[Special.]—"There isn't a woman in the world worth shooting," County Judge George W. Martin in Brooklyn remarked today. "The penalty is too heavy." So saying, Judge Martin remanded Malcolm Doziel, for sentence. Doziel, 24, Brooklyn, pleaded guilty to pointing a gun at Mildred Miner, 23, a pianist, to persuade her to be his girl. Mildred, who had other ideas, had him arrested.

Teachers See Woodin Today in Wage Crisis

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 17.—[Special.]—Six representatives of the organized school teachers of Chicago today came to the White House to bring their plight before President Roosevelt.

The delegation was accompanied by Senator James Hamilton Lewis. The teachers did not see the President, but presented their case to his secretary, Marvin H. McIntyre. Mr. McIntyre told the teachers the President will receive no delegations and suggested they present their case to Secretary William H. Woodin of the treasury and Jesse Jones, a director of the R. F. C. When the teachers agreed to do that Mr. McIntyre made an appointment for them with Mr. Woodin for tomorrow morning.

Want Loan from Bankers.

The Chicagoans, who said their expenses were being paid through nickels contributed by school teachers, said they wanted the President to use pressure on Chicago bankers to compel them to lend the school board money on the security of school tax warrants.

The members of the delegation were led by William J. Page, president of the Illinois State Teachers' association. The others were Lillian Herstein of the Federation of Women High School Teachers; John Fewkes, representing the "unorganized" teachers; Aaron Kline, president of the Chicago Principals' club; Robert C. Keenan of the Chicago High School Teachers' association, and Margaret Haley of the Chicago Teachers' federation.

When Mr. Fewkes told Mr. McIntyre of the delegation's desire to have the President issue a statement that the Chicago bankers should grant a loan to meet the teachers' salaries, which soon would be for a total of $44,000,000, Mr. McIntyre said:

"I don't think you have any right to ask the President to make a statement like that. We all here are aware of the situation and we feel that everything that can be done is being done."

Ready to Lend to Bank.

Mr. McIntyre explained that the treasury department and the R. F. C. had told the school authorities that the R. F. C. would advance the money to any bank in Chicago which would lend it on the security of the tax warrants.

"The banks have put an absolute block against us," replied Delegate Page. After more interchange Mr. McIntyre declared that the President would take no action, unless on the advice of his "official family," and the arrangement for the delegation to see Mr. Woodin and Mr. Jones tomorrow was made.

THE FLAMINGO, NORTHBOUND, CRASHES, 2 KILLED

Atlanta, Ga., April 17.—[Special.]—Rushing into a cut near Cartersville, Ga., tonight at 8 o'clock, the locomotive of the L. & N. crack Florida train, The Flamingo, left the track, turning over. The engineer, G. W. Evans, is missing, and the fireman, B. A. Gilles, and A. H. Perry, a hobo, were killed.

The two cars just behind the engine left the track, but none of the Pullman cars followed. No passengers were injured. The wreck blocked the line for hours and other trains of the Louisville and Nashville were routed over other tracks. The Flamingo was northbound from Florida cities with sleepers for Chicago, Cleveland and Cincinnati.

The trackage on which the accident occurred is owned by the Western and Atlantic and leased by the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad.

MAGICIANS FIND WORLD GROWING TOO WISE FOR 'EM

The world is becoming too sophisticated for old time magicians. This feeling was expressed last night at a meeting of the Chicago chapter of the Society of American Magicians in the Congress hotel.

"A magician hasn't a chance unless he can put on spectacular acts like Thurston does or Houdini did," explained W. L. Dornfield, former national president of the society. "In the days gone by the old time magician had a large following. Those were the days of the small theater, when the manipulative magician worked his sleight of hand tricks."

There is no longer a general public taste for magic, added Mr. Dornfield, although many groups still like to be amazed by card, handkerchief and cigaret tricks.

She had opened the door unknown to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Audet of Marine City, Mich. When they discovered she was missing they turned about quickly to find Jacqueline sitting by the side of the road. She had suffered only minor bruises.

CROWDS ATTEND INAUGURATION OF MAYOR KELLY

Seeks Co-operation to Help City.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Edward J. Kelly was inducted into office as the fifty-ninth mayor of Chicago last night in a ceremony in the chamber of the city council which elected him last Thursday to fill the unexpired term of the late Mayor Anton J. Cermak. The council chamber was packed for the occasion.

Gov. Henry Horner delivered the chief address and after Mayor Kelly had given a brief acceptance speech and had been presented a new gavel by the council he called that body to order for regular business. His job had begun, a job which he and all the other speakers of the evening realized was one of the hardest that ever confronted any mayor.

Asks Help of Council.

Mayor Kelly asked the council for help in solving the major problems of the city, which he listed as payment of back salaries, the tax situation, the gangster problem, and further reduction of the cost of government. Ald. Frank Corr, who acted as temporary chairman, promised him full coöperation of the council.

"Gentlemen of the council," said the new mayor just before getting down to business, "we all love Chicago. We have problems, it is true, but we shall meet them like men. I invite all our citizens to join in the task. We shall not sell Chicago short. Her destiny is to reach the first place among the cities of the world. Let us begin now to carry her forward toward that destiny."

Horner Voices Hope for Future.

This was the note of the inaugural, which was less a celebration than a dedication. The shadow of the recent assassination of Mayor Cermak was over the room. But there was hope and confidence there, too. Gov. Horner voiced this when he said:

"Days that seem darkest are always preparations for greater advance. Chicago's 'I Will' spirit must never, will never perish. We were cast into gloom by the death of our mayor. Today we face the future in new hope. We face our task with determination.

"These days demand public slaves who, for the privilege of serving, must give up everything else in life. There is only one compensation, the approval of our fellow citizens. God grant that Chicago's trials will soon be over and that you will contribute mightily to that speedy passage.

Sees Brilliant Administration.

"Edward Kelly possesses all the necessary qualifications to give the city a brilliant, economical, efficient administration. If we can't find a way to pay salaries to teachers, policemen, firemen, and other employés who have faithfully stood by us, if we can't do this, council and mayor our prayers and expectations of the future are well nigh hopeless.

"But he will not fail in this respect. His life has been devoted to overcoming obstacles. His election is a pledge of better things for Chicago. Mayor Cermak was lashing gangdom from the city. State's Attorney Courtney has continued that war. You will find Mayor Kelly fearlessly by his side."

Gov. Horner congratulated the council and Patrick A. Nash, county Democratic leader, for their statesmanlike actions in the crisis after the killing of Mayor Cermak. Chairman Frank J. Corr invited Mr. Nash to the platform to speak but he could not be found.

Crowd Packs Council Chamber.

The throng that packed the council chamber included friends of the new administration, aldermen and their families. Admission was by card and there was not a seat vacant in the hall or galleries. The platform was crowded with judges, officials, and citizens. D. F. Kelly was presented to the audience. Edward F. Dunne, former mayor and former governor, spoke briefly, congratulating the mayor and the council and recalling a time 18 years ago when Mr. Kelly, as a state engineer, presented a plan for the building of the lakes to the gulf waterway. He said the council had made a most admirable choice for mayor.

Rufus Dawes told of the coöperation which he had received from Mr. Kelly and other members of the south park commission in planning for A Century of Progress exposition.

"Adherence to the exposition project demonstrates that Chicago does not yield to despair," he said. "It shows a capacity for endurance and resources for recovery still in reserve. Chicago now makes firm forever its claim that it is the city of accomplishment."

The federal grand jury this morning will open an income tax investigation of Moe Rosenberg, former convict, junk dealer and Democratic political power in the 24th ward. Deputy marshals served subpoenas and subpoenas duces tecum last night for witnesses and records to be presented this morning.

Investigation of Rosenberg's income for 1929 and 1930 has been under way since 1931 and, according to reports in the federal building, has been completed for the last three months. District Attorney Dwight H. Green will present the matter personally to the jury. Neither Mr. Green nor his first assistant, William J. Froelich, who has had charge of the investigation, would comment on the case yesterday.

Sensational Exposé Promised.

No major political, business, or underworld figures were named in the original list of subpoenas sent out last night. It was indicated that additional subpoenas would be issued in the next few days, bringing in records and witnesses which would make the Rosenberg trial "rival that of Capone as a sensational exposé of political methods."

News of the grand jury investigation caused excited political gossip because of Rosenberg's high place in Chicago Democratic councils.

Political Rise Rapid.

Until 1928 Rosenberg was a comparatively obscure figure—a dealer in old iron and junk. Then his brother, Michael, sanitary district trustee and Democratic committeeman for the 24th ward, died, and Moe was elected to succeed his brother as ward committeeman. From then on his rise in politics and business was rapid.

From dealings in junk and scrap iron he rose to the virtual ownership of the Cook County Trust company. From a minor political figure, he became, in less than five years, an intimate of the party leaders and the virtual dictator of the west side. He is president of the Rosenberg Iron and Metal company, 2501 South Hoyne avenue, and lives at 1230 Independence boulevard.

Inquiry Begun in 1931.

The investigation of Rosenberg started in the fall of 1931 when he was questioned by agents of the bureau of internal revenue. Reports gave his income as exceeding $500,000 a year. He explained alleged discrepancies by saying that all his affairs were handled by a bookkeeper who had died. The reported discrepancy was more than a quarter of a million dollars.

Negotiations were opened to adjust the matter in Washington and it was reported that Rosenberg offered to make a $150,000 settlement, which was refused by the internal revenue department. Rosenberg is then reported to have retained Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general in the Coolidge administration, to represent him. Since then numerous reports of grand jury action have been made.

A political power by virtue of his boasted ability to deliver any size majority wished in his ward, Rosenberg, according to reports, was able to prevent his case being carried to the grand jury. Coincident with his election as committeeman in 1928 the Democratic party began winning elections and Rosenberg's control of political patronage grew by leaps and bounds. With the recent Democratic landslide in city, county, and state it was expected that Rosenberg would

A police squad last evening raided a "hoodlum detective agency" in a suite of the Congress hotel, arrested six men and uncovered evidence indicating that gangsters have been working to help John [Jake the Barber] Factor obtain the release of his 19 year old son, Jerome, from the hands of kidnapers. The youth, a Northwestern university student, was kidnaped last Wednesday and is being held for ransom of $50,000.

Sam Hunt, a leader of the remnants of the Capone gang, was one of those seized by the police. The others are Tony Accardo, Michael Spranza, Louis Cramer, Edward Guida, and Louis Romano, all of whom have been identified with Capone affairs in the past.

Confess They're Helping Factor.

All confessed reluctantly that they had been working for Factor, who has been unable to make contact with the abductors. More important than this admission was the discovery by the raiders of a police bureau of identification picture of three men known to the police as members of a downstate kidnaping gang. This photograph strengthened the growing belief among the police that the kidnaping was not the work of Chicago gangsters, but of outsiders.

The photograph had been taken by the police of Des Moines, Ia. Those pictured were Ted Patterson, Archie Brown and Joe Varsalous, otherwise known as Varsalona. Patterson, an ex-convict, and Brown were seized here on Feb. 28 as suspects in the kidnapings of several downstate men. They were released, but were rearrested in Des Moines on March 22 as bank robbery suspects. Varsalona, said to have been a Chicagoan, went on trial yesterday in the federal court at Peoria on a charge of being implicated in a kidnaping plot. He and eight others pleaded not guilty.

Believe Gangsters Have Clew.

The police, who have been striving to solve the kidnaping of Jerome Factor without coöperation from his father, believe that the Patterson-Brown-Varsalona group are likely suspects. They even believe that Hunt and his allies may have some definite clew to connect Patterson, Brown, and Varsalona with the Factor kidnaping.

Deputy Chief of Detectives William V. Blaul, who made the raid in the Congress hotel room, called attention to the fact that his prisoners insisted that extreme care be taken of the photograph of the downstate gangsters. He added that a man who represented himself as Factor requested by telephone that Hunt and his companions be booked at once so they could be released on bail.

While Blaul was in the hotel suite, No. 1702, he was informed by an unidentified caller that an automobile at Leland avenue and Sheridan road should be investigated. The call was intended for Hunt. A squad was sent to the corner mentioned, but made no further discoveries.

Threatens to Kick In Door.

The raid on the Hunt gang was brought about through an anonymous telephone call. The informant said that if the police went to the Congress they would gain important news about the Factor kidnaping. Deputy Chief Blaul threatened to kick in the door of the gang's room before the band of hoodlum "investigators" would open it.

Another clew was carried to Factor at his headquarters in the Morrison hotel last night by Bernard Mold, 5049 Maryland avenue, clerk in a shirt shop in the loop. Mold said that a small dark man met him at Randolph street and Wabash avenue during the afternoon and told him he could earn a dollar by carrying a message.

"He said to go to the Morrison and wait until a man asked me, in the lobby, if I could spare a dime," Mold asserted. "I was then to tell the questioner that Factor should move to some other hotel and register as Walter Jackson. Also, he was to call at the general delivery window of the postoffice for letters under that name."

Factor Talks to Clerk.

It was presumed that the purpose of these instructions, if authentic, was to enable Factor to get in touch with the kidnapers. Factor heard Mold's story and called the police. Mold satisfied the investigators that he was of good character and was asked to view photographs at the bureau of identification.

Late last night a letter was delivered to George Cohen, a brother-in-law of Factor, in Cohen's apartment at 210 East Pearson street. Although Cohen refused to talk about the matter, even denying receipt of the letter, he hastened to the Morrison hotel and conferred with Factor. The police investigators were not consulted about this note.

It was also disclosed that Factor had received a letter, on Hotel Morrison stationery, instructing him to meet the anonymous writer at 53d street and Dorchester avenue. This letter, thrust under a door of the Factor suite, was not taken seriously.

Earlier in the day there had been an additional clew in support of the theory outside gangsters were involved in the abduction. Edward Henzel, a janitor, living at 1239 Lunt avenue, told of seeing an automobile with a New York license several times last week near the home of Mrs. Leonard Marcus, Jerome's mother and Factor's first wife, at 1215 Lunt avenue. It was in front of the Marcus home that the youth was kidnaped. He had been living with Mrs. Marcus while attending Northwestern university.

"There were four men in the car," Henzel said, "and I saw them driving slowly around the neighborhood a day or two before Jerome was kidnaped. The driver was a man who looked just like a fellow I know. That's how I happened to remember him so well. I would recognize him if I saw him again."

Janitor Views Pictures.

Henzel called at Factor's quarters in the Morrison hotel and was sent to the headquarters of the Pinkerton detective agency in the Merchandise Mart. There he was questioned by Chief Investigator Al Gorenson and then viewed some 200 photographs in the Pinkerton rogues' gallery. An attorney representing Factor had made arrangements for the use of the agency's picture files.

The janitor picked out one photograph as closely resembling the driver of the car. The name of this suspect was suppressed, but it was known a call was sent out instructing all policemen to look for him and learn his recent whereabouts.

One of the reasons impelling the investigators to a belief that Chicago gangsters were not involved in the abduction was the delay of the kidnapers in giving the captive youth's father any definite instructions in regard to the payment of ransom; this in spite of the fact that Jerome had been missing nearly three days before the kidnaping became public.

Believe Youth Out of Chicago.

Factor is so well known in night life here that Chicago hoodlums, it is believed, would readily have found cabaret proprietors or even lawyers who could have acted as negotiators. Strangers, on the contrary, would be fearful of letting any one in on the secret, it was pointed out. The present belief is that the youth was taken far out of Chicago for safekeeping.

Since Saturday the father has maintained that he is perfectly willing to deal with the kidnapers and to pay as much as he can raise for his son's release. He has maintained, however, that under present conditions he cannot raise $50,000, the ransom demand made in a letter received on Friday.

Yesterday afternoon Factor called public attention to the difficulty he is having in getting in touch with the captors of Jerome. Leaving his suite in the Morrison, he met Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney, and representatives of the press, to whom he handed a typewritten statement.

Appeals to the Kidnapers.

It was in the nature of an appeal to the kidnapers, and read:

"I am appealing to the kidnapers of my boy to hasten the negotiations for his release. It is impossible for them to get in touch with me here. It is too public. I am being watched too closely.

"If they will ask Jerome he will tell them who my friends are and where they can be reached. They will communicate with me immediately.

"If the kidnapers read this I wish to appeal to them not to harm my boy in any way. I want my boy back and will do everything they ask if they will do as I say and get in touch with one of my friends.

"The safety of my son is more important to me and my family than anything else in the world."

Factor added that he could not even leave his hotel quarters "without being followed or the press knowing where I am."

It is known that Factor slipped out of the hotel Sunday night and rode in his own car through Chicago streets, hoping that the abductors of his son would shadow him and make overtures for the payment of the ransom.

There was a bit of a furor in the Factor apartment during the day when a telephone caller told Leon Bleet, Factor's secretary:

"Tell Jake to get that fifty grand ready. We'll tell him more later."

Frantic efforts were made to get additional information from the caller, but he disconnected and the investigators declared they were unable to trace the call.

Denies Any New Demand.

Factor asserted that he had been trying with all his might to get in touch with the abductors, but had made no progress. He denied receiving any additional demands after the first $50,000 ransom note. He said he did not object to police aid, and added:

"I want Jerome back and I don't care what method is used to get him."

Asked about reports that Murray Humphreys, gang chief, a holdover from the Capone régime, was acting as his representative, Factor declared he did not know Humphreys but would accept the aid of any one. He would not discuss the report that Lieut. Leo Carr, Chicago police officer who is on a sick leave, was helping him.

Capt. Gilbert has complained about a lack of coöperation from Factor since Saturday. He said he knew that Factor had received a second note from the kidnapers and was withholding all information about it.

Secret Service Interested.

It was learned that Capt. Thomas Callaghan, chief of the United States secret service in Chicago, is taking an interest in the Factor investigation. This service, according to federal officials, has never investigated any kidnaping before except that of the baby son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. Usually the secret service investigates nothing but counterfeiting schemes and plots against the President.

Jerome Factor is a pre-legal student at Northwestern university. His father is now fighting extradition to England, where he has been indicted on charges of swindling the British public out of $7,000,000 in stock deals. His case is before the United States Supreme court.

Fires on Fleeing Postal Robbers

Four bandits yesterday robbed William J. Ohlhaber, Schiller Park postmaster, of $76, while his two young children played nearby on the floor. One of the postmaster's neighbors emptied the magazine of a hunting rifle at the bandit car as it drove away.

The postoffice is in Ohlhaber's general store at 9340 Irving Park boulevard in Schiller Park. One of the bandits first entered alone and forced Ohlhaber to open a safe in the dining room of his home, behind the store, and surrender the money. The robber refused the stamps which were in the safe.

Mrs. Ohlhaber saw the holdup in progress from the second story of the building and screamed as her maid, Angeline Scysko, ran out to summon help. Frank Bork, Mrs. Ohlhaber's brother, who lives next door, loaded his rifle and left his home just in time to fire on the four robbers as they drove away.

RAISE CASH FOR SCHOOLS' CIVIL SERVICE FORCE

Pension Fund Buys Warrants for Month's Pay.

Trustees of the municipal employés' pension fund yesterday went to the aid of their fellow workers in the school service. As a result school civil service employés are to be paid in cash for the full month of last July.

The pay day will not affect teachers, except a few employed at the parental schools, which run through the summer vacation. Employés paid from the playground fund, whose pay roll for the month of July totals $44,000, will probably get tax warrants.

The school board at its meeting yesterday approved the sale of $371,000 worth of 1932 educational fund warrants to the municipal pension fund upon receipt of a letter from the pension trustees offering to make the purchase. They specified that the money was to be used to pay civil service employés. That pay roll for July totals $365,000.

Tempest at Board Meeting.

The school trustees staged "a tempest in a teapot" yesterday over the repeal or amendment of their resolution pledging the board not to issue 1932 tax warrants in excess of 50 per cent of its levies for that year. They finally discovered that no changes were necessary in the resolution.

The discussion started when Trustee John A. English moved for the repeal of the resolution, passed when the Dewey committee undertook to sell tax warrants for pay roll purposes.

President Orville J. Taylor told Trustee English that if the limit on sales were removed it would automatically end the efforts of the "Liberty loan" committee headed by Henry P. Chandler to sell the school tax warrants. Trustee Lewis E. Myers pointed out that the action would also invalidate the subscriptions to more than $3,000,000 worth of warrants received by the Dewey committee.

Explains R. F. C. Loan Obstacles.

Trustee Robert F. Carr termed the action "inadvisable" and went on to tell the board members that his recent trip to Washington to seek Reconstruction Finance corporation funds for Chicago pay rolls disclosed serious obstacles to such action.

"There is no provision under the present act for the R. F. C. to make loans either to a school board or to a new trust company on tax warrants, as was proposed by the Dewey committee," said Mr. Carr. "It would be necessary to amend the Wagner bill to allow the R. F. C. to make loans direct to school boards. A number of the older senatbrs oppose this, fearing that if it is done there will be an avalanche of requests at Washington from school boards."

George Mahin, executive secretary of the High School Teachers' federation, and Charles B. Stillman, head of the joint conference of teachers' organizations, suggested that the 50 per cent limit be placed only on sales to the public, leaving the board free to dispose of more warrants to the city's aggregate of funds, if it can.

Provisions Already in Act.

"Apparently some people haven't read the present resolution," then spoke up William Welsh, broker and technical advisor to the Chandler committee. "It now provides a 50 per cent limit only on sales to the public."

Since that was what the teacher leaders had suggested, the discussion was ended so far as the school board was concerned. It was renewed later in the day at Mr. Chandler's conference with the teacher leaders, when Mr. Stillman pointed out that two minor resolutions passed by the board did not contain the phrase limiting the restrictive clause to sale of warrants to the public. A wrangle started over his motion that the board be asked to amend these minor resolutions, and also over a substitute resolution, offered by Frederick T. Wilhelms, president of the high school teachers' association, which threatened for a time to break up the meeting.

Decline Chandler's Help.

Two representatives of 31 teacher organizations and several school labor unions were seated at the front of the hall. Behind them were some 400 teachers. The dispute over the two resolutions, and over the voting power of various units represented, soon spread throughout the room. Mr. Chandler rapped for order.

"Do you want me to help you?" he asked.

From the rear of the room rose a chorus of "No!"

"All right," said Mr. Chandler, "if you don't want me, I can withdraw."

A number of teachers rose and started to put on their coats. Robert H. Leavell, a teacher at Hyde Park High school and a college mate of Mr. Chandler, quieted the meeting with a eulogy of his former schoolmate.

At the opening of the meeting Mr. Chandler described the organization to be set up for the sale of the warrants, and invited teachers to participate in the drive.

25 Millions, Loan Goal.

"In round numbers," he said, our goal is $25,000,000, which is a large sum, but not large in proportion to the resources of Chicago, even at a time like this. As to teachers, I understand all they have had to undergo. A number of teachers have offered their services, and your coöperation in the sales campaign will be appreciated. But no teacher will be forced to take part."

Attorney Ralph Condee, of the board's legal staff, yesterday finished the draft of the proposed bill to authorize the board to issue bonds for pay roll purposes. The amount of the bond issue was cut from $50,000,000 to $30,000,000, which would just about take care of present arrears. The draft was sent to Attorney Henry Cutler, authority on municipal security issues, for an opinion.

YOUNG, HANDSOME, HE STUDIES JURY OF WOMEN, SAYS 'GUILTY'

Cleveland, O., April 17.—[Special.] John Campbell, 19, tall, red headed, broad shouldered, an apprentice robber from Chicago, could not wait today for six women to change their minds. He had counted on his sweetheart, who had not failed him, though his auto had when it ran into a street signal stanchion here and caused his arrest.

For the six women, jurors, had promised the prosecutor they would disregard his smile, but would be guided by the evidence. Campbell had watched those women as they listened to a plain man, Bert Schultz, identify him as the youth who stole $308 from a store on the night of last Nov. 11.

The story of his capture did not seem to impress the jurors. The police narrative of the finding of a book, hollowed out to hold an automatic pistol, did not seem to register with them as romantic.

"They ain't going to give me a break," Campbell is declared to have told his counsel, growing restless as the state rested its case; waited for the defense to begin.

So his counsel arose and pleaded guilty for him.

Judge Alva R. Corlett of the Court of Common Pleas will consider whether to send him to the reformatory or to the penitentiary. There is the difference of 18 months and ten to twenty-five years between them. The judge recently said women jurors would not convict a good looking man.

Campbell is said to have stolen an auto in Chicago and tires elsewhere, with larcenous visits to Cleveland and Medina, O.

Hold Secret Meeting; Await State Action.

Three solemn conclusions were reached last night at a meeting of officials and representatives of several north shore communities on the question: "Beer."

The first—unofficial by the way—was that "every man is entitled to his beer." The second, which was official, was that the citizens of the various towns represented must wait for their brew until the state legislature acts. The third, also official, was that matters would be permitted to stand in status quo for the present.

A dozen merchants who attended the meeting in Winnetka village hall greeted the first conclusion with smiles, the second with frowns and the third with knowing winks. This latter response presumably resulted from the knowledge that despite lack of official permission for the handling of beer in their towns, beer is being handled and thirsts are being quenched.

Five Towns Represented.

The communities represented were Highland Park, Glencoe, Winnetka, Wilmette and Evanston. There was no representative from Kenilworth which is on a "wide open beer" basis.

The meeting was held behind closed doors. At its conclusion Mr. Moulton announced that because the various town charters ban alcoholic beverages action to permit beer sales would be dependent upon the legislature.

While this meeting was going on the Evanston city council also deferred beer action pending legislative action. In Cicero, however, the town board passed an ordinance fixing license fees for taverns at $300 and other beer dispensing places at $100.

Council Opposes State Fee.

The Chicago city council last night went on record unanimously as being opposed to a state license fee on retail beverage dealers in Chicago, and sent to its newly created license committee an ordinance drafted by Ald. John Toman [23d] providing for the licensing of the 3.2 beer business.

The stand against a state license fee was taken on a resolution introduced by Ald. John J. Coughlin [1st]. He declared encroachment of the state in city licensing affairs might set a precedent for the state to take a share of other fees paid to the city.

Ald. Toman's ordinance provides for a graduated license fee, not to exceed $100 a year, for places where beer is consumed on the premises, and in addition a fee of $.50 a barrel. Where beer is sold for home consumption, the fee is fixed at $25 a year. Beer parlors would be compelled to close from midnight to 6 a. m. on week days, and from midnight Saturday until 1 p. m. Sunday. Sale of beer to minors also is prohibited.

Lewis Opens Fight on Seaway Treaty Ratification in Senate

Washington, D. C., April 17.—[Special.]—The fight of the waterways began in the senate today, and in the Supreme court attorneys argued over what has become one of the decisive factors in the water controversy—the Chicago sanitary district diversion.

Championing the side of Chicago and Illinois, Senator J. Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.] swung into action as supporters of the St. Lawrence seaway treaty sought to hurry consideration of the administration resolution through which the power rights of New York state under the treaty would be protected and the cost of construction chargeable to the state cut to 89 million dollars.

Sees Dangerous Competition.

Siding with the Illinois senator in opposing action on the resolution were Senators Royal S. Copeland [Dem., N. Y.], advocate of the all-American waterway through New York, and Huey P. Long, Louisiana radical, who foresees in the St. Lawrence development dangerous competition for the Mississippi waterway.

At the same time Attorneys Joseph B. Fleming and William Rothman for the sanitary district and Special Assistant Attorney General Cornelius Lynde for Illinois were arguing before the Supreme court against adoption of the special master's report recommending that Illinois be required to issue bonds without a referendum in order to build the treatment works required under the diversion decree of April, 1930.

It was the commercial side of the St. Lawrence development that was stressed by Senator Copeland and Senator Lewis, and what they declared was the unwarranted inclusion in an international instrument of a limitation of Chicago's diversion.

Demands Economic Study.

"When this treaty is ratified Lake Michigan will have the same relation to Canada that the St. Lawrence river does," declared Senator Copeland. He demanded a full economic study of the probable effects of the seaway on the commerce of present American ports.

"After the United States contributes the large sum necessary to pay for this undertaking, it then becomes a British property," said Senator Lewis. "It is to be supervised by a body under this treaty which must remain wholly British because directed by Canada. Therefore we are without voice, even in the administration of the water or to protect American ships with American grain.

"Why any one ever conceived that Canada could be so indifferent to its own interest to allow that I have never understood."

The effort to dispose of the resolution was abandoned for the time being and the show of opposition led to speculation as to whether the supporters of the treaty would be able to push it through at the present session.

NINE ARRAIGNED AS KIDNAPERS OF TWO ILLINOISIANS

Peoria, Ill., April 17. — [Special.] — Nine members of the ring alleged to have kidnaped Fred Defillipi, Spring Valley, and Adhemar Huughe, East Moline, were arraigned before Judge Louis FitzHenry in United States District court today and pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging them with sending ransom demands and threat letters through the mail, attempted extortion and conspiracy.

Counsel for all but one, who said he did not have funds to hire an attorney, met the charges with demurrers and motions to quash which Judge FitzHenry set for hearing tomorrow morning.

As their names were called Dan Zook, East Moline; Vince Burman, Spring Valley; Frank (Fat) Smith, Rock Island; Mike Talarico, Davenport; Joe Varsalona, Frank Delbono, Wesley Pritchett, John Siciliano, Chicago, and Victor Cieslelski, Davenport, stepped before the bench and denied their guilt.

"If the indictment is good," said the court, "I want to give you an immediate trial." He said the case could be set either for next week or the week following and agreed with defense attorneys that was "pretty quick," but "all for their benefit."

RUSSIA DEMANDS PRISON FOR FIVE ACCUSED BRITONS

Court Urged to Release One of Engineers.

MOSCOW, April 17.—(AP)—A "five year plan of sabotage" by six British electrical engineers, on trial for bribery, sabotage, and espionage, was charged tonight by the counsel for three of their Russian co-defendants.

The accusation was made at the beginning of the defense summation, shortly after Prosecutor Andrey Vishinsky asked that charges against Albert W. Gregory be dismissed, but that the five other British employes of the Metropolitan-Vickers Electrical company be convicted as "spies, saboteurs, and bribers."

Face Long Prison Terms.

Speculation regarding the possible verdicts included ten year sentences for two of the Britons, a possible three year sentence for one of them, and death sentences for two of the Russians. It was speculated also that the other nine Russians would be given prison terms and that two Britons would probably be released.

The session tonight was devoted to pleas by four defense attorneys, all of whom are acting on behalf of the prisoners who had pleaded guilty and whose convictions, therefore, were confined to the most perfunctory sort of defense.

A. A. Smirnov, counsel for William MacDonald, was the first to plead for any of the Britons. He emphasized that his client had been crippled since childhood.

Cites His Environment.

"Otherwise his legs might have brought him to a proletarian environment," Smirnov declared.

Saying that MacDonald lacked a college education and normal associations with other youths, his client easily fell under the influence of Vassilli Gusev, one of the Russian defendants, and "other Russian counter-revolutionaries," the attorney charged.

Smirnov, in reply to the intimation by Prosecutor Vishinsky that the Russians had fallen under the influence of the Britons, asked "why should the soviet engineers be taught by the English technicians how to behave?"

"Merely Obeyed Orders."

Gusev, one of three Russians for whom the prosecution demanded the death penalty, was said by Smirnov to have sold his country, along with some of the others, for a few rubles.

"MacDonald merely obeyed orders of his superiors," the defense attorney maintained. "MacDonald made a sincere and courageous confession, and others of his fellow citizens did not."

The Russian defenders of Gusev, V. A. Sokolov, P. E. Olyenik, M. O. Krasheninnikov and others, pleaded that their clients had fallen under the influence of the Britons and therefore were entitled to consideration in the verdict, notwithstanding their pleas of guilty.

Continue Defense Today.

Five other defense attorneys, including those for L. C. Thornton, Charles Nordwall, Albert W. Gregory, John Cushny, and Allan Monkhouse, the other British defendants, will resume the defense summations tomorrow.

Then Assistant Prosecutor Roginsky probably will give the rebuttal. The defendants subsequently will have a chance to make statements in their own behalf.

The crowd that heard the beginning of the defense summations burst into laughter several times, especially when the counsel declared that the judge, when he would decide on a verdict, should remember "that before Gusev met MacDonald and Thornton he was only an inactive counter-revolutionary."

Asks Clemency for Two.

Prosecutor Vishinsky recommended clemency for two of the Russian defendants on the grounds that they had partly redeemed themselves by their testimony regarding the others.

The prosecution asked the "highest penalty" for Gusev, Sokolov, and Olyenik, but recommended that punishment for the other prisoners be at the discretion of the court.

"The penalty for these offenses is shooting, and the crimes deserve it," Vishinsky said. "But our justice is soviet justice. We do not cling too formally to the law. Neither do we seak blood or vengeance. Our power is strong and cannot be taken by these people, but if you consider it necessary to pronounce death, your hands will remain firm."

Names British Secret Service.

He maintained that the "organizers" of the alleged plot in soviet electrical plants should be punished most severely. These "organizers," he said, were Gusev, Sokolov, L. A. Sukoruchkin, N. G. Zoric, A. T. Lobanov, and M. O. Krasheninnikov.

All of the Britons, except Gregory, were placed by the prosecutor in a "second group" of prisoners for whom lighter punishment was recommended.

Thornton and Nordwall were accused by Vishinsky of being agents of the British secret police.

The prosecutor's sharp attack on the five British engineers led Cushny to make an angry but short-lived retort from the prisoners' box.

Calls Thornton "Coward."

After being described by the prosecutor as an experienced spy, Cushny, his face pale with rage, jumped from his seat and shouted, "I did not confess." Vishinsky had charged that Cushny had confessed collecting information but had refused to explain his activities.

The prosecutor's bitterest attack was saved for the last, when he accused Thornton of being "a coward, lacking the courage of MacDonald." Talking directly to Thornton, Vishinsky asserted:

"After confessing at a preliminary examination, you now try to deny your acts of spying, sabotage and bribery. You are also an incompetent agent of the British intelligence service. You said you were told that unless you confessed you would be of no use either here or in England.

"Well, you are already out of use. Some day you may serve as fertilizer on our soviet fields. You may just as well be dead now so far as the British intelligence service is concerned."

Thornton showed no emotion.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 17.—While the Moscow trial of six British subjects on charges of sabotage and espionage was drawing to a close the Independent Labor party, embracing the only really vocal Reds in parliament, resolved today to oppose any reprisals against Russia by agitating for a general strike.

They have no control whatever over organized British labor, which is firmly directed by the Labor party through the trades union congress.

The radicals' resolution said the soviets have turned the socialist dream into reality and that war against Russia would be a deliberate attempt to bring down the first workers' republic.

In supporting the motion Fenner Brockway said the party would stand for the soviets against the British government or any other government based on capitalism.

'OTHER WOMAN' IN DIVORCE SUIT SEEKS A DECREE

Mrs. Neva Wiley Edwards, 1508 East Oak street, Evanston, who was recently named co-respondent in the divorce suit of Mrs. Florence Butler Kilbourne of Oak Park against her husband, Don B. Kilbourne, yesterday filed suit at Reno, Nev., to divorce Ralph E. Edwards of New York City. Mrs. Edwards charged cruelty. Her bill said that she married in 1906 and separated from her husband in 1929.

During the hearing of her divorce bill in the Circuit court here, Mrs. Kilbourne, who resides at 414 Linden avenue, Oak Park, related the story of a raid with detectives on her husband's rooms at the Drake hotel. There she found him with a woman whom she identified as Mrs. Edwards. Mrs. Kilbourne was granted a divorce.

INQUIRY ORDERED INTO CONDITIONS NEAR LANE HIGH

An investigation into conditions in the neighborhood of the Lane Technical High school at 1225 Sedgwick street was ordered yesterday by William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, following charges that the area was infested with vice resorts. The charges were made before Judge Joseph McGarry in the South State street court. W. L. Bodine, superintendent of compulsory education, was instructed to head the school inquiry.

Police of the morals division testified that Samuel Elliott, 61 years old, 4737 Evans avenue, who was before Judge McGarry on a charge of disorderly conduct, acted as a lookout to warn the resort owners of approaching squads. Judge McGarry ruled that the evidence was inadequate, however, and Elliott was dismissed.

Testimony was introduced during the hearing by witnesses summoned by the Rev. Philip Yarrow, superintendent of the Illinois Vigilance association. Harry Lapp, president of the Lincoln Park Association of Commerce, declared that Lane High school students could purchase narcotics in some of the dens.

Dr. William S. Crowley, head of an emergency hospital at 712 Division street, told the court that he had been hailed by a dozen women on his way to the hearing.

Judge McGarry announced that he would ask immediate action by Police Commissioner Allman.

BAIN'S REALTY DEALS UNDER U. S. SCRUTINY

The federal government, it was learned last night, is conducting an investigation of John Bain, convicted south side banker and real estate operator.

For the last three months, it was learned, postoffice inspectors have been conducting a search of the records of Bain's real estate and security sales. It was said that numerous instances have been found in which Bain sent glowing descriptions through the mails with the view to further sale of his real estate holdings.

An investigation of Bain's income tax returns also is being made, it was learned, but this inquiry was termed "routine" by federal agents.

PACIFIC COAST HAS BELATED COLD WAVE; FRUIT AREA ESCAPES

San Francisco, Cal., April 17.—(AP)—Snow and hail in the vicinity of San Francisco as well as cold weather in the interior and Sierra sections was the belated imprint left on California today by winter.

The mercury was near zero last night at Tahoe City, in the Sierra, and four inches of snow around Quincy gave that Plumas county area a midwinter appearance.

Reports of material damage in the fruit areas were lacking.

Other far western states felt winter's breath. A 44 year record was broken at Reno with a maximum temperature of 37 degrees. At Bend, in central Oregon, a near blizzard raged. The snow was six inches deep.

PROBE KILLING BY POLICEMAN IN NITTI CASE

Col. Philip Crippen, inspector of police personnel, is investigating the killing of William Nydick, an ex-convict, by Harry Miller, suspended police sergeant. Miller was suspended last week in connection with the shooting of Frank Nitti, Capone hoodlum, for which his partner, Harry Lang, was both suspended and indicted.

Nydick was shot three times in the back in his room in the Park Row hotel, 4140 Roosevelt road, last Dec. 21, when Miller and his squad tried to arrest him on a robbery warrant. Miller said he fired when Nydick reached for a pistol, and a coroner's jury later absolved him.

Col. Crippen and his assistant, H. L. Johnson, have questioned Detectives Ted Tierney, Al Hahn, and Edward Dooley, members of Miller's squad. Today they expect to examine members of Sergt. Martin Haley's squad and perhaps Miller. The inquiry was ordered by Commissioner Allman.

Messenger Is Robbed of $3,000 Deposit in Loop

Fred Burkamp, 19 years old, a messenger for the Kerman Stores company, 160 North Michigan avenue, was held up yesterday by two men as he was walking in Randolph street, just east of State street. They robbed him of a package containing $3,000 in checks and currency which he was carrying to a bank.

POLICE ARREST YOUTH IN PLOT TO KILL HITLER

Medical Student Seized at Chancellor's Retreat.

BERCHTESGADEN, Germany, April 17.—(AP)—Criminal police today arrested Paul Orlowsky, a medical student who was wearing a Nazi uniform, as he loitered near the Platterhof a few minutes before Chancellor Adolf Hitler was scheduled to visit the neighborhood.

Police said they were suspicious that a plot was being hatched on the chancellor's life because of Orlowsky's recent actions in the vicinity of Hitler's Bavarian mountain retreat.

Franz Seldte, leader of the Steel Helmets, war veterans' organization, who is here to confer with the chancellor about a working agreement between the Nazis and the Steel Helmets, was due to appear with the chancellor at the Platterhof.

Watched for Several Days.

Criminal police, whose duties are like those of secret service men, said they had been watching the medical student for several days during his residence at a local pension.

Shortly before Seldte and the chancellor arrived, the police arrested the suspect and hurried him to headquarters.

After questioning and searching him, the authorities revealed that Orlowsky had a falsified certificate authorizing him to wear the uniform of Chancellor Hitler's Nazis. He also had forged identification papers, they said.

Catholic Church Admits Nazis.

COLOGNE, Germany, April 17.—(AP)—The archbishop of Cologne ordered in a pastoral letter today that Nazis, uniformed or not, are to be admitted to the churches and may receive the sacrament singly or in bodies. The letter also set minor regulations concerning attendance at funerals and the carrying of flags into churches.

Dollfuss Hails Italian Treaty.

VIENNA, April 17.—(AP)—Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss said on his return by air from Rome today that his conversations in the Italian capital had convinced him the Austro-Italian treaty of friendship signed in 1930 was "no mere formality" to Premier Mussolini.

He was certain, the chancellor said, that Austria now has "a friend in the south, too, a friend on whom we can rely for help in overcoming our troubles and for support in international negotiations."

PACT OF FRIENDSHIP.

The treaty of friendship between Italy and Austria was signed by Premier Mussolini and Johann Schober, then the Austrian chancellor.

The treaty differentiated between local and political disputes and said that in political conflicts either side might appeal to the league of nations if diplomatic discussion failed.

For legal disputes it provided three settlement resources—a permanent conciliation committee, an arbitration court, and the permanent court of international justice at The Hague.

RUTH JUDD CLAWS AT JAILERS AT HER SANITY HEARING

Slayer Shrieks as She Is Led Away.

Florence, Ariz., April 17.—[Special.]—Shrieking and clawing at her jailers, Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd was led from the courtroom here today after a violent outburst during the sanity hearing that may result in commutation of her sentence to be hanged at dawn on Friday. The episode climaxed a day of testimony in which both her aged parents, the Rev. and Mrs. J. H. McKinnell, had taken the stand and accepted the taint of hereditary insanity in their effort to save her from the gallows.

With many witnesses yet to be heard, there seemed little likelihood of completing the hearing before Friday morning, in which case the board of pardons and paroles, some of the members of whom are among those yet to testify, have indicated that it will grant her a brief reprieve. Meanwhile, from the state prison came rumors of agitation among the fellow prisoners of the "trunk murderess" as the result of the psychiatric hearing.

No Comment to Make.

Officially, Warden A. G. Walker had no comment to make on the reports of convict unrest, said to have been inspired mainly by a court order from Superior Judge E. L. Green, providing for an examination of the prisoner outside the presence of her counsel or relatives by State Alienists Drs. Joseph Catton of San Francisco and Paul Bowers of Los Angeles. Privately, the warden admitted that he was taking necessary steps to preserve order in the prison if it should become necessary.

Drs. Catton and Bowers testified fifteen months ago, at the trial in which Mrs. Judd was convicted of the murder of her friend, Miss Leroi, and stentenced to be hanged, that she was sane. The order providing for the impending examination was bitterly opposed by Defense Attorney E. W. MacFarland.

"We have no faith in these men," he declared. "We do not want her subjected to examination by them without advice of counsel during the examination."

Doctor Slurred by Witness.

From the witness stand as she prepared to step down after her testimony, Mrs. McKinnell flung at Dr. Catton the slur, "He's prominent because he says what he's paid for."

Life imprisonment in an institution for the feebleminded confronts the slayer if the verdict of the jury is that she is mentally unbalanced. To aid such a decision, her mother informed the veniremen that she herself has a frail mind, and that her daughter "has been more or less insane all her life."

"I had a first cousin who was insane—he died in the asylum where he had been for a number of years," she declared. Questioned further, she added that "My mother had a cousin who was insane," and that she once had spent three years in bed as the result of a "nervous breakdown."

The Rev. Mr. McKinnell testified that in Scotland 125 years ago, his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Judd's great-grandmother, had lost her mind That his father's brother became insane when he was twenty and remained so until his death twenty years later. And that his nephew, Robert Bowler, became violently insane and took his own life twenty years ago in Bisbee, Ariz.

In a quavering voice, the 73 year old minister told the jury that when he visited her at the prison, his daughter would fly into rages and accuse him of wanting her hanged.

"Worst of all," he said, as his voice broke, "she would use the most awful profanity—I never heard her use profanity before."

For the last two months, he declared, she apparently had lost all her affection for both her parents. In the courtroom she sat twisting a blue handkerchief about her left hand, muttering to herself and ignoring those about her. Once or twice she clapped her hands loudly. Then came the wild scene when she forcibly had to be removed from the courtroom.

Stanley Convinces Judge That He Knows His Beer

Stanley Kupczyk, 2009 South Jefferson street, arraigned yesterday in the Desplaines street court on a charge of intoxication, declared that he got that way drinking new beer. When Judge George V. McIntyre doubted that it could be done, Stanley said that it was new beer and that he had made it himself. When the defendant promised to throw away his home brew and drink nothing but legal 3.2 per cent he was dismissed.

CONFUSING NOW TRYING TO PEN CAPITAL PIECES

White House Unformality Proves Disarming.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 17.—[Special.]—It is a little more difficult than usual to turn out keen, analytical human documents on the state of the nation just now because most of the trained observers of the fourth estate share the confusion of the statesmen who do not know what anything is all about but are legislating from the hip. Confusing the confusion still more, the members of the Roosevelt family have been putting on the charm and folksey simplicity as no other White House family has done within the memory of the oldest inhabitant of any of the various press galleries.

It is an odd contrast which has developed between the atmosphere of the presidency in the time of Mr. Hoover, the humble country boy who could not sit down for lunch without an equerry from the state department to introduce him to himself and the atmosphere of the present régime which raids the ice box at night and rends cold chicken by hand.

Boys and Girls Won Over.

The Roosevelts were born to the plug hat and there were butlers buttling in the service of their family when Mr. Hoover was a barefoot boy with cheeks of tan whose pants were sustained by the cartoonists' standardized single suspender. But the White House never reeked of formality quite as richly as it did during the Hoovers' occupancy and naturally when the Roosevelts moved in and began calling the grocery man Ed, the newspaper boys and girls were completely won over. Or almost completely.

There are a few, of course, who are inclined to suspect that such cordial and civil treatment as the Roosevelts accord to one and all must be something in the nature of an act, intended to forefend or mitigate intelligent criticism. Not having been exposed to this corrosive kindliness and geniality and taking my information per hearsay I am inclined to believe that the Roosevelts are on the level in their personal deportment which would make it just as bad, however. I always found that it was a poor idea to fall in love with the incumbent heavyweight champion, whoever he might be and however genuine his charm, because those sport writers, who did become Dempsey men or Tunney lovers as we called them, became partisans of the most unreasonable kind.

Those Determined Ladies.

Certainly Mr. and Mrs. Hoover prepared a natural for their successors in the big house. In the nation the state of affairs was such that almost any change was inevitably for the better, and in the White House itself the reporters on the beat had been ordered to desist from playing poker. There was always a chance that some delegation of determined ladies down to attend a national convention of some league for prevention of something, might mistake the reporters' headquarters for some other room and run squawking to their meeting hall with a report that Mr. Hoover was running a gambling house.

At any rate, the barefoot boy from Iowa thoroughly prepared things for the Democratic dude from Groton and Harvard so that nowadays if Mr. Roosevelt should heave out an old shoe there would be those in Washington who would have the same shellacked and gilded and hang it on the wall and kiss it every night before bed.

Granting the social sincerity of the new family I propose nevertheless that civility is nothing to be completely unnerved by and that it is just as wise to resist the ingratiating influence of gentle treatment as it is to stifle immaterial prejudices and dislikes against a character or a set of characters of completely opposite kind.

Really Has No Bearing.

You may recall that there were no essays against the Hoovers based on personal distaste for them, which seems to have been popular, but you may have noticed that since the Roosevelts moved there has been much seductive propaganda on their behalf based on their rather suburban neighborliness which has no more bearing, however, on the wisdom of Mr. Roosevelt's reign than the Hoovers' demeanor had on the merits of his government.

Of course it is difficult not to admire the Roosevelts in the comparison because if any group of determined ladies, wearing badges, down to Washington to pass resolutions on some abstract subject, should let out a squawk about a poker game in the White House press room the Roosevelts would merely say "Well, girls, this is our home and if you wish to run around criticizing your host that just shows what sort of manners you have."

Nuisance of Long Standing.

One of the worst national nuisances of the last fifteen years has been organizations of determined ladies, uniformly unprepossessing and all hung over with badges who could find and still do find the railroad and hotel fares, however poor the country may seem to be, to hold conventions and emit squawks about matters which are none of their business. Nobody ever tried to lure any such ladies into any poker game and that is not to say that all of them lacked the instinct to kick an ace under the table, either, because most of them are politicians at heart.

As to Mr. Roosevelt's legislative program, which seems to have been translated from the Russian in spots, criticism and resistance is slow to occur for the reasons here suggested, also because there is a sense that the people do not wish to hear anything of the kind. That is one of the weaknesses of journalism in this country whose journalism, though best of all in the world, still wistfully tries to adjust harsh facts to the fond desires and illusions of the readers, or postpones the truth until the citizens have begun to realize it themselves.

Program Is Pliable.

And then, there is the general shapelessness and gummy consistency of the whole mass, which makes it so elusive. Damn it for some awful fault and the next day you discover that it was not what it seemed to be at all. It was just that you put the wrong interpretation upon some feature of it. It is so pliable that its defenders can reconcile it to almost any criticism except that of the candid capitalist who is an enemy of the forgotten man anyway and must get ready to give up his accumulation.

For the sequences of bond issues and other governmental commitments running into billions and on infinite stretch of time, no practical provision is attempted. The Lord and the destiny of the U. S. A. will provide, although it does seem that somewhere in the past there was an Italian immigrant in Boston who did business on a very similar basis and went to prison for so doing. Mr. Ponzi, of the early 20s was going to borrow from Peter to pay Paul and from Jake to pay Emma and so on, but he was interrupted. The only provision against the eventual, five-star final reckoning and settlement of the present plan that I have heard is that if it fails the present administration is going to feel very, very sorry indeed and beg everybody's pardon for an honest error.

Kunz Maid Held to Grand Jury

Former Congressman Stanley Kunz and Mrs. Sophie Baelinski, maid whom he accuses of theft, as they appeared yesterday in court.

Kunz Blocks Leniency

Former Congressman Stanley H. Kunz objected yesterday to suggestions of leniency for Mrs. Sophie Baelinski, 38 years old, a maid in his home, whom he accuses of stealing $300 from his trousers.

As a result Municipal Judge Matthew D. Hartigan overruled the suggestion of Assistant State's Attorney Irwin Clorfene that Mrs. Baelinski be allowed to plead guilty to petty larceny, on which she could be sentenced to a year in the bridewell, and held her to the grand jury on a charge of grand larceny. The penalty for that offense is one to ten years in the penitentiary.

Kunz asserted that when the present case is settled he will attempt to have Mrs. Baelinski deported. He made a half hour speech to the judge, in the course of which she fainted. "See," he said to Judge Hartigan, "that's part of her act."

Mrs. Baelinski is unable to speak English, and Kunz acted as her interpreter in court.

Kunz was tried and acquitted on a charge of operating a confidence game in 1919. In 1917 he had been acquitted of a charge of taking a bribe to procure the release of a prisoner from the bridewell, but was fined for contempt of court because of the language he used to the woman who accused him. He was acquitted again in 1930 on a charge of accepting a bribe, and a few months later a woman who had charged him with larceny by bailee dropped the charge after stating that he had returned her money to her.

NEW RULING CUTS VETERANS' AID HERE 20 MILLIONS

Limits Hospital Care to Service Injured.

Col. Hugh Scott, executive officer at the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital, yesterday received from Washington the regulations for the new economy program of veterans' relief. Brief study of these regulations convinced him, Col. Scott said, that $20,000,000 would be slashed from the $47,000,000 that has been the annual budget in the area embraced by the state of Illinois and three northern Indiana counties.

About two weeks ago Col. Scott estimated the savings in his district at $10,000,000. The rigidity of the new rules, issued by Maj. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, caused him to revise his figures.

16,364 in Area Affected.

One of the largest items of savings, the colonel said, would be elimination of disability allowances to men now drawing compensation for injuries or sickness not incurred in military service. This will amount to $3,000,000, according to Col. Scott. At present there are 16,364 in the area receiving such compensation. Only 1,426, totally disabled, will continue on the rolls and their pay will be slashed from $40 to $20 a month.

There are now 17,451 veterans in the area drawing compensation for injuries suffered in service. There will be a cut of $4,500,000 in payments to these. The other $12,500,000, according to Col. Scott, will be saved through cuts in personnel and reduction of salaries of workers, abolition of service stations in other cities, more rigid rules governing admission to the hospital, elimination of travel expense for veteran patients, and reduction in costs of burial for those who die while patients.

27 Doctors to Lose Jobs.

He pointed out that 27 part time physicians and surgeons at the hospital would be summarily dismissed and that this alone meant a $56,500 saving.

Hitherto any former service man could be admitted to be treated for any ailment. Now the hospital will take only service incurred cases and veterans who are so ill they cannot support themselves. Also, no ex-service man will be admitted unless he served at least ninety days in the armed forces of the country.

The new rules take effect on July 1

Arthur Herman Witzleben, 71 years old, buyer in the curtains and draperies section of Marshall Field and company, celebrated the 50th anniversary of his service with the company by retiring yesterday. Telegrams and letters of congratulations as well as flowers arrived during the day for him from such prominent Chicagoans and former Chicagoans as Gordon Selfridge of London, Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Mrs. P. A. Valentine, Mrs. Stanley Field, and Marshall Field III. of New York.

On April 17, 1883, Mr. Witzleben began work with Marshall Field and company as a junior salesman of lace curtains.

"John G. Shedd was then in charge of lace curtains, linens and laces in the wholesale division and it was his recommendation to Mr. Field which eventually put me in charge of the retail sales," Mr. Witzleben recalled yesterday. "In those days fashions in curtains were very different from those of today. We used to sell lace curtains for as much as $500 a pair. The Field and Armour families have been my customers for three generations."

CHINESE PIRATES KILL 2 BRITONS IN ATTACK ON SHIP

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

HONGKONG, April 17.—A Chinese customs motor launch, which had become stuck in a mud bank at low tide 16 miles from Maco, was attacked by pirates early today. The pirates opened fire, killing two British and one Chinese officers of the launch.

One of the slain men was Stanley Baldwin, a former sailor in the British navy, and a man named Pearce, who was the commander of the launch. Several Chinese were wounded.

When the tide rose the pirates made off with the launch, which has not yet been traced.

DERN TO SLASH 144 MILLION OFF ARMY EXPENSES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 17.—[Special]—Plans for drastic reductions in army expenditures were discussed today by President Roosevelt in a conference with Secretary of War Dern The secretary affirmed reports that the total saving may reach 144 million dollars, of which 90 millions will be effected in the military ends of the department and 54 millions in the civilian bureaus.

Plan to Drop 15,000 Soldiers.

Secretary Dern indicated that from 2,000 to 3,000 officers and from 12,000 to 15,000 enlisted men of the regular army will be dropped, and that some of the army's work on rivers and harbors projects will be discontinued. When it was suggested that this latter move would add to unemployment, Mr. Dern said a proposal to place this work under the emergency public works relief program was being considered.

After seeing the President, Secretary Dern went into conference with Budget Director Douglas, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff of the army, and Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers. Tomorrow, the finishing touches are to be put on the program in another conference with the President.

Abolish Training Camps.

Among the economy proposals submitted by Dern and Douglas were the elimination this year of the citizens' military training camps; reductions in national guard drill periods amounting to 50 per cent and a curtailment or elimination of field training; elimination of the reserve officers' training corps camps and withdrawal of all government support to the R. O. T. C.; elimination of many army stations and consolidation of the activities of others, to a projected savings of 50 per cent, and the retirement of some 4,000 army officers.

COURT ORDERS ARREST OF DEAN ON CHECK CHARGE

Judge Matthew D. Hartigan yesterday issued a capias for the arrest of J. Clarke Dean Jr. of 1550 Lake Shore drive, son of a Chicago broker, and forfeited Dean's $1,000 bond. Young Dean failed to appear in the Felony court on a charge of operating a confidence game. He had obtained a continuance until yesterday on his announcement that he planned to join the French Foreign Legion to rehabilitate himself.

The complainant, Alfred Cronberg, assistant manager of the Racquet club, 1361 North Dearborn street, who charged that Dean had given him a worthless check for $35, announced at the previous hearing that restitution had been made. He said he was willing to drop the prosecution.

Judge Hartigan insisted, however, that the case be prosecuted unless Dean showed signs of carrying out his promise. When the case was called yesterday Dean was absent and a representative of Jerrems, Inc., tailors, appeared in court with a second worthless check for $30, which he said Dean had given him.

Farley Will Cut 72 Millions to Make Postal Service Pay

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 17.—[Special.]—The United States postoffice, which has been running deeper and deeper into the red ever since 1919, is going to pay its own way hereafter, according to Postmaster General James A. Farley.

Mr. Farley told of his purpose to save $72,000,000 in the coming fiscal year, an amount which he believes will balance the postal budget, and he told specifically how he hopes to make the saving.

Pens Two Million Letters.

For an amusing sidelight, Mr. Farley revealed somewhat ruefully how a couple of million letters he wrote during the Roosevelt presidential campaign are raining back on him in a deluge.

After discussing the delays in handing out the thousands of patronage plums to faithful Democrats and promising to expedite matters with the reservation that only "the best obtainable" people will be chosen for public service, Mr. Farley said:

"In my political capacity I wrote a lot of letters telling folks who helped in the campaign that I would be glad to see them. Now they are coming by the hundreds and bringing the letters with them.

"I would be glad to visit with all of them and to grant all their requests, but, unfortunately there are only twenty-four hours to a day, and the applicants outnumber the jobs 10 to 1."

Breaks All Records.

In his direction of Mr. Roosevelt's campaign Mr. Farley broke all records for correspondence, signing personally many hundreds of thousands of letters to obscure precinct committeemen, party workers, and others.

Discussing the reasons for the postal deficit, Mr. Farley said the crying need was a larger volume of business, that twice as much business as the postoffice now has could be handled with the same facilities and the same cost.

Mr. Farley urged that public utilities, mail order houses, newspapers, and "folks generally" use the mails instead of going on with the newly developed habit of making their own deliveries of bills, catalogues, and the like.

Mr. Farley estimated that postoffice receipts in the current year will be 588 millions, the same as last year, and that on the basis of estimated expenditures under strict economies, the deficit this year will be 72 million.

In order to offset such a deficit in the coming fiscal year, Mr. Farley said the 15 per cent general wage cut put into effect by the President would save 30 millions. He saw a cut of 20 millions in reduced rents and transportation costs and in equipment and supplies costs.

Saving of the remaining $22,000,000 will be hard sledding, the postmaster general indicated, but he declared it must and would be accomplished. Without committing himself positively, Mr. Farley said rural delivery service might be satisfactorily maintained by eliminating 10,000 of the 40,000 carriers.

Plans to Survey Postoffices.

Expressing an unwillingness to discharge outright other thousands of postal employés, the postmaster general said he was considering a plan to survey each postoffice and railway mail unit, determine how few employés could do the work efficiently, and then rotate the work among the employés so that all will be retained on the pay roll with shortened worktime.

Another proposal under consideration, Mr. Farley said, was to abandon delivery service in small towns and villages, and to curtail the number of deliveries in larger cities.

Discussing proposed changes in postal rates, Mr. Farley said that, while the 3 cent first class rate has brought some additional revenue, it has discouraged business correspondence, especially in local fields.

Aims to Restore 2 Cent Rate.

"The restoration of the 2 cent rate," he said, "would unquestionationally contribute strongly to the revival of trade and industry. I am glad to say that the administration proposes to bring this about at the earliest possible moment."

A bill to bring about a 2 cent rate for local deliveries and to give the President power to raise or lower postal rates on other first class mail matter was introduced in the house today at Mr. Farley's instigation.

WOMAN ACCUSED OF CHURCH BOOK FRAUD IS JAILED

Mrs. Gertrude I. Ives, 57 years old, who was accused of defrauding church members with a scheme to promote a church year book, was sentenced to five months in the county jail yesterday by Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court on a charge of operating a confidence game.

Miss Annette Heinebach, 5813 Wayne avenue, and her sister, Gertrude, charged that Mrs. Ives had induced them to invest $1,500 to finance a year book for the Edgewater Presbyterian church. When Judge Prystalski, who heard the case without a jury, announced his finding of guilty, Mrs. Ives asked to be sent to the county jail where the prisoners are not required to work.

"I'm engaged in sewing work, which I am going to sell to friends when I get out to make my living," she said. Judge Prystalski granted her request.

ZIONIST CHIEF COMING TO CITY FOR JEWISH DAY

80 MILLION IDLE RELIEF STAGGERS COUNTY BOARD

Waste of Funds Disclosed in New Cases.

Members of the county board expressed amazement yesterday by the revelation that the expenditures of the commission for the relief of the idle and needy in the county will reach the figure of $7,000,000 for the month of April alone, an average of more than $233,000 a day.

A resolution was immediately introduced by Commissioner Charles H. Weber calling attention to "the startling figure of $7,000,000 for April" and proposing that the board take cognizance of "certain charges of waste and extravagance." The resolution would rescind the action, the county board delegating the handling of county relief to the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. The resolution was referred to the public service committee which meets next Friday.

Expenses Mounts Steadily.

Relief expense has been soaring steadily, the commissioners learned. Expenditures for the year ending Feb. 1, 1933, were $45,000,000 and for the current year the estimated need has been placed at $80,000,000.

The $45,460,000 of state and federal borrowed funds spent in Cook county on relief last year is a greater sum, it was pointed out, than the corporate budget estimate of the city of Chicago for this year, which calls for $43,032,000.

Commissioner Weber, whose stand was indorsed by a number of other commissioners, said he would go to Springfield to amke a plea to Gov. Horner to refrain from appointing any committee or commission that would take from the county board the responsibility of spending relief funds. The present emergency relief commission has failed in its duties, he declared.

New Evidence Disclosed.

Meanwhile, further investigation of hundreds of complaints received concerning the alleged maladministration of relief funds revealed certain instances of which the following is typical:

John Marco, at present located at 1304 Bauwans street, is the leader of a family of twelve gypsies. Last December, according to the stories told by neighbors, the tribe came rolling into Chicago in a large seven passenger automobile with an Indiana license.

The family had no difficulty in getting on the relief rolls, according to the records, and they are still receiving boxes of groceries, deliveries of milk and coal, as well as grocery orders upon neighboring stores.

An Easier Life.

A reporter yesterday visited the Marco household and found an array of beaming faces. Marco was away attending an Easter party, his children said. They told of how Chicago relief had made life easier for the family.

"We camp all summer in Thornton, out on Ridge road," said the eldest son. "Then we come in during the winter. We used to live in a gypsy colony on Ashland avenue, but now we have our own house with much groceries and coal. Soon we leave for summer camp but we will be back next winter to get relief again."

In the Marco home there were rugs and gold and silver ornaments for sale. The children said that "much food" was provided by the relief commission and that the fortune telling and ornament selling business was not very good.

Relief, But No Family.

Joseph Ashton, 1907 West Ohio street, was another recipient of relief visited. He is receiving full relief for himself, his wife, and two children. Complaints received by THE TRIBUNE from neighbors who said that the relief commission had failed to take any action on reports that Ashton was living alone and that his wife and family were not with him.

Ashton, a barber, with a small barber shop in his home, was found alone. He admitted that his family was living with his sister.

"I know who the squealer was," he told a reporter. "And I can tell you plenty about that guy."

In a number of cases investigated by reporters, this was the general response. Recipients of relief did not trouble to deny that they were wrongfully receiving groceries and support from the commission, but evinced a desire to know who had "squawked." Eventually, from these culprits, came information leading to the exposure of other families in the neighborhood who were receiving relief with members of the family employed.

Floaters Receive Relief.

Municipal Judge George V. Mcintyre yesterday expressed indignation that most of the "floaters" arraigned before him in the Des Plaines street court for drunkenness have been revealed as recipients of relief.

"There must be 5,000 men of this sort," commented the judge after sending twenty defendants to the workhouse and freeing thirty others. "Some of them get work from the relief commission, one day every two weeks, and they use the money to buy cheap moonshine. They ought to be put to work every day, cleaning the streets and alleys."

Hines Clark, 29 years old, 849 West Madison street, who admitted begging on the streets although getting charity from the relief commission, was fined $25 and costs by Municipal Judge Leon Edelman. He was arrested while loitering near the home of Mayor Edward J. Kelly. A relief card was found in his pocket.

"I can use the extra money I get by begging," said Clark. "The relief support isn't enough for me to get along on."

Three Cement Companies Shy at Leasing Plants to State

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 17.—[Special.]—Gov. Horner today attempted to break prices for highway cement by proposing that the state lease and operate one or more privately owned plants. By night, however, it appeared that the proposal will not bear fruit.

On instructions from the governor, Director Robert Kingery of the department of public works sent the following telegram to four cement manufacturers:

"Will you consider leasing of your plant by state for definite period upon the basis of a fair rental. This also will enable the state to give employment to your employés. Please advise immediately conditions under which you will lease."

Replies Not Encouraging.

The wire was addressed to the Marquette Cement Manufacturing company, the Alpha Portland Cement company, the Lehigh Portland Cement company, and the Medusa Portland Cement company. The first three are located in La Salle, Ill., and the fourth in Dixon, Ill.

Seven hours later, three answers had been received. Mr. Kingery declined to make the messages public before all replies had arrived, but he indicated that the telegrams were not encouraging.

The manufacturers take the position that to lease their properties to the state for any length of time would put them out of private business, would disrupt their dealer and commercial contacts.

Gov. Horner before leaving here this morning to attend Mayor Kelly's inauguration tonight, indicated that a lease to the state will be the only way the cement manufacturers can do business with the highway department unless they reduce their prices. A road building holiday is threatened.

Plants Can't Make Money.

"The plants can't make any money while they're closed," said the governor. "The state would pay a fair rental."

Gov. Horner twice has rejected all bids for the state's 3,300,000 barrel order because 16 companies submitted identical delivery prices averaging $1.62 a barrel, which was 68 cents higher than was paid by the state in the last year of former Gov. Emmerson's administration. The state then advertised for bids f. o. b. plants and the manufacturers replied with identical bids on delivery prices, ignoring the governor's request for prices at the mills.

The governor has announced he will appoint an engineer, an accountant and a production expert to investigate the cement industry. A legislative investigation is sought in resolutions pending in the executive committee of the senate.

The general's whereabouts had since been a mystery.

FOREST DISTRICT BOND DEFAULT QUIZ IS ORDERED

Market Price Juggling Conspiracy Charged.

Charges that payments of principal and interest on county forest preserve district bonds have meen deliberately defaulted in order to manipulate their market price and profit by redemptions at full value, were made at a meeting of the county board yesterday. The commissioners immediately ordered the finance committee to investigate the defaults and recent trading in the bonds.

The charges were made by Commissioner Grace Fleming on the basis of information which she said came from several La Salle street brokers. She explained that forest preserve bonds had been selling at 105—or $5 above the par value—in La Salle street until Dec. 15, 1931, when $100,000 in principal and $31,000 in accrued interest, were defaulted.

Force Price Down 47 Per Cent.

Following the default, she said, the prices of the bonds quickly dropped, the quotations declining gradually to 53 early in 1932. The decline, she explained, resulted as the bonds were stricken from the lists of approved paper investments under the laws of 38 states.

In May, 1932, the defaulted bonds were redeemed at 100 cents on the dollar, the commissioner said, thus giving those who purchased them at market prices a 47 per cent profit for a short time investment. A second issue of $500,000 defaulted on Jan. 1, 1932, recently has been retired, the forest preserve district paying the full par value.

"I now believe," said Commissioner Fleming, "that these defaults and still other defaults, which place the present total of defaulted bonds and interest of the forest preserve at $2,400,000, could have been averted.

Available Methods Untried.

"For county bonds we have issued refunding bonds. At times we have used tax anticipation warrants, which pay a higher interest rate than the bonds, to retire issues. A third method of averting this default would have been to sell tax anticipation warrants, of which the preserve district has not one outstanding, and pay off the bond issue.

"Not one of these things was attempted. Whoever bought those bonds at 53 on the market knew they were going to be redeemed not long afterward at par," continued Commissioner Fleming.

The investigation was ordered after a brief discussion during which several commissioners challenged the source of Commissioner Fleming's information. Commissioner Maurice Kavanaugh, chairman of the finance committee, was heard to comment, "We'll have the investigation but there's hardly any hope that the county will get anywhere with it."

Reject Bids for Cement.

The county board voted to reject ten bids for cement, the second received on a contract for 250,000 barrels to be purchased by the highway department. The ten bids were identical, each of the bidders quoting a price of $2 a barrel. Similar bids were found to have been made when the board advertised for cement bids a week ago.

The commissioners declared they would wait the state investigation of charges of collusion on the part of cement manufacturers, made recently when state highway bids also were found to be identical.

Assessor J. L. Jacobs yesterday informed the board that he may be compelled to reassess 400,000 small homes and twoflat buildings as a result of the recent order of the board of tax appeals for a horizontal reduction of 15 per cent in the base price of these classes of real estate improvements. His office would need a large appropriation for this work the assessor explained.

Assails Appeals Board.

"The action of the board of appeals is in the nature of a smoke screen for the big property owners," said the assessor. "This board ought to know where it's going to land. The appeals board order was issued one half an hour after the application for the order was filed with the board."

The board agreed to take no action pending the receipt of an opinion concerning the legality of the appeals order from Attorney General Otto Kerner. The assessor has announced that he will disregard the order until he has received the attorney general's opinion.

BILL FOR MERGER OF PARKS BEFORE ASSEMBLY TODAY

Friends and Foes of Plan Air Views Here.

As a curtain raiser for today's hearing in Springfield advocates and opponents of the bill to consolidate Chicago's three big park districts met at the Union League club yesterday to air their views. The bill will be considered this afternoon by the house committee on efficiency and economy.

As explained by one of its sponsors, Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg [Rep., Chicago], before the club's public affairs committee, the measure would consolidate the south, west, and Lincoln park systems, reduce the number of commissioners from nineteen to three, and provide that they be elected instead of appointed. At present Circuit judges name the south park commissioners and the governor appoints the two other boards.

Schnackenberg Explains.

Schnackenberg explained that the bill was drafted by Griffenhagen and associates at the request of the Illinois commission on taxation and expenditures. It was introduced by Schnackenberg and Representatives Michael Hennebry [Dem., Wilmington] and M. F. Browner [Rep., Mound City].

Schnackenberg urged the bill on many grounds, but made his strongest point on the desirability of eliminating the appointment of commissioners. He explained that under the proposed law the three commissioners would be chosen at the next aldermanic election in 1935, one for two years, one for four years, and the other for six years. Small parks could be consolidated with the big system by a referendum vote.

Merriam Opposes Elections.

Chairman Lester Falk of the club committee called for discussion after Schnackenberg concluded. One of the arguments which seemed to find much favor with those present was made by Prof. Charles E. Meriram of the University of Chicago, who opposed the election of the commissioners in favor of their appointment by the mayor of Chicago.

Others who spoke against the election of commissioners were representatives of the three large park systems. Michael L. Igoe spoke for the south parks, President Harry Joseph for the west park board, and Commissioner Martin H. Kennelly for the Lincoln park commissioners. Other speakers included Representative James T. Burns [Dem., Kankakee], chairman of the house committee on efficiency and economy.

THRONGS ATTEND INAUGURATION OF MAYOR KELLY

Asks Co-operation to Solve city's Problems.

the Democratic party realized its heavy responsibilities and had selected a man of energy, perseverance and constructive ability. The party was unanimous for Kelly, he said, because of his achievements.

Robert M. Sweitzer, Clayton F. Smith, and Judge John J. Sullivan were other speakers. Judge Sullivan urged that all citizens respond to the call to purchase tax anticipation warrants. The mayor, he said, could not do this alone.

The Rev. Theodore C. Hume, pastor of the New England church, opened the ceremony with an invocation. The entire inauguration ceremony was broadcast over W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE radio station.

NEW MAYOR'S ADDRESS

In his inaugural address in the city council chamber last night Mayor Edward J. Kelly said:

"Two years ago we witnessed in this hall a glorious and eventful scene. We cheered and applauded the new mayor, little knowing that we were watching the opening scene of a great tragedy.

"At that time our city was at the lowest mark in its history. Our treasury was empty. The criminal element had a strangle hold upon us. The whole world looked upon Chicago as if it were the very symbol of lawlessness. But an iron man had come to take hold of its affairs, and so marvelously did he perform that within less than two years he compelled the whole world to recognize that this is a city of God fearing and law abiding Americans—that we had the will and the power to raise ourselves to our rightful position among our sister cities.

"By the action of this council I am called to take the place made vacant by Anton J. Cermak. I am not prepared to present a detailed program. Time, since my election, was too short for that. But I do know the plight in which Chicago finds itself.

Cites Pay Roll Trouble.

"Our teachers, policemen, firemen, and other municipal employés have been working for months without pay.

"Economic conditions are making it increasingly difficult for our citizens to pay their taxes, while others able to do so are delaying or refusing payment.

"Two hundred thousand families are dependent upon public or private charity for their daily bread.

"The lawless elements of our city are not yet completely conquered.

"The cost of government has not yet reached the lowest possible figure consistent with good public service.

"These conditions present our major problems. To solve them I shall need your help. This is a council governed city, and while the law places responsibility upon the executive, it is my earnest hope that through conference and coöperation, mutual understanding between us will always prevail which will enable us to deal with all our major difficulties harmoniously.

Pledges Aid to Prosecutor.

"Chicago, for a great many years, has suffered from adverse criticism, some of it, I regret to say, justified. The claim had been made that law enforcement had broken down in Chicago. I am proud to say to you now that that impression has been dissipated to a great degree, and I pledge specifically the fullest coöperation with our able and energetic state's attorney in the administration of his office to the end that organized crime be effectively driven from our community.

"We are now approaching a great historic event in the life of our city. On June 1 we shall open to the world A Century of Progress exposition. We shall be visited, I hope, by millions coming from every quarter of the globe. It is my profound belief that we shall be able to give evidence of a real century of progress.

"I am inviting our fellow citizens to join me in presenting to our visitors Chicago as it really is—the heart and spirit of Chicago. A city great in population, great in physical, moral, and spiritual achievement, and a city full of hope and full of confidence in the far greater destiny that lies before it.

Pays Tribute to Nash.

"My remarks would not be complete were I not to pay tribute to a great leader who, justly, was your first choice for the position which I now have the honor to fill. The self-effacing sacrifice that Patrick A. Nash made by refusing to accept the honor proffered to him is only another evidence of his high character, loyalty and unselfishness.

"We have problems, but we shall meet them as men. I invite all of our citizens to join in the task. We shall not sell Chicago short. Her destiny is to reach the first place among the cities of the world. Let us begin now to carry her forward toward that destiny."

COUNCIL COMMITTEES CHOSEN

After the formal inauguration of Mayor Kelly the city council last night adopted the report of its committee on committees assigning the aldermen to committee memberships and chairmanships and setting up rules under which the council will function for the next two years.

An innovation in council rules was the regulation providing for the election of a president pro tem. to preside over the council meetings during a temporary absence or disability of the mayor. The council immediately selected Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th] for this position.

The council also recommended legislation by the Illinois general assembly that would give the council the power to subpoena witnesses and put them under oath.

TOWN ELECTION MERGER URGED BY GOV. HORNER

Voters in 80 Suburbs Go to Polls Today.

On the eve of the third election in Cook county towns within three weeks, Gov. Henry Horner declared himself last night in favor of a consolidation of elections so that small towns may hold all their elections on the same day. The governor was in Chicago to attend the inauguration of Mayor Edward J. Kelly.

Today the voters in 80 villages and towns throughout the county will go to the polls to choose officials. Scarcely two weeks ago many of them picked school board officials and on April 4—the date of the Chicago aldermanic runoff elections—other suburban elections were held.

Migh Have Saved $1,000,000.

Had an election consolidation bill now pending in the Illinois house of representatives been adopted earlier in the current session of the general assembly, it is said that the voters might have been saved more than $1,000,000. Representative Benjamin S. Adamowski [Dem., Chicago], who is handling the bill, will call it up for third reading this week so that the economy may be effected at later elections.

Gov. Horner believes in consolidation of elections "over a given area," he said. He was not familiar with the provisions of the Adamowski bill, he said, but does favor an act which would allow small towns to name all of their officials on the same day in order to save money for the taxpayers.

Mayor Cermak favored the Adamowski bill. It was introduced in the senate at his request by Senator George M. Maypole [Dem., Chicago] and passed by that body. Mr. Adamowski predicted that it would receive at least 77 votes in the house this week, so that, with the governor's signature, it would become effective on July 1.

Polls Open in 80 Villages.

Polls in the 80 villages will be open today from 6 a. m. to 5 p. m. The election will mark the inauguration of the so-called "perpetual harmony" plan in Wilmette, where the candidacies of Village President Carbon P. Dubbs and Treasurer Harry W. Miller have been indorsed. The fight in that suburb, however, comes over the election of three village trustees. The Village party ticket is opposed by three other candidates.

PAYING OF $2,500 ENDS DEAL FOR TRANSFER OF $4,000,000 HOTEL

New York, April 17.—[Special.]—On the payment of $2,500 in cash all right, title and interest in the Barbizon-Plaza hotel was transferred to day by order of Harold P. Coffin, referee in bankruptcy, from the Park Sixth Avenue corporation, which built it in 1929, to a newly organized corporation under the title of One Hundred and One West 58th Street corporation.

What the One Hundred and One West 58th Street corporation obtained for its expenditure of $2,500 was the possibility that the Barbizon-Plaza hotel, valued currently at $4,415,000 for the referee, would succeed in carrying the mortgage and secured obligations totaling $5,675,000 plus interest of $400,000 and including liens of $200,000.

When bankruptcy descended in 1931, the total of unsecured loans was $1,097,000, including $250,000 contributed by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman.

Sanitary Board to Delay Filling of Kelly's Post

Mayor Edward J. Kelly's post as chief engineer of the sanitary district will be left vacant for the present as an economy move, it was announced yesterday by Thomas J. Bowler, president of the sanitary board. Bowler said Mayor Kelly's resignation from the engineering post, which he has held since 1920, may be presented at the board meeting Thursday. H. J. Harrington, who was Mr. Kelly's first assistant and who has been a sanitary district employé for 27 years, probably will be made acting chief engineer.

FIND BODY OF MAN ON TRACKS.

Kewanee, Ill., April 17.—(AP)—The mangled body of a man about 30 found on the Rock Island railroad tracks near Wyanet Saturday remained unidentified today. A magazine found nearby more the name Dexter Lanfer and trade marks of Detroit and Ann Arbor clothing firms were on his garments. There was a crucifix from the Church of the Little Flower on the body.

ARMS EMBARGO RESOLUTION IS PASSED BY HOUSE

Vests Full Discretionary Power in President.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 17.—[Special.]—The house of representatives voted today to give President Roosevelt full discretionary authority to prohibit the shipment of arms from this country to nations engaged in war.

By a vote of 252 to 109, the house adopted the administration arms embargo resolution and sent it to a dubious fate in the senate. Considerable opposition to the proposal has been shown in the higher body and the resolution is expected to provoke a heated controversy before it is finally disposed of. The senate foreign relations committee is to begin consideration immediately.

As it passed the house today the resolution gives to the President full power to declare an embargo against the shipment of munitions to foreign nations engaged in or threatened with war.

See League Involved.

He would first secure the coöperation of other neutral powers in cutting off war supplies, and it was this provision which led opponents of the measure to brand it a back door entrance to the league of nations. It was also charged that the President would have authority under the resolution to designate the aggressor in a foreign conflict and to direct the embargo against this so-called aggressor nation alone.

The vote today followed almost strictly party lines, although 22 Democrats deserted their party to vote with the Republicans, and 9 minority members voted with the Democrats.

Beaten in Hoover Régime.

The embargo plan originated during the Hoover administration, but was scuttled in the senate last session following approval by the house. The Roosevelt administration, however, introduced a similar resolution at the beginning of the extra session.

The Illinois delegation voted as follows:

Indian Joe Huszar, once chief of police of Broadview and the terror of west suburban roads, was buried yesterday in Oakridge cemetery. He died Saturday night in the hospital at Joliet penitentiary, where he was serving a 1 to 14 year sentence for assault with intent to kill a motorist.

The body was claimed by Huszar's son, George, and taken to Oakridge for burial. Huszar's wife, Margaret, from whom he had been estranged since he fled with another woman after his conviction, attended the funeral.

Huszar had been ill for 10 months in the prison hospital. Last summer he appeared before the parole board and sought his freedom. Prison physicians blocked the move with the statement that Huszar had suffered a mental breakdown and was not in fit condition to be released.

MOUNTAIN CABIN BROUGHT TO FAIR ON MOTOR TRUCK

A North Carolina log cabin, destined to show visitors at A Century of Progress how mountaineers live, arrived in Chicago by truck yesterday and was set up in the rear of the Rutledge tavern on the World's Fair grounds.

The truck on which the cabin arrived was driven from the hills of North Carolina by Miss Lucy Morgan, a native mountain girl, who studied at the University of Chicago and then returned to her home to instruct her neighbors in handicraft work. Mrs. E. L. Hensley, 414 Diversey parkway, who has spent her summers for many years in teaching in mountain communities, interested Miss Morgan in making an exhibit of the mountain cabin at the fair.

WAR DEBTS GIVE U. S. LEVERAGE IN TRADE PARLEYS

World Is Forced to Come to Roosevelt.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 17.—[Special.]—The announcement by former Premier Edouard Herriot of France upon embarking for America today that he would propose to President Roosevelt a lump sum settlement of the war debts owed the United States was received by administration officials with polite expressions of mild interest.

M. Herriot, it was explained, is at liberty to make any representations he sees fit. Whether, however, he can get a hearing on the debt question at the White House at this time is problematical.

In the first place, President Roosevelt has made clear that he is chiefly interested in discussing world economic recovery measures with the foreign statesmen who will confer with him next week. In the second place, he has indicated doubt of the wisdom of discussing debt reduction with defaulters, of whom France is one.

Will Talk with British.

That the President will discuss debt reduction with Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain is not doubted, but, according to administration spokesmen, it will be to impress upon the British emissary that there is no chance of procuring consideration of a revision of the debt settlements unless the debtors are prepared to make concessions with regard to tariffs, embargoes, quota and exchange restrictions, monetary standards and disarmament.

Mr. MacDonald is already aware of the President's position in this matter, for Mr. Roosevelt has told the British ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, that there is absolutely no hope of inducing the American people to reduce the debts unless they are convinced that it is to their interest to do so.

That is, if the European debtors should be willing to enter into economic agreements which would open foreign markets to American products and revive business generally the American people might be willing to scale down the debts.

May Negotiate Next Payment.

It is possible, however, that an agreement between the President and the debtor nation envoys will be reached with regard to the June 15 payments. If the conversations next week should give promise of the basis of an economic agreement, the President, administration officials suggest, will be likely to ask congress for authority to postpone the June 15 payments, if he deems it desirable.

It might be that request for such authority would be coupled with the request the President is to make of congress at no distant date for authority to negotiate reciprocal tariff agreements.

The world economic conference in which will fructify any understanding reached at the White House conferences is scheduled to meet in London about the middle of June. The President, it is suggested, may come to the conclusion that postponement of the debt payments due at that time would promote a satisfactory issue of the economic conference.

American Leadership Accepted.

Much printer's ink is being spilled upon the dramatic aspect of the events to take place in Washington next week. The statesmen of all the world powers are trekking to the American capital to consult the American President on ways and means of getting the world out of the economic dumps.

The world has accepted American leadership, defers to the wisdom of the author of the new deal, etc.

The fact is, as is well recognized by Mr. Roosevelt and his advisers, that the statesmen of the world powers are coming because they want the debts they owe America reduced, if not canceled, and realize there is no earthly chance of attaining their objective unless they fall in with the prerequisites prescribed by the American President. Mr. Roosevelt has said that economic agreements must be discussed first, and the firmness with which he has maintained this position has caused the debtor powers to capitulate.

Britain Changes Tune.

When it was seen that Mr. Roosevelt was not to be swerved from this stand, Great Britain surrendered, right on the heels of a pronouncement by Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, that the British government did not purpose to swap debt revision for economic concessions. Now Mr. MacDonald is saying that he is ready to enter into low tariff agreements with the United States.

Intimations of willingness to modify the Ottawa empire trade agreements are even emanating from their government officials.

Upon this phase of the question the visit to Washington of the Canadian prime minister, Richard B. Bennett, will have an important, perhaps a decisive, bearing. What with American tariff policies and the Ottawa agreements Canada has drifted commercially away from the United States. A new economic deal might restore the old relationship whereby Canada was America's best customer.

HERRIOT OFF FOR U. S. WITH FRENCH SCHEME ON DEBT

Hopes to Pave Way for Lump Sum Deal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVRE, France, April 17.—France's scheme to wipe out the war debt with a lump sum payment is expected to be heard again when Edouard Herriot, France's special representative, reaches Washington for economic conversations with President Roosevelt.

This scheme became prominent when the former allies met at Lausanne last July and reduced Germany's reparations bill from 64 billion dollars to 714 million dollars.

Rôle of Observer.

The former premier, whose government was ousted in mid-December because he urged France to make the $19,261,432 debt payment to the United States, sailed today aboard the Ile de France. As he departed it was repeated that he is merely an observer and has no authority to make commitments. Nevertheless, it is conceded that he will be a powerful influence in shaping any basis on which future authorized representatives will negotiate in the matter of war debts.

Serving as an observer, a rôle which the United States time after time has used in its post-war European dealings, Herriot will attempt to point out the importance the Lausanne agreement—with its supplementary "gentlemen's agreement"—has upon the future political and economic well-being of Europe.

Herriot and Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain led the negotiations which resulted in reaching a satisfactory arrangement with the Germans at Lausanne. It is altogether likely that they again will mention that Britain and France paid the United States with reparations money received from Germany.

Debt Subject Looms Large.

The French debt to the United States is $3,921,547,000 with the December payment in default. The payment due on June 15 has not been included in the current budget. If Herriot does clear the way for an offer of a lump sum payment future negotiations may be concluded by Andre de la Boulaye, new French ambassador to Washington. France agrees that the debts are only a part of the program of world economic recovery, but the subject looms large in French parliamentary and press discussions.

In his bon voyage to Herriot President Albert Lebrun said:

"This note is to convey my greetings and good wishes at the moment you start across the ocean. A pleasant journey, a successful mission, and a happy return!"

Had Two Alternatives.

Dwelling on Herriot's commission, a foreign office spokesman said:

"Premier Daladier had two alternatives: first, to send Herriot to Washington with last December's debt installment in a satchel, which he could not do because of the opposition in the chamber of deputies, and, second, to send him as an unofficial observer of the type America has been sending abroad since the war. The second alternative was chosen."

MacDonald Busy with Staff.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD S. S. BERENGARIA, April 17.—Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain settled down to work today with his staff of experts. He expects to be busy the rest of the voyage preparing for his negotiations with President Roosevelt in Washington.

He worked today with Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, chief economic adviser of the board of trade department and Sir Robert Vansittart, permanent undersecretary of the foreign office.

The Berengaria today passed the Empress of Britain, crack Canadian liner returning to England from a world cruise. Capt Latta of the Empress of Britain sent the following message to Capt Brittain of the Berengaria:

"Please convey my compliments to the prime minister and his staff, wishing them bon voyage."

To this the Berengaria's skipper replied:

"The prime minister asks me to convey to you his warm thanks for your message and hopes this meeting with the Empress of Britain on its successful conclusion of a world voyage may prove a happy omen for his visit to the United States."

Brazil Picks Parley Leader.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 17.—Dr. Assis Brasil, Brazilian ambassador to Argentina, will head Brazil's delegation to President Roosevelt's economic conference, it was announced today. Dr. Brasil, former assistant ambassador to the United States, will sail tomorrow, going by way of Cherbourg, France. The rest of the Brazilian delegation will go directly to the United States later in the month.

Dr. Brasil is a student of economics and international law. He was recently appointed special envoy to return the visit here of the prince of Wales, but will attend the Washington conferences first.

Bennett Ready to Depart.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Canada, April 17.—Premier Richard B. Bennett will leave Saturday or Sunday for Washington to discuss economic questions with President Roosevelt. It is believed that money and exchange, trade and tariffs will be given chief attention.

ROBBERY IS SUCH FATIGUING WORK, MARION ALLOWS

Marion Harrison, 19 years old, 1946 West Lake street, a Negro, was given the title of Chicago's laziest bandit after his arrest early yesterday for the robbery of three men on the platform of the Lake street elevated station at Paulina street. A second colored youth, Arthur Jones, 18 years old, 1940 Fulton street, was held as Harrison's alleged accomplice in the first of the three holdups.

The first victim was Ernest Luehr, 19 years old, 1551 North Massasoit avenue, the son of the Rev. Henry Luehr, a retired Lutheran minister. Two colored youths took Luehr's Easter costume and left him attired in shoes, socks, and underwear. Luehr reported the robbery to the Warren avenue police and Policemen Hugo Olson and Edward Pelch went to the elevated station. At the foot of the stairs they met Frank Ostertag, 529 South Maple avenue, Oak Park, who reported that he also had just been robbed by a Negro. The policemen went up the stairs and surprised Harrison in the act of robbing Raymond Keller, 1432 North Hoyne avenue, by holding him up with a corncob pipe which he held as if it were a pistol in his coat pocket.

"Why didn't you leave the station after robbing Luehr?" the police asked Harrison.

"My feet hurt," Harrison said, "and I was sleepy."

BEER BILL FACES RENEWED FIGHT IN LEGISLATURE

Chances of Passage Are Doubtful.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 17.—[Special.]—Two days of battling over the state beer regulation bill appeared in prospect tonight as members of the general assembly gathered in preparation for the week's work beginning tomorrow.

It has been found necessary to send the measure back to second reading in the house for a technical amendment tomorrow and this is expected to reopen the door for the proposal of additional amendments by its opponents with promise of some heated arguments. And Wednesday it is planned to call up the bill on final passage, which will provide the second day of parliamentary fighting.

The general opinion tonight is that when that stage is reached the administration will have great difficulty in mustering the 102 favorable votes required to pass the bill as an emergency act to take effect as soon as it is signed by Gov. Horner.

Odds Against Success.

While there has been no actual betting there is a widespread agreement that the odds against the bill receiving 102 votes are about 3 to 1. Proponents of state regulation disagree with this estimate, but they decline to voice any certainty of passage with the emergency clause. They simply say that they think the bill will get the required number of votes without stating any grounds on which the belief is based.

Representatives Matt Franz and James P. Boyle, Chicago Democrats who have been active in leadership for state control, the former being chairman of a special committee steering the bill, are here on the grounds and say they are optimistic, but so far as can be learned neither has made an actual count of noses to justify the opinion.

Neutral observers point out that in the amendment scraps last week the voting was not indicative of what the final vote on passage will be. For example, there were 96 votes against a local option proposal, but it is known that some of those who voted against the optional creation of dry districts are not for the bill but against it.

Even the recalling of three wet Democrats who strayed from the fold on that roll call and the addition of two more Republicans who remained silent but are said to be with the bill, it is contended, would not raise the total vote to 102 even if the 96 anti-local optionists supported it.

It also is recalled that opposition to the bill last week showed a strange lineup of ardent drys beside ardent wets who are opposed to regulation or to "state interference in local affairs." The companionship is expected to continue this week, although some of the radical wets may do nothing more than disappear when the roll call is neared.

Amend to Change Date.

The necessity for sending the bill back to second reading, the amending stage, after last week's battling carried it up to third reading, the final stage where the vote on passage is taken, arises from the fact that it now provides for effectiveness on April 7, the day the federal law took effect. If it were passed in this form no time would be allowed for dispensers to obtain their licenses.

The present proposal is to strike out the April 7 date and to let the bill stand on the usual emergency clause making it effective, if it is passed, when it is signed by Gov. Horner. As it usually requires about ten days or two weeks for the governor to act on a bill after its passage that period would allow dispensers to get within the law.

TAX ON BEER HELPS TO FILL FEDERAL NEED

Other Revenue Taps Flowing Slower.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 17.—[Special.]—Beer taxes, although they are bringing in millions, are being offset by declines in other sources of government revenue. The net result is a very small increase in the total income, treasury reports showed today.

Daily collections, including the beer taxes, are running about on a par with those in February and other pre-banking holiday months, the records show. Beer income, therefore, is thus far filling up a hole left by failure of old taxes.

Plugging Up Tax Holes.

This is the second time that additional taxation has been nullified by declines in old taxes. After congress had imposed a long list of nuisance levies a year ago, slumps in the income tax and other revenue sources have cut down the current revenue until it amounts to little more than before the additional taxes were enacted.

Beer taxes may begin to add to the estimated tax returns, if the excise taxes stage a comeback from the severe blow dealt them by the banking holiday. Based largely on consumption, the "nuisance taxes" were to be decimated by the tying up of business in the banking holiday. Moreover, collections were slowed up and made eventually more difficult in many cases by the closing of the banks.

Beer Tax Still Uncertain.

The treasury still is uncertain about the actual yield of the beer taxes. Lacking reports on the income from beer, experts have been unable to estimate the beer taxes because there has been no increase in total collections. If there had been an increase much of it could have been attributed to beer.

Duty on Imported Beer Will Be $31 a Barrel

Washington, D. C., April 17.—(AP)—Imported beer will not have to pay the $5 a barrel internal revenue tax that is applied to domestic beer, but a $31 a barrel duty is charged for its entrance to the country.

Dow said the internal revenue tax had been levied against imported beer until it was discovered that the law legalizing beer did not mention imported beverages.

Miss Butler was for a number of years vice chairman of the New York Republican state committee. She resigned several months ago. She and her husband will live in London.

HELD FOR BOND THEFT; FORGED CHICAGO CHECKS

Los Angeles, Cal., April 17.—(AP)—A man identified by police as Dandrige H. Bibb, a member of a prominent San Francisco family, was under arrest here tonight on a variety of felony charges after being caught at Tucson, Ariz., with $60,000 in negotiable bonds police allege were stolen 18 months ago in a New York robbery.

Charges of theft, forgery, and being a fugitive from justice were placed against Bibb.

Police said the securities, described as easily negotiable, consisted of one $50,000 collateral debenture issued by the Federal Intermediate Credit bank of Columbia, S. C.; four State of Maryland $1,000 bonds, and nine Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean railroad $1,000 bonds.

SERVES IN PONTIAC.

Chicago police records carry the name of Dandrige H. Bibb for years back, showing that he was accused at various times of swindling. In 1906 he served six months in the county jail, and still later spent a similar period at Pontiac. His latest difficulties date back to 1923, when he was indicted on charges of depositing worthless checks, amounting to $15,000, in what was then the Illinois Merchants' Trust company.

They stole $35 from Walter McLean in his store at 5501 Belmont avenue, then invaded the Kimball pharmacy, 3401 Fullerton avenue, and got $25 there. Ten minutes later they menaced Dr. Sol Magland in his drug store at 3634 North avenue, getting another $25. The last robbery was in Small's pharmacy at 3373 Milwaukee avenue, which netted the gunmen $35.

have much to say regarding appointments and political plums.

Probably the largest single enterprise with which he became connected as a result of his political power was the Cook County Trust company, of which he owned a majority of the shares. The trust company was purchased from Rosenberg in June, 1932, by the Phillip State Bank and Trust company, which bought outright $200,000 worth of preferred stock and 10,000 shares of common stock. The bank has since closed, carrying with it the trust company.

Receivership Suit Started.

Shortly after the purchase of the trust company by the bank a receivership suit was filed against the company, naming the officers of the bank as defendants. The suit, filed by a receiver for a subsidiary property, charged that assets of the trust company were transferred to the bank at a time when the directors knew the bank was insolvent. The case was settled out of court and Judge Philip J. Finnegan dismissed the action.

Since his recent political power Rosenberg has constantly been a storm center in the Democratic party. He has been accused several times in investigations of political patronage, but nothing has ever developed. The present federal action will be the first actual prosecution of charges against the political leader in almost a decade and a half.

Sentenced to U. S. Prison.

Rosenberg with two other defendants was indicted in the federal courts Feb. 8, 1915, on three counts, charging conspiracy to steal from interstate shipments. He was found guilty on March 20, and on April 20 was sentenced to serve 20 months in Leavenworth prison by Federal Judge George A. Carpenter. The other defendants were sentenced to 15 months and 7 months respectively.

According to the indictment, Rosenberg who at the time was running a junk yard, conspired with the other defendants to steal 15 bars of copper, valued at $300, from two freight cars. In connection with the theft a railway employé was given a $10 bribe.

Rosenberg also had a record in the state courts, it is said, but all data regarding him has been removed from the police bureau of investigation.

Order Companies' Records.

Among the companies whose records were ordered produced for today's investigation by the federal grand jury are: N. Kramer & Co., 1359 West 21st street; Morris & Cohn, 540 East 13th street; Benjamin Harris & Co., 11th and State streets, Chicago Heights, and Al A. Cohn and Brothers, 5429 Roosevelt road, Cicero.

Among the individuals subpoenaed are Max A. Witz, 232 Pine avenue; Gilbert Cohn, 540 West 13th street; J. E. Sullivan of the Garfield State bank; W. T. Slock, Harry Barthing, Byron Kent, and Harry Davis, all of the First National bank.

It is expected that the presentation of the evidence on Rosenberg's case will be rapid. Federal officials said that, unless additional facts are developed, the evidence would all be in by Thursday and that the grand jury should be able to take action by Friday or Saturday.

Cases of Other Politicians.

Rosenberg is the fourth Cook county politician of prominence to be investigated as a tax dodger by a federal grand jury. Gene G. Oliver, Republican and one time member of the board of assessors, was convicted and is serving his sentence. Lawrence O'Brien, former state representative and a Democrat, recently completed his term in Leavenworth prison and came back to attend a mammoth homecoming party given by his friends. The third man was Chris Paschen, building commissioner under the last Republican city administration. He is awaiting a decision on an appeal he took after being convicted of tax dodging.

6 JUDGES NAMED BY BOTH PARTIES JOIN DEMOCRATS

De Young and Five Others Quit G. O. P. Slate.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Six Republican judges who were nominated on Saturday on both major tickets withdrew their names yesterday from the Republican ticket and decided to run under the Democratic circle in the June 5 judicial elections.

They were headed by Justice Frederic R. De Young of the Supreme court, who tops the ticket and who was nominated by both Republican and Democratic conventions of the 7th Supreme district. The other five Republican judges who chose to run with the Democrats on a fusion ticket instead of on a straight Republican ticket were Circuit Judges Kickham Scanlan, Hugo M. Friend, David F. Matchett, William V. Brothers and Daniel P. Trude.

Accept Nash's Invitation.

By noon yesterday, following the request of Patrick A. Nash, Democratic party leader, the six had formally advised Democratic headquarters that they had signed withdrawals from the Republican ticket.

The Democratic fusion ticket which will be filed at Springfield contains all the sitting Circuit judges who are running for reëlection, except one, David M. Brothers. Besides the five Republican Circuit judges who were named on both tickets and decided to run under the Democratic fusion banner, the Democratic ticket contains three other Republican judges, Michael Feinberg, Stanley Klarkowski and George Fred Rush. These three were not nominated by the Republicans.

Undecided on Substitutes.

The Republican county committee, after hearing the news, met and decided to go ahead with their party ticket. The withdrawal of the six judges, who include some of the cream of the bench, although it was not a surprise, removed from the Republican ticket its strongest candidates.

Whether the vacancies on the ticket will be filled by the Republicans is still to be determined. There was a conference last night at the Bismarck hotel, at which no decision was reached. The program is to file the ticket as nominated Saturday, and after the withdrawals are formally filed at Springfield, the committee lawyers say, there will be two weeks' time in which they can fill the vacancies, if they so decide.

Last night some of the committeemen were strongly urging that six new candidates be picked, including a Republican nominee to run against Justice De Young in the 7th district, but older heads in the committee were counseling that a partial ticket would prove more effective. It was argued that to fill out the ticket would dilute whatever chance the Republicans might have of putting some candidates across in the election.

19 Incumbents on Ticket.

As affairs stand, the Democratic fusion ticket contains 19 sitting judges among the nominees for the 23 bench positions to be filled—20 Circuit, one Supreme, and two Superior court places. The Republican ticket includes one sitting Republican judge, David M. Brothers, whose son, Judge William B. Brothers, has elected to run under the Democratic circle.

The Republicans are pinning their hopes on the action of the Chicago Bar association. The Democratic fusion ticket contains 17 Circuit judges, nine of them Democrats and eight Republicans. Of these 17, the bar primaries withheld indorsement of five. The expectation of the Republicans is that the bar association will indorse a slate of 20 Circuit court judges picked from the two party tickets, and that bar support is likely to be given five or six nominees on the Republican ticket.

The Republican committee officials said last night that there has been no talk of individual assessments upon candidates; that this may be forgotten and an effort be made to raise a campaign fund from other sources. They declared the 15 remaining candidates for the Circuit court left on their ticket after the withdrawal of the five sitting judges have called up to say they will stick.

Consider Repeal Action.

As legislators departed for Springfield last night, one question was whether the election of delegates to the convention to ratify prohibition repeal should be held June 5, at the time of the bench elections.

The general assembly is being criticized for its delay in setting up the machinery for a ratifying convention. Early in the session hopes were expressed by the legislative leaders that Illinois would be first to ratify. But Michigan was first and more than 20 other states have beaten Illinois to it in deciding on machinery for ratification or rejection of the 21st amendment, which repeals the 18th.

The present proposal is to elect 50 delegates in the state at large. Professional drys are expected to renew their efforts to have the delegates elected by congressional districts, these being 32 years old and all out of proportion to the growth and shifting of population.

Last night Cook county house leaders in leaving for Springfield urged that the June 5 bench election be set as the date for electing delegates to the ratification convention, and the opposition to this was reported to be coming most strongly from the downstate bench on the ground that it would bring the repeal issue into the judicial election.

To remove partisan politics, the proposal was renewed that the conduct of the repeal campaign be turned over to the Crusaders, militant anti-prohibitionists, to keep partisan politics out of it, while the dry organizations might pick the slate of anti-repeal candidates for delegates, thus making the issue clean-cut wet and dry.

E. E. KRETSCHMER.

Edward E. Mr. Kretschmer was appointed purchasing agent for all Chicago elevated railroads in 1911, and in 1926 assumed similar duties with the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad, Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad, and the Metropolitan Motor Coach company.

CONTEST TO SAVE WINDOWS PART OF CLEANUP DRIVE

As the annual clean-up, paint-up and plant-up campaign opened yesterday with 600,000 school children actively engaged, the sponsoring group, the Chicago Association of Commerce, announced a contest aimed to reduce window breaking in schools, which costs the board of education around $150,000 annually.

A cup will be presented each May to the school having the least number of broken windows. The winner of the award three years in succession will be given permanent possession of the trophy.

The Association of Commerce estimated that more than $1,000,000 was expended by householders and property owners cooperating in the annual cleanup campaign last year. Thus, in addition to beautifying the city, it was pointed out, the campaign is a boon to business.

Delegations of school children yesterday morning opened the campaign by distributing publicity material at various schools. The first copy of the official clean-up, paint-up and plant-up poster was presented in the afternoon to officers of the Chicago High School Clean-up Campaign league by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health.

SIP FIRST BEER IN HOUSE CAFE IN 16 YEARS

Washington, D. C., April 17.—(AP)—"Prosit!" cried one congressman; "Skoal!" said a second; "Here's how!" shouted two others—and the new 3.2 beer officially was put on sale today in the house restaurant on the first floor of the capitol.

The "Prosit!" was Representative Delaney of New York; the "Skoal!" Representative Berlin of Pennsylvania, and the "Here's hows!" Representatives Boylan of New York and Fernandez of Louisiana.

They bought the first beer sold in the capitol in 16 years. They drank while Frank Verdi, restaurant manager, poured. And they followed the instructions of the boss of the restaurant—Chairman Warren of the house accounts committee—that all the drinkers must be seated. The members consumed 720 bottles.

HEAD OF D. A. R. URGES SUPPORT OF GOVERNMENT

Advises Against Attempt to Dictate to It.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 17.—[Special.]—Mrs. Russell William Magna, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, in welcoming them today to their 42nd annual congress, urged them to "uphold government, not dictate to it."

Enthusiastic applause from most of the 3,000 delegates assembled in Constitution hall seemed to indicate an approval so overwhelming that it would cut short the rumored revolt of some of the old régime against this new, more liberalized policy.

Would Reject Extremes.

Reminding her audience that "every one has an undisputable right to an individual opinion," Mrs. Magna warned against "entrenching yourselves in a past, no matter how worthy," and added, with extreme pointedness, some felt, that:

"Balanced minds go with balanced budgets. The sooner we reject extremes for temperate thought, superlatives for honest descriptions, the sooner will radical thought on any subject become reasonable and sane."

A little later, however, Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, a former D. A. R. president, with equal pointedness, warned the women that they should "go forward, not backward," and sought to rally them to a sprightly attack on any reduction in national defense appropriations, which she termed "false economy."

Dry Kansan Speaks.

And still later another past president, Mrs. George T. Guernsey, prominent in Republican politics in dry Kansas, caused considerable consternation when she qualified her support of President Roosevelt with the following prohibition pronouncement:

"Nevertheless, we entertain no false hopes that more beer will bring business. Less beer and more bread is what is needed today; more sobriety and less riotry. A sober pilot at the nation's helm is more needed than sober drivers at the wheels of cars."

Into the amazed faces of many of the delegates Mrs. Guernsey smiled complacently and added:

"Pardon these words from a Kansas woman. She has breathed the sober air of her fertile fields and orderly cities too long to be content that any other region in our noble land shall be deprived of similar blessings."

The suggestions received no applause.

Preparedness Plea Applauded.

There was a great burst of applause when Mrs. Magna urged adequate preparedness for America, and warned against recognition of soviet Russia.

A 100 per cent national defense program, she argued, is a 100 per cent insurance policy for America.

"All the defense measures, and they have many ramifications, are essential," she said, "to the preservation and protection of the nation and the welfare of our people."

As for the D. A. R.'s opposition to the recognition of soviet Russia Mrs. Magna pointed out that it should not be based on the fact that it is a form of government different to most, for "any country has a right to any form of government it desires"; but that it should be based on the fact that Russia has "for its avowed purpose the destruction of our system of government."

Oppose Recognizing Russia.

Less than half an hour later the D. A. R. congress translated its president's wishes into action when it adopted a resolution opposing Russian recognition and ordered that copies of the resolution be sent to President Roosevelt, Vice President Garner, and Secretary of State Hull.

Mrs. Charles E. Herrick of Chicago, one of the vice presidents, leads an Illinois delegation of nearly one hundred. As chairman of A Century of Progress exhibition committee Mrs. Herrick will tell the convention Thursday of the D. A. R. exhibit at the coming Chicago fair.

Tonight Secretaries Wallace and Perkins, Senator Tom Connally of Texas, and Ruth Bryan Owen, minister designate to Denmark, delivered addresses.

SECRETARY WALLACE TELLS PERILS OF D.A.R. TO THEIR CONVENTION

Washington, D. C., April 17.—[Special.]—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, booked for a speech tonight before the Daughters of the American Revolution congress, stood up before them in Constitution hall and said he had forgotten the engagement until seven o'clock this evening. When, he said, he remarked to his associate in the agriculture department that he guessed he'd just go over and speak extemporaneously, his colleague replied:

"My God, man, don't you know that more public figures have been ruined by saying the wrong thing before that organization than before any other?"

The three thousand D. A. R. delegates thought that was very funny.

GOTHAM LAWYER LEAVES ESTATE OF 10 MILLIONS

New York, April 17.—[Special.]—Louis Cass Ledyard, lawyer and philanthropist, who died Jan. 27, 1932, left an estate valued in a transfer tax appraisal filed today at $10,820,456, gross, and $10,326,401 net. The principal asset was in securities totaling $9,621,402.

A bequest of $2,000,000 is made to the New York public library, Astor Lenox and Tilden foundations. The Morgan library receives a bequest of $250,000.

After making bequests totaling more than $500,000 to forty-five beneficiaries the bulk of the estate is bequeathed to the widow, Mrs. Isabel Ledyard, who receives property in Newport, R. I., $500,000 in trust, and a bequest of $1,000,000, and his son, Louis Cass Ledyard, who is named residuary legatee.

BULLETIN.

Decatur, Ala., April 17.—(AP)—A fiery cross was found burning on a highway bridge here tonight and police said two Negroes were seen running after the large cross burst into flames.

Decatur, Ala., April 17.—[Special.]—Judge James E. Horton today ordered indefinite postponement of the second trial of seven Negroes charged with assaulting two white girls because, the court held, a purported criticism of Alabama juries by Samuel L. Leibowitz of New York, chief of defense counsel, had prejudiced the cases against his own clients.

Judge Hortor based his decision on a statement reprinted from a New York newspaper quoting Leibowitz concerning the character of the jury which recently voted the death penalty for Haywood Patterson, first of the eight to face trial here after all had been sentenced to death at Sottsboro.

What Lawyer Said.

"If you ever saw those creatures, those bigots whose mouths are slits in their faces, whose eyes pop out at you like frogs, whose chins drip tobacco juice, bewhiskered and filthy, you would not ask how they could do it," was the statement attributed to the New York lawyer, whom the International Labor Defense [communist] had retained to defend the Negroes.

Judge Horton said that he did not know whether the New Yorker had made the statement attributed to him.

"It could make little difference whether he actually said it or not," the judge observed. "The effect would be the same. The published statement was uncalled for, and the accused must be a victim of this statement, whether uttered or not. His leading attorney would, as a result of this statement, be a millstone around his neck."

Patterson to Die June 16.

The court then pronounced sentence on Patterson, decreeing that he die in the electric chair June 16, as the jury found, and continued the case against Charles Weems, second of the Scottsboro defendants.

Leibowitz was not present, having failed to return from New York. His associate, Attorney Joseph R. Brodsky, also of New York, said:

"Leibowitz's view is that in Decatur and the south the white workers are imbued with the idea of white supremacy and that only in union of the white and Negro workers warring against a ruling class can they obtain their ends," Brodsky averred.

Attorney General Joseph Knight, who prosecuted Leibowitz's client, objected "to such orations in an Alabama court," and Judge Hordon halted Brodsky's speech.

"Social equality cannot be advocated in my presence," he said.

Iowa Issues Licenses for Beer to Flow Tomorrow

Des Moines, Ia., April 17.—(AP)—Applications for wholesale beer dispensing licenses mounted toward the thousand mark today. State Treasurer Leo J. Wegman pushed plans forward at top speed to bring 3.2 per cent beer to Iowa by Wednesday. The state treasurer licenses wholesale dealers and brewers, but so far no applications have come from the latter. Concerns of known standing will get permits Wednesday; others will be delayed pending investigations.

"I walk 6 miles a day on my job—stoop down dozens of times!"

says ANN MAHER, New York waitress

"My stockings used to give out in no time—go into runs or holes at the heels, until . . .

". . . I learned how to save my stockings. Another girl who used to have the same trouble told me the reason my stockings wore out so quickly was because I rubbed the life out of the silk with cake soap. 'Why don't you use Lux?' she asked me. 'It keeps the silk elastic so it gives when you bend, and stands a lot of strain.'

"So I tried a little experiment. I took two pairs of stockings, washed one pair every night the Lux way—the other I rubbed with cake soap. In four days I had a run and worn places in the heels of the cake-soap stockings. I've worn the Lux stockings fifteen days and they're still like new.

"I save lots of money on stockings now that I Lux them every night."

Miss Maher's 2-minute way

1. Use one teaspoon of Lux for each pair.
2. Add lukewarm water, squeeze suds through stockings, and rinse well.

Avoid ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips. These often contain harmful alkali, which weakens threads, fades color. Lux has no harmful alkali. Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

Mrs. E. M. Schellenger says —"With 1 box of LUX I washed 330 items . . .

48 pairs socks and stockings
12 pieces silk lingerie
62 child's woolen undies
83 diapers, pads, blankets
34 towels, washcloths, bibs
9 child's rompers, sweaters, cap
47 napkins, doilies
35 handkerchiefs
and I did the dishes 21 times for a family of six."

AH! Pain Stops

Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

GOVERNOR OLSON IRONIC TOWARD HIGHWAY REPORT

Raps Minnesota G. O. P. Senators' Work.

St. Paul, Minn., April 17.—[Special.]—Floyd B. Olson, Minnesota's Farmer-Labor governor, answered today state senators who for several weeks composed a committee investigating policies and practices of the state highway department.

"The report of the elder statesmen of the Republican party" the governor said, "who made up part of the senate highway investigating committee, would be interesting to the taxpayers of the state as a party document, if the cost to such taxpayers was substantially less than the $4,000 which will be expended therefor. Their devotion to the cause of their associate, Mr. Babcock, whom I inherited as highway commissioner, is touching.

Courts Active, He Asserts.

"Unfortunately for the elder statesmen, the constitution vests the judicial power of the state in our courts, and their findings with respect to contracts, have no sanction.

"Their denunciation of my order for a 48 hour week and payment of a minimum wage scale for highway work puts me in the anomalous position of being lined up with Mr. Herbert Hoover, the former President of the United States, who advocated and approved a federal law directing an eight hour day and a minimum wage scale for federal road work.

"The great engineer and the Minnesota elder statesmen seem to be at variance.

"The report will not be complete until an epilogue thereto can be written, containing the hearsay and rumor which were deliberately introduced in evidence by these distinguished members of the bar, and which were the major cause for the hearings.

"The elder statesmen will, no doubt, write that epilogue for use in the next campaign. Perhaps it too will bear the official insignia of the Black Hand, which became so familiar on Republican party documents in the last campaign."

Reports Are Contradictory.

Charles M. Babcock was state highway commissioner until Jan. 1, 1933, when he was removed by Gov. Olson. He told a house committee that the senate investigators had required him to testify as to stories reaching him in regard to the conduct of the department, as well as to things within his own knowledge.

On Saturday night committees from the senate and the house reported after investigating charges of collusion by contractors as well as charges against the governor and former Commissioner Babcock.

The senate committee's report charged paving contractors had combined on bids to make excess profits. It asked that the attorney general set aside contracts made in November, 1931. That report also urged that some orders by Gov. Olson be abrogated.

House Report Different.

The house committee report held that the qualifications the governor ordered for contractors were for the "best interests of the state." The contracts were approved. There was no criticism of Babcock or the governor. The house report said suits brought by taxpayers to cancel the contracts were "not brought in good faith."

ASK TRUE BILLS TODAY FOR 20 LOAN OFFICIALS

Eight Concerns Accused in Usury Case.

Assistant State's Attorney Emmett Moynihan will go before the Cook county grand jury today and ask indictments charging usury against 20 officials of eight Chicago loan companies. The prosecutor announced this intention yesterday in the Felony coprt, where Judge Matthew D. Hartigan continued a hearing on charges against the defendants until April 27.

The 20 defendants were arrested in recent raids by the state's attorney's police. The raids were made on the alleged information that the eight companies were charging excessive rates on small loans.

If he gains a conviction in the case, Prosecutor Moynihan said, he will ask the court to order the records of the companies destroyed to "free the slaves of usury."

Refuses Wage Injunction.

Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday refused to issue an injunction restraining creditors in seven bankruptcy cases from proceeding to collect on wage assignments.

The ruling was in apparent conflict with one given six months ago by Federal Judge George A. Carpenter when he restrained a creditor from attempting to collect on a wage assignment after the person who obtained the loan had been adjudged a bankrupt.

Judge Carpenter held that although under Illinois law a wage assignment is not terminated by a bankruptcy, the enforcement of such a law would nullify the intent of the bankruptcy law: to give a man a fresh start.

Judge Barnes, in ruling yesterday on the case of Edward J. Gustin and six other bankrupts, said:

"It is suggested that failure of the court to restrain enforcement of wage assignments implies a callous disregard of the sufferings of the weak. That the great mass of wage earners would be better off had the court come to a conclusion other than the above expressed, the court very much doubts. Under the law of Illinois as it now stands every man who has employment under a contract of employment, though it be for an indefinite time and although he has no other property, has some property [the employment contract] which he may pledge as security for a loan to carry him through a rainy day.

Prepare for Execution of Russel McWilliams, 18

The electric chair in the old prison at Joliet was prepared yesterday for the execution of Russel McWilliams, 18 year old Rockford slayer, who is to die Friday morning. Meanwhile, Clarence Darrow, veteran criminal lawyer, continued his effort in the youth's behalf to have the sentence commuted to life imprisonment. The board of pardons and paroles is to act on Darrow's plea tomorrow. Attorney Darrow expressed hope that Gov. Horner will commute the sentence.

Cermak Memorial Rites May 9; Farley to Speak

Memorial services for the late Mayor Cermak are to be held May 9, the 60th anniversary of his birth, in the Chicago Stadium, it was announced yesterday by Ald. Henry Sonnenschein [22d], for many years the late mayor's secretary. Postmaster General James A. Farley yesterday accepted an invitation to deliver the principal address at the services.

QUIZ MANAGER ON BOMBING OF CLEANING PLANT

Edward A. Fink, general manager of the Peacock Cleaners and Dyers, yesterday told Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coughlan, that he knew of no motive for the bombing early in the morning of the company's plant at 4742 North Racine avenue. The bomb, exploded on the roof, caused damage of $1,500 to the machinery and building.

Fink admitted that there is a price cutting war among Chicago cleaners but said that he had received no threats. He said that the Peacock company operated on a 25 cent a garment basis, and pointed out that other cleaners are working for still less.

The questioning of Fink came as a step in the announced policy of State's Attorney Courtney to break up the so-called trade racket associations. It was predicted yesterday in the Criminal court building that there would be grand jury action against one of the trade associations before the end of the present week.

In considering heating equipment

Values have been topsy-turvy for a year or so. Price slashing and bargains have been offered on everything from furniture to fuel.

But don't be confused by last winter's prices on fuel if you are considering new heating equipment.

Buying a burner is not like buying a bathtub, or anything else. The original cost is bad enough—but it's the upkeep that counts. The burner will have to be fed fuel at next winter's prices, and next, and NEXT. And every year you will have to pay for a pilot light, repairs, service, and depreciation besides.

Even last year, when substitute fuels were at the lowest prices ever, coal heat cost less, much less. In normal years, the savings from coal and coke are considerably greater.

The only way to figure (that is fair to yourself) is on costs over a five year average. Conservative estimates on actual bungalows, houses, apartments, buildings, and stores show that, over five years, coal heat has cost half as much as oil heat and a third as much as gas heat.

So look before you leap—look ahead at least 5 years. For real heating economy, safety, uniformity, dependability, and comfort, burn coal or coke. See the merchant in your neighborhood who is a member of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association. He will personally see that you get full weight and honest grading on every ton you buy.

has supplanted the rule-of-thumb

THE modern pharmacy affords a striking contrast with the apothecary shop of Shakespeare's day. No longer need herbs be gathered in the dark of the moon, and brewed with weird mumblings. No longer do amulets and charms possess healing powers.

Analysis and test have replaced superstition and guess-work; scientific exactness has supplanted the rule-of-thumb.

Your pharmacist of today has devoted years to study. He is armed with the discoveries of analytical chemistry. He works in surgical cleanliness, compounding prescriptions with exactness and care.

In almost as sharp a contrast are the advertising methods of the modern advertiser with the advertiser of a few years ago. Gone are the guess-work, the hit-or-miss methods of when and where to advertise, the mysteries which surrounded circulations and rates.

Today's advertiser can know his newspapers by careful study; by investigation and observation. He can determine their pulling power by test.

From unbiased sources he may learn every pertinent fact. In Philadelphia, for example, he can learn from auditor's reports that The Philadelphia Bulletin has more than half a million daily circulation... that it is all net paid... that no premiums or contests were used to obtain readers.

He may see by comparison that this circulation is more than two and one-half times that of any other Philadelphia evening newspaper, more than any Sunday newspaper, more than all Philadelphia morning newspapers combined.

A chart of newspaper history since 1895 will show him that The Bulletin has been Philadelphia's leading newspaper continually since 1905. It will show, too, that the number of daily newspapers during that period has been reduced from thirteen to five.

An impartial research by the American Association of Advertising Agencies provides details as to who reads The Bulletin; where they live; what they earn. It shows that preference for The Bulletin is outstanding in every important income group, and that the preference is greatest where incomes are high.

Linage records will show him how large advertisers invest their money: In 1932, The Bulletin led all of the two thousand daily newspapers in America in volume of national advertising carried.

By simple calculation he may learn that his advertising in this one newspaper will reach nearly every family in Philadelphia. And a comparison with other cities will show that his advertising cost in The Bulletin is one of the lowest among all newspapers in America.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

ROTTEN BOROUGH STATES.

Exact equalities in opportunities as between the various states of the Union were not to be expected, and in the American development have not appeared. There are inequalities imposed by nature, by the existence or absence of natural resources, and by the consequent variations in the character of the people produced by the different regions. Some states, with natural advantages of soil, arable or mineral, of location on lines of communication, will be more prosperous and will develop a more progressive, adventurous, and active citizenship than others. There will be compensations for this, but all states cannot be kept on the same level. Some will tend to be overpopulated in time and others will remain underpopulated and underdeveloped.

Constant attempts are made to equalize the relation of one state to another by means of federal subsidies. The states which prosper are forced to contribute to states which lag behind. This theory of political distribution of profits and advantages had its start in the federal administration of public domain and in the subsequent government of territories before they were admitted to the Union as states. Many territories which were wards of the federal government were given statehood prematurely and unwisely for political reasons. Party and sectional struggles sought votes, particularly in the United States senate, by organizing territories into states before the territories were able to take care of themselves. This carried into the federal scheme an enlargement of the idea that a backward state remained a just claimant for federal subsidies.

Out of this idea has flowed the volume of federal contributions, for an almost infinite number of purposes, which has reduced the federal budget to wreckage and which has drained the resources of the prosperous states to such an extent that they now in turn are at the door of the federal treasury for alms.

These states which have been so insignificant in the revenue books of the federal government and so conspicuous in the subsidy lists have been called many names, all of them truly descriptive. They are the almshouse states, the mendicant states, the pauper states, the subsidized states, the scenery states, etc. What they are chiefly, in truth, are the rotten borough states. They are properly so described because the composition of the United States senate, giving as it does equal representation to Idaho and New York, to Nevada and Illinois, creates the inequality of representation exemplified in the British parliament when the great manufacturing towns had nothing and the few inhabitants of Old Sarum were represented. The rotten borough system of Great Britain denied representation to the industrial life of the country and perpetuated the abuses of privileged classes. The privileged classes of the United States are now found in the rotten borough states of the Union which drain productive resources by means of oppressive taxation and utilize them for their own benefit.

ECONOMY WITH EFFICIENCY.

The chief of the army air corps told the house military affairs committee that though the original five year air corps program now in its seventh year is not yet completed, the program provides for only half the planes needed to put the army aviation establishment upon our proper relative footing among the first class powers.

Without prejudice to the expert knowledge that no doubt supports this opinion, it raises questions of policy a civilian may reasonably consider and which it is the duty of congress to determine. We suggest that the army ought not to expect to train all its pilots. It should look to civilian aviation to provide the basic training and personnel for military aviation. It should also be moderate in its expenditure in material. Obsolescence in planes is very rapid in the present stage of development and planes are so quickly built that stocking up beyond present requirements must involve a waste of money.

We think appropriation for aviation can be reduced without compromising any program carefully formulated with due regard to all practical conditions. Both army and navy expenditures can be cut substantially without impairing efficiency if the same searching criticism that is applied in private enterprise during these days of diminished revenue is applied to them.

HINT FOR SHIPPERS.

"Ten years' experience in handling cases before the interstate commerce commission." So read dozens of applications for positions with the traffic department of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE which have been received in recent years. These men consider that they have special qualifications for the handling of traffic problems because they have had training in the compilation of the various exhibits and data considered necessary to convince the interstate commerce commission that a railway freight rate is too high. The repetition of these instances leaves us wondering if the commercial traffic fraternity has not degenerated as, it is alleged, the railway traffic manager has.

Whether or not the man in charge of his traffic knows practical transportation from every angle is a matter that should be given serious attention by the Chicago business man at the present time. A waterway to the south is ready and its success depends on the use that Chicago will make of it. If the employés responsible for the movement of our traffic can think of nothing but dumping their problems on the doorstep of the interstate commerce commission we are somewhat fearful of the expansion of Chicago's commerce through this medium.

FINISH THE RACKETS.

State's Attorney Courtney has no duty which takes precedence of that he has now taken up, the breaking up of rackets. Nothing will more redound to his credit, not only in this community but throughout the country, than such achievement.

That the job is a hard one any one who has knowledge of the conditions on which the racketeer thrives fully appreciates. The professional criminal factor could be handled effectively in spite of the influence it exerts in corrupt politics. But it has the coöperation of business of a certain unscrupulous sort which uses the racket to injure competitors, and many men give support through fear. The respectable element drawn in through fear have an opportunity now to coöperate with Mr. Courtney and assist him to abolish the racket in this community. They must consult their fears less and their duty to reputable business and the city more. This requires perhaps some courage, but self-respect should supply it. If the victims of racketeering will stand up the state's attorney can give them protection and the press and public will certainly supply the campaign all the support it could ask. The rackets are intolerable and they can be abolished. They have stayed too long.

ON THE TAIL OF THE MIRAGE.

Miss Perkins, secretary of labor, has another pill she wants the employers to swallow. She says it may be bitter but it will do good. The President is said to agree with her. The pill is the minimum wage. The unanswered question in this, as in other proposals from the department of labor, is how industry is to pay a minimum wage. With what?

Now if it be made a law that there shall be purchased for each person in the United States above the age of 12 four pairs of shoes each year, to cost not less than $10 a pair, the makers of shoes will be very glad to pay a minimum wage and probably a very high one. What is true of that industry will be true of all others. If there can be a requirement stipulating the amount of purchases and the price per article, the volume and the costs being calculated to sustain a given number of workers at a fixed wage scale, many perplexed and harassed industrialists will know that at last they are inside the walls of Jericho. Another stipulation must be added. There must be a guaranty that taxes shall not eat up the pay roll before it can be paid.

If Miss Perkins can legislate a guaranty of profits, one way or another, the wages will flow like water from the rock and drip down like manna from heaven. If she has the magic which can produce the money needed to give every worker in the United States the full sum of his needs and desires, these hard times can be regarded as gone forever.

What disturbs many otherwise trustful persons is the apparent omission of the fundamental magic from the government wizardry. The wizards propose but their bag of tricks never contains the one device which will make the illusion a reality. It may be a pity that the magicians cannot find this, but until they do it will be difficult for them to bring their Canaan into reality and make it anything more than a mirage seen in the desert.

THEY WOULDN'T BE MISSED.

The house committee on postoffice and post roads, confronted by a substantial curtailment of postal revenue, is now said to be eagerly searching for ways to reduce expenses. We suggest that an obvious one is reduction in the number and salaries of political postmasters. The actual business of the postal service is carried on by permanent civil service officials who do not draw the large salaries, although they do the important work. A critical survey of the pay roll by congress is due the heavily burdened taxpayer, and political luxuries should be firmly eliminated, as they may be without any impairment of postal efficiency.

BALANCING BUDGETS AS AN EXERCISE.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

The Philippines have just passed through one of the severest tests of capacity for self-government. In a time of depression we all know how great the temptation is, especially among a people to whom autonomy is comparatively new, to authorize extravagant spendings of chief benefit to groups or even individuals, and to expand official activities in the hope of giving stimulus to the activities of private business. In a trying year, however, the Filipinos seem to have shown remarkable self-restraint. By careful management they have balanced their insular budget. So well have they done that, instead of the omnipresent deficits of these times, a $1,000,000 surplus is said to be in sight.

Detroit's annual budget for 1,568,662 people is even greater than the Philippine budget for 12,604,000 people. Its municipal debt, greatest per capita of any city in the United States barring one, is several times the combined insular and provincial debt of the islands. Its wasteful spending of $19,000,000 for welfare work two years ago is still well remembered, and on Feb. 15 last it defaulted on its city bonds, has been unable to retrieve any defaults since and is now planning a new issue of thirty year bonds to refund all debts coming due up to 1943, with no sinking fund payments for the first five years. It has $43,000,000 in short term notes held by banks, secured on 10 per cent of the annual tax levy, and 100 per cent of all delinquent taxes, and is now asking the banks to waive this pledged security and accept ten year bonds. It has arranged to issue $5,000,000 in scrip with which to pay salaries and current bills to merchants for supplies, and for its benefit a bill is to be put through the legislature providing receiverships for bankrupt municipalities.

Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit is said to be slated to become governor general of the Philippines. May we not hope that after the average incumbency at Manila he will come back with some valuable ideas on the balancing of budgets and general public finance?

ONCE MORE UNTO THE BREACH, DEAR FRIENDS!

"Successful Experiments to Use Alcohol for Fuel in Automobiles Reported from Many States."—Headline.

Washington, D. C., April 17.—Headquarters of the Anti-Saloon league have been thrown into great excitement over the attempts to use alcohol in auto radiators. It is held that the use of alcohol by automobiles will not only stunt their growth and weaken them morally, physically and financially, but will increase the number of accidents on the highways, as an auto, after three or four slugs of whisky has been fed to it, is liable to become quarrelsome and intensely disagreeable. The Anti-Saloon league will seek another amendment to the constitution forbidding the manufacture, sale or use of alcohol for motor cars.

Westerville, O., April 17.—The girls of the W. C. T. U. expressed themselves tonight as horrified at the idea of using alcohol as a fuel for automobiles. "Not content with gulping down the Demon Rum themselves," said Miss Dryad Dryasdust, "men are now planning to pour the fiery, soul corroding stuff down the throats of innocent automobiles. Did you ever see an automobile go of itself to that sink hole of humanity, a saloon, and ask for a drink of intoxicating liquor? No! An automobile has too much self-respect. But now man is planning to force the deadly stuff into the faithful auto and make it a pitiable whisky sot just as so many so-called humans are. Think of an automobile after drinking several bottles of Scotch or Canadian rye careening down the street a menace to one and all! Think of it later when alcohol produces hobnailed liver! Would you be willing to drive in an automobile with a hobnailed liver? No! A million times NO! But if this proposition becomes a reality we will see many automobiles with hobnailed livers reeling down the street. It must not be! It shall not be! Our innocent automobiles shall not be drunkards!"

Wichita, Kas., April 17.—The dry forces are up in arms against the proposal to use alcohol in automobiles. Prof. Jarushura Roarer, one of the principal field workers for the dry league, in an address last night said: "I saw only a few days ago an automobile which had been made the victim of these experimenters. I saw these fiends pour several gallons of alcohol down into the insides of this poor, helpless, unoffending car. It started away bravely enough trying to shake off the effects of the damning fluid that had been fed to it. But after awhile it began to jump back and forth across the road. Then crazed by the Demon Drink it suddenly climbed up a telephone pole and, roosting on the crossbars, tooted with its horn that horrible Bacchanalian song, 'Sweet Adeline.' It was a terrible sight and brought tears to the eyes of all right thinking men and women. We will now take up a collection to advance our great work of saving automobiles from going down with tottering steps to drunkards' graves."

Birmingham, Ala., April 17.—The Rev. Jasper Toogoode says he will lead the nation-wide movement to save the automobiles of the country from becoming sots and drunkards. "Unless this is done and speedily," shouted the Rev. Toogoode to his congregation, "we must build asylums for automobiles, workhouses and jails for automobiles. Can you picture anything more dreadful than a drunken tin Lizzie swearing at the other cars in the garage and biting them in the hind tire? Oh, friends, let us save the automobile. Let it live a clean life, sober and respectable, and not be dragged by whisky and champagne and beer down, down, down to the gutter. Let us circulate pledge cards and ask every automobile we meet to sign a solemn vow to abstain from all alcoholic liquor, including cider, because the drinking habit is all too readily formed and an automobile that thought it safe and probably a little smart to drink a glass or two of wine or cider will all too soon find itself in the clutches of the Demon Rum from which there is no escape. Stand back, you scientists and experimenters, with your deadly alcohol. Teach not our motor cars to crave that hellish brew!"

GROCERY CLERK.

When Adam Thomas was a little boy
He clasped a vision snugly to his heart—
His great ambition and his stalwart joy
Was what he loosely classified as "Art."
He went about with dreams behind his eyes
(They were, in fact, his principal concern),
And saw himself Da Vinci in disguise,
Artisan, sculptor, architect in turn!

Alas for Fate's proclivity to jest!
Has dwindled to a lamentable scope.
Superb arrays of beets and cauliflower
Engage his hand; his Art is manifest

SARA HENDERSON HAY.

THE CLIMATE has certainly changed and now as we can expect only cold and rain on Easter, why not move the Easter parade forward to the Fourth of July? Amend the constitution! Write to your congressman today!

WE HAVE READ of many a hero on the battlefield having his horse shot from under him. But was he any braver than the hero who defied the pelting rain on Easter day and had his silk hat shot from over him?

A HEN DOWN in Opelousas, La., has laid an egg on which is plainly traced this portentous inscription: "H. L. 1936." Which, of course, means Hooie Long will be our next President! If that hen hasn't been made into a chicken potpie before this, let it be done at once. And bury the egg. Don't let anybody eat it. Gosh! It might kill 'em!

SHALL THE BABY BOSS?

One of the very bad habits of babyhood is holding the breath. The mother may be unhappy when her baby develops other bad habits, but this is one that throws her into a panic and sends her to some one looking for help.

The foundation of this habit is anger. The baby has a temper tantrum and holds his breath as a part of the performance. As a rule the basis of anger in a baby is restraint or frustration. In one of his temper tantrums he discovers that his outbreak has won for him what he wants. Presently he tries it again. He finds that it works. If nature is allowed to take its course almost before the parent knows what is up the baby has the breath holding habit. He holds his breath until he becomes livid. Even unconsciousness and convulsions are not beyond the range of experience.

The remedy is very simple and is not on sale at the drug store. It consists in throwing a little cold water into the child's face or against the body. Of the two the face is the better, though not quite so effective.

The proper time to begin this method of treatment is in one of the earlier manifestations—the earlier the better. The stronger a habit has grown the more severe and the more sustained must be the treatment used to break it.

It is objected to this method of treatment that there is such a thing as a thymic baby and that severe shock may cause the death of such a child. Maybe so, but certainly the small amount of shock needed if the treatment is used early is safe enough and the seriousness of the situation where a baby has been long neglected and his personality is pretty well ruined by bad habits may make it advisable to take a chance.

Holding the breath is but one of a group of bad habits which generally results from bad training. Of course inheritance may be a factor. A baby starts with no habits except a few simple ones such as sleeping. Nevertheless he inherits from some ancestor a tendency to react in a certain way to the things about. Parents who are instable in their nervous systems are apt to endow the children with nervous instability. But most of the transfer of qualities from parent to child results from association rather than inheritance. Living with a badly balanced mother is harder on the kid than is being of her flesh.

The training of babies in habits starts on the first day of life. This training may be either right or wrong, mixed right and wrong. The customs of the people take care of some of this training. But the greater part is the duty and responsibility of the parent. There should be conscious, intelligent, thought-out efforts to train exerted by the parent, and this effort should start at the beginning.

NEED NOT EXCLUDE LIGHT.

Mrs. A. T. B. writes:

1. In treating arthritic joints with infra red lamps should other light be excluded from the room?

2. In other words, do the rays from illuminating light or daylight interfere with the benefit of infra red?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. No.

ARTHRITIS.

R. S. writes:

1. What is the cause of rheumatic arthritis and sciatica?
2. Can they be cured?
3. What are some of the remedies?
4. What are the worst stages of these troubles?

REPLY.

1. The most important factor in rheumatic arthritis is infection with a streptococcus. Sore throat is apt to be the disease that starts it off. Sciatica may be rheumatic and due to the streptococcus of that disease. It may be of another kind and due to another cause.
2. Both diseases are curable within limits.
3. Salicylates and modifications of this drug are the standard remedies for relief in the acute forms of rheumatism.
4. When the heart feels its effects.

ZONING VIOLATION.

Chicago, April 14.—[Friend of the People.]—What can be done to a man having a laundry in the basement of his home on a residence street when this block is zoned for residential purposes only? He has three trucks working with 1932 licenses. He also has a boy 10 years old sorting out linens until 11 o'clock at night. This is detrimental to residential property in this block and I wish something could be done to remove the laundry. L. B.

A notice has been sent by this department to the owner, and the occupant to discontinue the use of premises for business purposes, as such use is in violation of the zoning ordinances. JOHN E. ERICSSON, Commissioner of Buildings.

CHURCH MORTGAGE.

Maywood, Ill., April 13.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—We have placed a $4,000 mortgage on our church property for six years, interest annually. John Doe is the [1] trustee for the noteholders, of which notes there are 18 of varying denominations. 2. $3,200 has been expended and $800 in unsigned notes is being held which will be accepted by the trustee in lieu of cash for annual interest payments when signed by two officials of the church. 3. Who ought to have in his possession in the meantime these unsigned notes, the trustee or the two officials mentioned above? J. B.

1. We assume that you mean that he is the grantee in the trust deed, which is not the usual form for securing such a loan.
2. We assume that it is a construction loan, and that the money is being paid out as the construction proceeds.
3. We do not see that the possession of an unsigned note would be important, but on the other hand we do not understand how the other notes can be in operation without all of the notes having been signed. An attorney should be employed on a transaction of this character and, having the facts before him at first hand, he will be in better position to inform you than we are.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

40 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 18, 1893.

CHICAGO.—Throughout all the 600 acres of grounds and buildings at Jackson park the visitor to the World's Fair will be unable to secure a drop of Lake Michigan water in its natural state, unless he dips his lips into the water of the lagoon. Every drop will be filtered. The Exposition grounds will be literally a land of filters and spring water.

Three distinguished personages, accompanied by people of almost equal note, will reach Chicago April 29 for the Fair. As the direct descendant of Columbus and the honored guest of the United States, the first in honor will be the duke of Veragua and his party. The second will be President Cleveland and the members of his cabinet, and the third will be Vice President Adlai Stevenson of Illinois.

At the Auditorium hotel is a real East India rajah. His name is Dato Sri Amar d'Raja, and he is the secretary of state for the sultan of Jahore. He is the commissioner from that country to the Columbian Exposition and arrived here yesterday.

W. E. Curtis of the state department at the World's Fair walked into the Auditorium with a sealed package which was carefully deposited in the hotel safe. "That package contains one of the most highly prized treasures of Spain," said he. "It is a silver casket containing the original will of Queen Isabella, and will be exhibited among the mementos of the period in which Columbus figured so conspicuously."

A fleet of full rigged models showing the development and growth of the Cunard Steamship line, from the steamship Britannia, built in 1840, down to the latest leviathan, the Campania, the largest steamship in the world, will be exhibited. These models have been in course of construction for over a year at the Cunard company's yards in Liverpool.

APRIL 18, 1917.

WASHINGTON.—The war finance bill, providing for issuance of $7,000,000,000 in securities—the largest single war budget in any nation's history—was passed unanimously by the senate. After seven hours of discussion the administration measure, which was passed by the house April 14 and which provides for a loan to the allies of $3,000,000,000, was approved by the senate with few changes in record time.

WASHINGTON.—President Wilson and the Democratic majority of the house committee on military affairs are engaged in a desperate struggle over the adoption of selective conscription as the basic means of raising the new national army of 2,000,000 men for the war with Germany.

PARIS.—Smashing against the Soissons-Reims sector—the corner stone segment in the entire German western front—the French have crushed in the entire enemy defenses along the whole twenty-five mile front, reaching the second and even the third lines in several places, and in one—the north front at Brimont—breaking clear through during a single day of terrific fighting. Need of consolidating the positions taken, coupled with a downpour of rain, caused an overnight lull in the infantry activity as the victorious poilus pulled themselves together preparatory to the next grapple with the picked German legions opposing them. Frantic at the success of Gen. Niveile's swift onslaught and fearing to allow time for the French to dig themselves in among the shell swept German trenches, the crown prince flung reserve brigade after brigade against the poilus in a desperate effort to unseat them.

PETROGRAD.—The closing sitting of the congress of the council of workmen's and soldiers' delegates passed resolutions favoring the suppression of classes and titles and the confiscation of all lands belonging to the crown, the church, and also monasteries. Provision is made for the transfer of the lands to the use of the peasants.

WHY BEER IS WEAK.

St. Joseph, Mo., April 12.—I read the article on the first page of your Monday paper in reference to beer averaging 2.8 per cent alcohol. The public from this article will get the impression that the brewers are trying to cheat the public by turning out beer with a smaller amount of alcohol than permitted by the government. I beg to assure you that there is no difference in cost in producing a 2.8 per cent and a 3.2 per cent beer.

The brewers have to be extremely careful not to overstep the exact limit of 3.2 per cent, and therefore must stay below it, from .1 to .2 per cent below. The difference in alcohol content of .1 and .2 per cent represents almost nothing, and it is extremely difficult for even the most experienced brewers to brew beers of exact amounts of alcohol. There always are slight variations, and on account of these variations the conscientious and careful brewer has to remain below the legally permitted percentage of alcohol, which, I repeat, has in no way any effect on the cost of his product.

The writer knows of one brewery which could not put out its beer on the 7th because the government deputies found it had a slight excess of alcoholic content.

Of course, if a brewer turns out beer with only 2.48 per cent alcohol by weight he is overcareful, but he should not even then be condemned, as he does not do this to save money or cheat the public, but simply because he is afraid to overstep the limit and get into trouble.

It is on account of the above points that most of the brewers preferred the 3.2 per cent beer to the 3.05 per cent and still more so to the 2.75 per cent beer. With the 2.75 per cent, for instance, the brewer would have to brew the beer with 2.55 per cent of alcohol by weight in order to be safe so far as his regular production is concerned.

FUNDING DELINQUENT TAXES.

Evanston, Ill., April 11.—I think your editorial this morning was very unfair. We who are engaged in the real estate profession have been attempting to work out some constructive program whereby delinquent taxes for the years 1928, 1929, and 1930 could be funded.

The bill indorsed by Senator Huebsch of Brookfield has the approval of Mr. Sargent of the real estate board and a number of others who have given the matter a good deal of study.

Your editorial was in the nature of a monkey wrench thrown into the machinery.

There are a great many properties which our governmental bodies would not care to take over inasmuch as they are not paying operating expenses. The utmost consideration should be given to properties which are not producing income, otherwise they will be taken off the tax list. CLYDE D. FOSTER.

MR. STOCK AND HIS ORCHESTRA.

Chicago, April 12.—A long time devotee of Orchestra hall, returning to our city for a visit after a few years in the east, wonders whether Chicago's music lovers really appreciate the Chicago Symphony orchestra, its remarkable perfections and its very unusual conductor. Without venturing into the odium of comparisons, Chicago's great orchestra has several features which may or may not be shared by the others of the "Big Four"; i. e., Boston's, Philadelphia's, and the New York Philharmonic—to name them alphabetically. First, the splendid uniformity of its training. Dr. Stock played under the great Theodore Thomas, and has added his own brilliant and scholarly methods to those of his tutelage. He is an absolute master of orchestration. He is a composer of large achievements. He is a genius in the much neglected art of program making. He is, as thousands know, the commander of a most attractive and winning personality. The undersigned shares the belief that in these and other features Chicago is blessed with the leading orchestra of the nation. Surely if there is one institution in our city which ought not to be burdened with a deficit should not this be the one? If there is one able public spirited Chicagoan whose life work has been given to our city, and whose ripe maturity should not be harassed by lack of financial support, should it not be this gifted conductor? Can it be possible that our music lovers are taking this extraordinary group of artists as an everyday matter of course? That seems incredible!

JOHN HENRY HOPKINS.

ANOTHER GLOVER.

Chicago, April 7.—There was an article in your Monday or Tuesday paper of this week attacking President Green of the American Federation of Labor and signed by the name of Charles Glover.

I have been in the labor movement over 25 years and at one time traveled all over this country and Canada representing the International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths, Drop Forgers, and Helpers, and have also been a delegate to the American Federation of Labor conventions at St. Louis, Rochester, Cincinnati, Denver, and Montreal, Canada, and have come in contact with President Green when he was a delegate to these same conventions from the United Mine Workers of America, and my opinion of him then is the same right now. Whatever he says or does I know it is for the benefit of the American working man and woman, and I am in hearty accord with him in all his undertakings, as he means to harm no one, but to help every one all he can. As my name is very much the same as the writer of that article my friends have been calling me up and asking me if I wrote that article, which I answer most emphatically no, as I am not looking for that cheap way of getting notoriety. I always know what I am writing about whenever I wish to get my name in the paper.

U. S. SOLDIERS ARE ISOLATED IN CHINA WAR ZONE

Cut Off as Japs March Toward Tientsin.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, April 17.—The Japanese occupation of the triangular section of Hopei province northeast of the Lwan river to the Great Wall and the sea, has created special complications for the United States and Great Britain, according to officials in Shanghai tonight.

America's complications result from the cutting off and isolation of a detachment of American troops of the 15th United States infantry, as well as considerable American military stores and other property located at Camp Barrows, near Chinwangtao. Cutting of the Chinese railway and telegraphs have completely isolated the American detachment, which is part of the force stationed at Tientsin in accordance with the terms of the Boxer protocol.

British Mines Periled.

The British complications are due to the location within the same region of the chief properties of the Kailan mining administration, which was organized by Herbert Hoover a third of a century ago. The Kailan administration represents a heavy investment of Chinese and British capital and is the chief supplier of coal to Chinese industrial ports, including Shanghai, and the chief rival of the Japanese Fushun mines near Mukden.

The British legation at Peiping today made representations to Japanese officials to safeguard the mines.

Large British firms here are preparing to liquidate their branches at Tientsin in expectation of an early Japanese occupation and future dominance of that port, which is only 100 miles from the scene of operations.

Heavy fighting was reported continuing near the Lwan river today following the capture by the Japanese of the city of Changli. Japanese planes terrified the population of the area by dropping huge bombs.

Russia Protests to Japan.

MOSCOW, April 17.—(AP)—L. M. Karakhan, assistant commisar for foreign affairs, today sent a note to Tamekichi Ota, Japanese ambassador to Moscow, protesting that rights and interests of the soviet union along the Chinese Eastern railway in Manchuria were jeopardized by recent events.

The soviet commissar said that despite reiterated assurances from Japan that Russian interests would be protected, the soviet's rights in connection with the jointly operated line had been imperiled.

Karakhan referred to the alleged seizure of the Perevalochnaya wharf by Manchukuo authorities last July 7 and the more recent action by the Japanese military authorities who took possession of the wharf and hoisted the Japanese flag over it.

Asks Pay for Transportation.

The commissar directed the attention of the Japanese ambassador to the fact that the Japanese government had not yet paid for the transportation of its troops over the Chinese Eastern railway, which failure was said to have caused the accumulation of a huge indebtedness and the consequent unbalancing of the railway budget.

Severing of the railroad's connection with the trans-Baikal railroad and the "complete disorganization" of the eastern line road because of bandit attacks also were charged in the note.

"Moreover," the document said, "murder, looting, and mass arrests of soviet citizens were never so serious as now. Since by its numerous assurances to the soviet government that Japanese government has taken upon itself the responsibility of protecting the rights of the soviet union, the soviet government now insists that effective measures be taken ensuring the protection of the soviet union's interests."

To Sing at Benefit Concert Sunday

MARIA BARRANCO.

Aid Hungry Pupils

Excerpts from many familiar operas will be heard Sunday afternoon at Orchestra hall, when the People's Symphony orchestra presents its initial "operatic concert" to music lovers of the city under the baton of P. Marinus Paulsen, conductor. Listed among its offerings are nearly a dozen arias, some of which are favorites with Chicago opera goers. Soloists will include Alice Mock, Frederick Jencs, Louis Rousseau, Ruth Lyons, Lucie Weston, Marjorie Montello, Maria Barranco and others.

During the latter half of the program the quartet selection from "Rigoletto" will be heard, with full orchestral accompainment. The sextet from "Lucia di Lammermoor" is also scheduled, and the "Ride of the Valkyries," by Wagner. To open the concert the orchestra will play the overture from "The Flying Dutchman," another Wagnerian piece.

Twenty-five per cent of the box office receipts of the concert will go to THE TRIBUNE'S Fund for Hungry School Children, which provides thousands of boys and girls a warm lunch each school day, when parents are unable to furnish them with a properly nutritious meal.

WOMAN KILLED, 3 OTHERS HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Car Upsets and Burns Near Des Plaines.

One woman was killed and her husband and another couple were seriously injured last night when their automobile caught fire after a collision on River road just west of Des Plaines.

Those injured are Charles E. Hommel, 42 years old, and Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Andrews, 1250 Sherman avenue, also of Madison. They are in the Des Plaines Emergency hospital. Mrs. Andrews, who is 40 years old, may die, physicians said. All are seriously burned.

Car Turns Over and Burns.

The Hommels and Andrewses were driving west in Lawrence avenue when the rear of their car was clipped by a south bound automobile operated by David Duncan, 27 years old, of 2848 West Cermak road. The Hommels' car swung to the right, overturned in the ditch and burst into flames. Duncan and J. M. Szitak, 47 years old, of the Cermak address, pulled out the occupants.

With Duncan and Szitak were Marcella and Elsie Sazma, sisters, of 2823 Cermak road. None was hurt. Duncan said the other car failed to stop at River road, which is a through street.

Year's Toll Rises to 251.

This death and one other increased the Cook county toll for the year to 251. The other victim:

Mrs. Mary Egan, 55 years old, 4336 Costello avenue. Died at the Danish-American hospital. She was injured by an automobile at Crawford and Armitage avenues Sunday.

The body of a woman killed Saturday at Ogden and Austin avenues was identified yesterday as that of Mrs. Agnes E. Case, 71 years old, 3742 South Lombard avenue.

Picture Stunt Actor Shot While Enacting Film Role

Hollywood, Cal., April 17.—[Special.]—Hurd McClellan, movie stunt actor, was shot through the abdomen, and may die, as a result of a hazardous stunt he was enacting for a news reel feature today. McClellan donned armor plate about the body and permitted Mrs. Marion Semmelmeyer of the women's pistol team to shoot at him with a .38 caliber police revolver. He was wounded when he deviated from a line that had been marked for him. He is at Cedars of Lebanon hospital.

TRUCK DRIVER ROBBED.

Edward Harty, 5416 Washington boulevard, a truck driver for the Bosteimann Beverage company, was robbed of $19 yesterday by two robbers who seized him in front of 445 North Laramie street.

EASTER DONATION OF $5 IS SENT TO HUNGRY PUPILS

An Easter offering of $5 reached the Hungry School Children's fund yesterday from an anonymous contributor who wished to be known only as "a friend." Two out of town contributors helped the fund to reach $31 as the day's total. Marie Pohlers of South Holland sent $1 and Mrs. Fred J. Blum of River Forest $4. Another gift of $1 came from "a mother." The day's contributions are acknowledged as follows:

MEXICAN FOES OF DANIELS DROP HOSTILE STAND

Admit New Envoy Makes Good Impression.

MEXICO CITY, April 17.—(AP)—Ambassador Josephus Daniels was formally received by Foreign Minister Puig Casauranc today after some of the unofficial critics of his appointment as United States envoy here had publicly indicated a change of heart.

Mr. Daniels chatted for forty-five minutes with the foreign minister—a much longer time than usually is allotted to a new envoy. Within a few days he will be received by President Rodriguez.

El Nacional printed interviews with student leaders in which they said that the new ambassador's first remarks in Mexico had created a good impression and had started a reversal of the opinion of him previously held by students.

Criticism of Mr. Daniels' appointment, particularly by students, was based on the fact that he was the secretary of the navy at the time of the occupation of Vera Cruz.

"The first acts of the distinguished journalist have created a magnificent impression in student ranks," said Guillermo Ibarra, secretary of the National Student federation. This organization had attacked the appointment.

Mr. Daniels was accompanied to the foreign ministry by Arthur Bliss Lane, counselor to the embassy. After he and the foreign minister had completed their chat, they were photographed together.

Discuss General Topics.

They discussed general topics of interest to the two nations and Mr. Daniels enthusiastically described his trip to Mexico and his first impressions of the country. They talked in English, which is unusual, as Spanish ordinarily is the language for official conversations.

"Mr. Daniels made a magnificent impression on me," Casauranc said. "While it was simply a courtesy call, we had a very agreeable chat, discussing topics of general interest in economic, educational, and social fields."

"I had a very interesting and delightful visit," Mr. Daniels said. "The foreign minister was very gracious. I propose to avail myself of his hospitality often."

Business Men Like Him.

In his brief stay in Mexico—he arrived Saturday—Mr. Daniels has created an excellent impression in government and commercial circles, according to William B. Richardson, manager of the National City bank here and former president and present treasurer of the American Chamber of Commerce.

"In all circles in which I have moved and with all the persons with whom I have talked," Mr. Richardson said, "the declarations of Mr. Daniels are extremely well received. All predict success for him in his mission here."

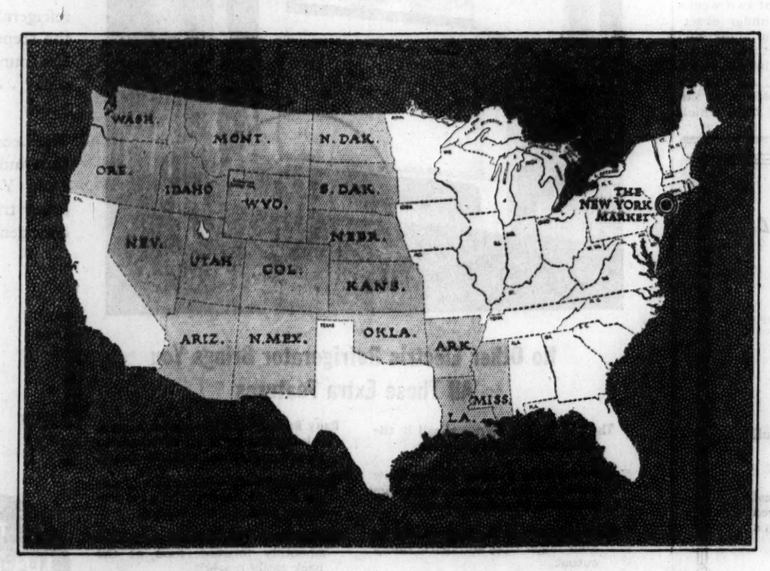
These 18 States occupy one-half the area of the United States . . . but in New York City and its suburbs, within a radius of only 60 miles, there are more people, more stores, more sales, more business than in all these 18 States combined.



Think of the business the manufacturer can get and the money he can save by concentrating his advertising in the New York Market instead of scattering his advertising over large expanses and widely separated cities throughout the country.

Here within a radius of only 60 miles, occupying less than one half of one per cent of the country's area, is 10 per cent of the country's population, 21 per cent of the income tax returns, 24 per cent of the wholesale trade, 14 per cent of the retail trade and 28 per cent of the bank deposits.

Here in one compact, closely-knit, easily-covered city and suburban area there is more business than in 18 States combined . . . more than in all of New England . . . more than in the great States of Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin combined . . . more than in 70 of the 93 cities of over 100,000 population combined.

Sales and distribution costs are low in this market because its 12,055,000 people, its tremendous retail sales and its many thousands of retail stores are concentrated within a territorially small city and suburban area . . . because its numerous rapid transit lines enable salesmen to cover this territory easily, quickly and inexpensively . . . because there are more people per square mile, more stores per square mile, more customers per square mile in New York than in any other market in the world. Advertising costs are low here because with one advertising schedule, one campaign, one effort, the advertiser can get more business in this one market than in dozens of cities and numerous States combined.

And in this market of largest sales opportunities and lowest sales costs The Sun stands out as a medium of unusual selling power for the advertiser. Numerous surveys show that it is read in more of the good homes of the city and the suburbs than any other week-day newspaper. Because it goes into the home it takes the advertiser's message to the women as well as the men, the young people as well as the grown-ups. More than 80 per cent of its circulation is distributed after 3 P. M. to homeward-bound readers and 96 per cent of its readers live in the city and suburban area of New York.

Because of its ability to produce results, the department stores of this market for many years have placed more advertising in the six-day Sun than in any other New York newspaper, including those that publish seven issues a week. So productive a medium is this newspaper that in 1931 and in 1932 it led all the newspapers in the country (morning and evening, seven-day and six-day) in department store advertising.

For more sales at less cost, concentrate your advertising in the New York Market. And for results in this market, take the advice of the local department stores and concentrate your advertising in The Sun.

Victor Elting Is Elected President in Vote of English Speaking Union

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE balloting to elect a new president of the English Speaking union ended yesterday—it was done by mail—and Victor Elting was chosen to succeed Everett L. Millard, who died recently. Mr. Elting will be given an official welcome tomorrow night at the annual dinner to be held in the French room of the Drake hotel. Dr. Stephen Butler Leacock of McGill university will address the meeting on "Education by the Yard" and all those who have heard the humorist talk before—as well as those who haven't—are looking forward with pleasure to his talk. Dinner is to be served at 7 o'clock and Dr. Leacock will begin speaking at 8.

Dr. Leacock is arriving early tomorrow afternoon and during his brief visit here he will be the guest of the Gordon Laings on the south side. They have invited a few friends in for late tea tomorrow afternoon before the English Speaking union dinner, and after the dinner the Herbert E. Bradleys are giving a supper party for Dr. Leacock in the African room of their Hyde Park boulevard home. At midnight Dr. Leacock takes a train for Montreal. Mr. Laing, who is a professor at the University of Chicago, and Dr. Leacock, were undergraduates at the University of Toronto together. Their friendship was pursued during the years that Mr. Laing spent as a professor at McGill university.

Dr. Anspacher Will Lecture

Another lecturer who will be in the city this week is Dr. Louis K. Anspacher of New York, who is to talk on "The Jazz Age" on Thursday at a buffet luncheon of the Chicago Drama league in the French room of the Drake hotel. Dr. Anspacher is well known in Chicago and immensely popular. That night he is to be the guest of the Louis K. Boysens at dinner at the Lake Shore Drive hotel and at the entertainment for the benefit of the linen committee of the Passavant Memorial hospital that will be given at 9 o'clock at the hotel. Miss Beatrice Borland will give an illustrated talk on "Banging Through India and Persia" at that entertainment.

Among others who are planning dinner parties to precede the entertainment are Mrs. William A. Yager, chairman of the committee; Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, Mrs. Harry H. Shearson, Miss Helen Gurley, Mrs. Franklin Martin, Miss Emily Larned, and Mrs. Adolph Hartmann.

Guests at Tea See Portrait

Calla lilies everywhere that flowers could be placed decorated the board room of the Passavant Memorial hospital yesterday afternoon for the tea given for Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman and Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, the subject and the painter of the lovely portrait that is hanging over the fireplace in the room.

As we pointed out yesterday in an advance notice of the tea, the portrait fits into the decorative scheme of the stunning room to perfection. Every one who saw the portrait yesterday remarked upon the happy coincidence, for when Mrs. McCormick painted it she did not know it was to be hung in that particular room. Mrs. Coleman and Mrs. McCormick received together, the former wearing a gay new spring print in black, red, and white, almost entirely covered, however, with a black coat with a silver fox collar, and the latter in a black gown with a soft frou-frou of white lace at the right of the neckline, and a close fitting white turban.

Pouring early in the afternoon were Mrs. George Rasmussen and Mrs. Bryan S. Reid, both in black, the former with touches of pale apple green and the latter with a small white piqué collar and gardenias. Mrs. Francis Johnson, who is responsible for the charm of the decorations of all rooms in the hospital except one foyer, which was done by the late Rue Winterbotham Carpenter, was one of the guests at the tea. Mrs. Johnson was stunning in black with a wide white collar and black hat and gloves. A few of the others present were: Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Pardridge, Mrs. James W. Thorne, Mrs. Edward R. Fifield, Mrs. William A. Yager, Mrs. Harry H. Shearson, Mrs. Perry Kenly, Loring W. Coleman, Mrs. Edward A. Leight, Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, Mrs. Orville J. Babcock, Mrs. Loyal Davis, Mrs. Arthur A. Small, Mrs. Lawrence Tibbett, Mrs. William P. Martin, and Mrs. Mark Trude.

Service Club Sets Revue Dates

Every daughter of society who is to make her debut next fall will put a red circle around Oct. 21 and 22 this morning, for those were the dates set yesterday by the board of the Service club for its 1933 revue. The meeting at which this decision was reached was held at 10 o'clock yesterday morning at the home of Mrs. Stanley Zaring in Lake Shore drive.

"Dancing Debs" will be the name of the revue and the John B. Rogers company again will do the producing.

The Service club hopes to be of some "service" this summer at A Century of Progress, but just what its contribution is to be remains to be determined at a general meeting scheduled for the early part of May. Mrs. John Dern is president of the club.

The annual banquet of the Hill School Club of Chicago was held last night at the Saddle and Cycle club. Kingman Douglass, president of the club, and Mrs. Douglass; Uri B. Grannis, chairman of the nominating committee, and Mrs. Grannis; John C. Coleman, a trustee of Hill school, and Mrs. Coleman were present.

Dr. James I. Wendell, head master of the school, and Mrs. Wendell were guests, and Dr. Wendel showed some movies of the school. Others present were the Augustus C. Eddys, the Andrew McNallys, the James L. Houghtelings, the Alexander H. Revells, the Richardson Revells, the junior John R. Winterbothams, the Arthur A. Burrows and Dr. and Mrs. Theodore S. Proxmire.

Two Events at Arts Club.

Cards were received yesterday for two interesting affairs to take place at the Arts club this month: the annual exhibition by the professional members, to open at the club next Sunday with a tea from 4:30 to 7:30 o'clock, and the presentation of three one-act plays on Thursday of next week at 8:30 o'clock.

Mrs. J. Allen Haines, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. William P. Martin, in Lake Forest, is arranging a Swedish dinner with Smorgasbord for Saturday night at the Deerpath inn, and since Mrs. Haines is noted for her wonderful recipes and especially for the variety and quality of the Smorgasbord she arranges, as many of her friends as possible are planning to be there.

There will be music for dancing, and, all in all, Lake Foresters are anticipating a gala evening. Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Leverett Thompson, and Mrs. Harry B. Clow are among those arranging parties for the affair.

The Samuel T. Chases have had a cable from their Libby bringing the news that she and her companions, Mrs. Joseph W. Brooks and Miss Josephine Patterson, sailed last Saturday from Bombay for home. The trio flew to India, but apparently they are coming home by boat, which is pleasant news to the Chases. They probably will reach Chicago about the middle of May.

Arthur Meeker Jr. is to introduce Miss Fanny Butcher, literary editor of THE TRIBUNE, to the members of the Lower North Community council at 11 o'clock this morning in a salon of the Diana Court building, 540 North Michigan avenue. Miss Butcher's topic is "Lions Couchant." This is the second talk in the spring lecture course sponsored by the council.

Debutantes to Aid Infant Welfare Sale.

A dozen of last year's debutantes have promised to assist the North Side Infant Welfare and Kenwood Social Service with the joint rummage sale they are to hold April 24, 25, and 26 at 157 North Wabash avenue. This week the members of these branches of Infant Welfare are spring cleaning in order to sort out of their closets and pantries things that will make the sale exciting and worth attending. Mrs. Eugene S. Talbot Jr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Mayyer are co-chairmen of the sale.

A number of prominent Episcopalians visited A Century of Progress yesterday morning to be on hand for the arrival of the interesting exhibit of weaving, pewter, and pottery that has been shipped here from the hills of North Carolina.

The exhibit is the result of the work of the mountaineers at the Appalachian school at Penland supported by the Episcopal church and is to be housed in a rustic log cabin. Among those interested in the work and the World's Fair exhibit are Mrs. Henry K. Chapin, Mrs. Frank Victor Thais, Mrs. Bruce Willis Strong, Mrs. Ernest Hensley, and Mrs. Joseph E. Otis.

There will be a preview of the spring and summer fashions to be paraded on May 6 by the young matrons of the North Shore auxiliary of the Chicago Maternity center at a luncheon this noon at the Georgian hotel in Evanston. The May party will be the first large affair of the new auxiliary organized on St. Valentine's day. It is to be a combination dinner dance, style show, and jamboree at the Evanston Golf club.

With the proceeds the board hopes to be able to contribute generously to the support of the center and to purchase a closed car for the use of the doctors and nurses called from the dispensary to all parts of the city on maternity cases.

Mrs. Vernon K. Loucks of Kenilworth, the social chairman, promises a gay and festive party with many surprise features for husbands and beaux. North Shore Junior Leaguers are to be models.

Yesterday a whole troupe of the prettiest league members on the north shore modeled coats and dresses in

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., April 17.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt flew to New York this afternoon to remain for several days. She will spend tomorrow at the Todhunter school. Mrs. Dall returned to New York late this afternoon after spending a week or more here. Her brother, James Roosevelt, returned to his home in New York yesterday as did the other White House guests, Mr. and Mrs. Basil O'Connor and children, and Mr. and Mrs. Amyas Ames of Boston.

Mrs. Roosevelt has invited the secretary of labor, Frances Perkins, and the newspaper women of Washington for a buffet supper Saturday night, April 29, when the President will be guest of honor at the Gridiron dinner at the Willard. The members of the President's cabinet also are to be guests at the dinner, but Secretary Perkins, because she is a woman, was omitted.

President and Mr. Roosevelt have out invitations for dinner next Saturday night for the two premiers, Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain and Mr. Bennett of Canada, who will be guests at the White House during their stay in Washington.

Mrs. John N. Garner, wife of the Vice President, was the honor guest at luncheon today, of Mrs. James F. Byrnes, at the Congressional club.

Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the secretary of agriculture, was the guest of honor at luncheon today of Mrs. Cassius Dowell at the Congressional club.

'Doggiest' Style Show in History of Society Will Be Held Today

Latest in Canine Raincoats, Collars, and Haircuts Will Be Displayed by Gold Coast Pets.

THE "doggiest" fashion show of the season is to go on parade at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at 700 North Michigan avenue. And this is fact rather than fiction. All of the canine aristocrats about town are going to model the latest in raincoats, collars, leashes, and haircuts in a style revue promoted by Mrs. Frank Hibbard's Oak Street "Conveniences." Meantime their mistresses will munch hot dogs.

By way of dashing red and white dodgers Mrs. Hibbard invited all of the dog owners she knows a fortnight ago to walk their Scotties and Airedales, Great Danes and Dachshunds this afternoon to the style showing. Canine pets, she figured, must be fashion correct quite as much as the masters and mistresses who give them their airings. To avoid any demonstrations, however, between the "doggiequins" and the audience [barks and growls, maybe worse], Mrs. Hibbard has requested all of her guests to leave the pets they bring to the show outside the door in care of "treers."

These . . . the treers . . . in case you don't know are the little boys Mrs. Hibbard supplies for a nominal charge at "Conveniences" to exercise dogs. Today, however, the service will be gratis since 40 cents is to be the price of admission to the revue, this to benefit charity.

Dogs admitted to the "sanctum sanctorum" this afternoon with their mistresses for purposes of modeling will be Mrs. Ambrose Cramer's Susie; Cocoa, who belongs to Miss Lydia Swift; Laddie McGregor, whose proud owner is Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr.; Miss Patty McCormick with Danny Deever; Miss Margot Reed with Barbed Wire; Mrs. John J. Finlay with Jimmie, and Mrs. David Norton with Von Vilas. A champion Great Dane, Alex von der Rensbruck Lehy, will be shown by Mrs. Frederick Clay Bartlett Jr.

Miss Louise Neff will appeal to the masses with the presentation of her two gold coast curs, Cinders and Whiskers. Then there will be Miss Betsy Needham's Coffee, Mrs. Gail Borden's Spot; Otto von Lichtenstein and Diesel Engine, who will be shown by Mrs. Louis G. Sudler; Mrs. Philip Maher's Ding-Hoa, and Miss Louise Brewer with Buddy Woo Dulaney and Sunny Ying Dulaney. Miss Betty Scriven is to model Glint of Gold and Miss Marjorie Goodman John Bull III. Miss Geraldine Swift will bring her Brick, and Miss Eleanor Litsinger Jerry.

If any one of these canine aristocrats wanders away from home after today and never returns it won't be the fault of Mrs. Hibbard. She is providing a man this afternoon who will engrave lost and found medals with the name and address on one side and the inscription, "My name is ——, I thank you," on the other.

Then there will be a choice collection of dogs for sale at the show, as well as an announcement of the doggy "conveniences" over on Oak street—boarding, plucking, bathing, treeing, and defleaing. Mrs. Hibbard explained this yesterday and added, "All of those who haven't received invitations must come anyway . . . that is, if they're interested in dogs."

Dr. McAfee Defends Pearl Buck; Says No Charges Were Heard

New York, April 17.—(AP)—Following a meeting of the Presbyterian board of foreign missions today, it was announced no discussion had taken place regarding the case of Mrs. Pearl S. Buck, missionary and writer, charged by some members of the church with holding views contrary to Presbyterian doctrine.

"We do not take this case so seriously as do some people," said Dr. Cleland B. McAfee, secretary of the board. "I should be glad to have a talk with Mrs. Buck, but no date has been arranged for one."

Mrs. Buck, a Pulitzer prize novelist and missionary at Nanking, China, was the subject of some criticism following publication of a magazine article by her.

Prior to the meeting, Dr. McAfee denied that Mrs. Buck had been ordered to appear before the board and praised her missionary work. He said routine matters were transacted by the board today and there was no discussion of missionary personnel.

Employés of the Catholic Church Extension society and members of the staff of the Extension magazine are to hold a card party and dance Friday evening at the Stevens hotel. Proceeds will be added to the fund being raised to provide a chapel for the lepers at Carville, La. The colony is under government control. Miss Mary Leddy is chairman of the party.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, April 17.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Hutton will occupy Hillwood, their estate near Greenvale, L. I., during the spring season. They will have with them Mrs. Hutton's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Etienne Gautier, who were married recently in Paris. Mr. and Mrs. Hutton will give a reception for them at their city residence next Saturday.

Mrs. David K. E. Bruce, who was official hostess at the embassy in London for her father, Andrew W. Mellon, has returned, accompanied by her brother, Paul Mellon. Mr. Bruce returned a month ago. Their country home near Syosset will be occupied by them during the spring season.

Mr. and Mrs. Ethelbert I. Low and Miss Gertrude Low will give a dinner on Friday evening in the Seaglade of the St. Regis for Miss Augusta H. L. Du Val and Alfred Yardley, who will be married on April 29. Miss Low will be one of the bridesmaids.

Mr. and Mrs. Colgate Hoyt will pass the spring at their country home in Meadow Spring, Glen Cove. Mr. Hoyt recently purchased the Seawanhaka schooner Aura, which he will sail on the sound during the summer.

Princess Rospigliosi in America to Visit Mother

New York, April 17.—[Special.]—The Princess Girolamo Rospigliosi, the former Marian Snowden of Newport and New York, returned here for a brief visit today. The princess arrived on the Italian liner Roma. She was unaccompanied by her husband, but she denied there was any significance in his absence. She will be here only a week, she said, and will spend that time with her mother, Mrs. Walter Davidson, in Newport. Mrs. Davidson, who vigorously opposed the marriage, is now reconciled, her daughter said. The prince and the former Miss Snowden were married in 1931.

Vassar President Gets High Honor from Italy

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., April 17.—[Special.]—The Italian government has conferred upon Dr. Henry Noble MacCracken, Vassar college president, one of the highest honors bestowed upon foreigners in making him a grand ufficiale of the crown of Italy, it was said at the college today. Guests See Work

Classes for the children were carried on as usual yesterday afternoon in the Madonna Center Settlement house at 712 Loomis street while the members of the association showed visitors through the building. Miss Marie Plamondon and Miss Mary Agnes Amberg welcomed the guests and Mrs. Frank M. Gordon, Mrs. George F. Douaire Jr., Mrs. Edward N. Hurley Jr., and Mrs. J. Donald Scott escorted them through the rooms where the girls are taught domestic science and Red Cross methods of caring for the sick. There are classes in hygiene and a much used library.

Miss Betty Kellogg played the piano for a game of "Going to Jerusalem" enjoyed by the smaller girls, and down in the basement, under volunteer supervision, the 5 to 12 year olds were entertaining each other with songs and dances, all solos. Visitors were amazed at the variety and excellence of the education these children receive while their mothers, working all day to try to make both ends meet, are forced to leave them.

Among the visitors were Mrs. James R. Offield, Mrs. John E. Kehoe, Mrs. William J. Lawlor, Mrs. Bernard J. Fallon, Mrs. Marguerite Henneberry Robertson, Mrs. David F. Bremner, Mrs. Raymond Hurley, Miss Cecille Corboy, Miss Isabel Gordon, Mrs. Ralph Mills, Miss Virginia Wiley, Miss Peggy Wiley, and Mrs. Julius T. Benedict with her adorable little daughter Mileste; Mrs. Malcolm F. Johnson, and Mrs. James S. Clare.

There was much talk about the tenth annual dinner dance for the benefit of Madonna Center, which takes place this year at the Bal Tabarin in the Hotel Sherman on Saturday, April 29.

State Garden Club Reports Profit for Show at Navy Pier

Presidents of the 126 chapters of the Garden Club of Illinois met yesterday at the Palmer House. Mrs. O. W. Dynes, Hinsdale, president of the organization, reported that the seventh annual flower show held recently at Navy Pier had removed the deficit from last year's show, paid all current bills and left a sum in the treasury.

As a result the group voted to conduct another show next year and again selected Navy Pier for the exposition.

Mrs. Dynes continues as president. Other officers are Mrs. L. G. Youngclove, Freeport, second vice president; Mrs. Nellie R. Hammond, Barrington, recording secretary; Mrs. Roy E. Bird, Oak Park, treasurer; Mrs. David O. Dunbar, Wheaton, hospitality chairman; Mrs. W. W. Shoemaker, Hubbard Woods, legislative chairman; Mrs. Mark W. Good Morning!

Somebody got the droll idea that a system MIGHT be evolved by which husband and wife could play partners at contract bridge without committing assault, oral or otherwise. And so—"Grand Slam." (Adapted from the novel by B. Russell Herts.)

Too bad the writing wasn't as smart as the idea.

The picture most decidedly has its moments. It possesses a dandy cast and is a number sure to prove mildly interesting to bridge addicts. Trouble is—the story doesn't hold up its end.

The action starts in a Russian restaurant. Here Peter Stanislavsky waits table, plays piano, yearns to write books on political economy, and is adored by the hat check girl—who is in turn worshiped by a "ghost writer" named Philip, perpetrator of the famous Van Dorn book on contract bridge.

Now, Peter is truly a genius. He calls bridge a "childish pastime" and refuses to play until——

Shortly after his marriage to Marcia he is summoned to work at a private party given at the home of a frivolous young society matron who for some time has had a crush on the handsome waiter. . . .

"I don't want you to carry a tray," she says to him. And leads him off to her table to make a fourth at bridge. Also playing is the redoubtable Van Dorn, looking, as Peter remarks later, "like Jackie Cooper in whiskers."

"Seven spades," bids Peter wearily.

Consternation—and sneers.

"No," says Peter. "SEVEN SPADES."

He makes it. By the evening's end he's famous and the morning papers carry word of his exploit. . . .

The "ghost writer" immediately catapults into his life. And now—the Stanislavsky system is the rage. Peter and his bride, cooing like doves, always play together and the radios tune in on their beatific bridge games. Ah, WHAT a system! If a man loved his wife BEFORE the game started, by its end he was positively gaga about her. . . . !

But at home? Well, the Stanislavsky dwelling is no Eden. Papa gets the big head and mamma gets tired. . . . Events lead up to a contest at the famous Liederkranz club between Van Dorn and Stanislavsky, both striving for international fame and the money same will cause to roll in. . . . And so on, scrappily, to a happy ending.

Along about here a funny scene is produced by trick photography. You discover world activities ceasing abrutply with the start of the match. Another comic sequence occurs with its ending.

"Grand Slam" is fun. But it might easily have been MORE fun.

Also on the screen bill is a fascinating and informative "short" showing active volcanoes at work and at play.

Paris Debutantes Wear Nightgowns to Formal Dances

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Helene Yrande, who is one of the most exclusive and smart makers of French lingerie in Paris, and who also makes clever frocks, reports that her gay young debutante clients are choosing nightgowns which they wear to dances instead of the regulation dance frocks made for such occasions.

This isn't quite as startling as it seems, because Yrande has made a new nightgown fashion that cannot be distinguished from that of the evening gown mode for youthful persons, except that the former is in no way stiff nor constraining. It is such nightgowns that are being seized for wear in the ballroom.

The model illustrated today is one of Helene Yrande's ball or bedroom frocks that are having such a public success. It is made of sky blue dull crêpe, with a slightly rough surface, and is cut with a long skirt, which being on the bias tends to mold the figure.

It has a high waisted fitted bodies, and a harness bertha made of the same tone of blue satin. This bertha supplies a suggestion of sleeves over the arms and is twisted at the front and back. A big blue satin handkerchief is carried with it.

47,100 Crowd Lawn of White House at Easter Egg Rolling

Washington, D. C., April 17.—[Special.]—One bright blue Easter egg is a pretty thing. Fifty thousand Easter eggs squashed and mashed into the wet ground are anything but a pretty sight. And the White House lawn tonight was a muddy mixture of magenta and purple and green eggshells, of hard boiled yolks, of shredded tissue paper, of toy chickens no longer fluffy. As the gardeners raked, and perhaps cursed, 47,100 people in Washington were remembering the egg rolling ceremony as a gay day.

Not all the 47,100 who entered the gates of the south lawn today were children. Indeed, when President Roosevelt stood there on the porch, waved a hand that somehow seemed to include everybody in the crowd, he said, with a laugh:

"It seems to me I see more grown-ups than children."

The rule is that every child up to the age of 10 may be admitted; that no adult may come in without a child as a passport. The old gag of the youngster renting himself for a dime or two bits to the childless bystander who wants to get in to the White House lawn was tried today again and again, in spite of the fact that several enterprising lads were told, on their fourth trip in, with different parents each time, that they'd have to stay in or out, but to make up their minds.

After the President had given his welcome, Mrs. Roosevelt, with Meg, the Scottie, on a plaid leash, and Anna Roosevelt Dall with daughter Sistie to her right and Major, the police dog, to her left, struggled their way through the crowds and all about the grounds.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

One thing last Sunday's fashion parade brought out was the youngest set . . . they were coated, frocked and hatted [not bonneted] this year in gay and delightful apparel that totally eclipsed lots of the grown-up creations. At last, youngsters are getting a break; springtime nowadays means knockout copies of grownup clothes, good looking snappy outfits that any small fashion hound would gladly brave a dozen rainstorms in order that admiring friends and excited and hitherto rather blasé oldsters might O and ah.

The tweed topcoats were out in all their glory . . . small toddlers up to school girls wore them, and the perky puffed leg-o-mutton sleeves looked like a million dollars, framing fresh young faces. Pastel colored, pique covered collars, lapels and tiny cuffs were exact duplicates of what you would find frosting the lapels, cuffs, and collars of French originals cherished by deb sister. And the hats shot skyward on Dutch bobbed heads of small girls as ethereally as they zoomed into the air atop coiffures of distinguished dowager and fashion knowing debutante alike.

Some of the younger fry could show a lot of lazy grown-up shoppers how to dash about in the rain and skip through dozen puddles with swanky, and proper rainy day apparel . . . one fetching pair had twin raincoats of old blue over their Easter finery and decidedly smart caps that looked like jockey affairs, with deep protecting visors to keep the rain off. Others went in for white umbrellas, in most cases to match white rubber footgear . . . and together with old rose or powder blue coats and hats, with each small, chubby fist clutching a giddy yellow daffodil, you can just imagine the furore these ambitious fashionables of four did create.

Many a young gallant plodded seriously beside a small bit of befrilled femininity, carefully holding a diminutive colored umbrella over the young lady's head, and they, too, were dressed for admiring comments . . . in most cases, sturdy oxfords; shorts of time honored blue serge, a cutaway coat tailored to the last inch, replete with any number of pockets; a very white and very masculine shirt, with an expertly tailored collar, and an eye filling cravat that many a man about town will covet for days. And one thing you did notice was the total absence of berets . . . it seems the regular guys are wearing caps this season!

Say what you will, very young Chicagoans staged by far the best fashion parade, and they sauntered up and down the avenue with all the aplomb of seasoned veterans of the boulevard.

The Changeling Bride

By Martha Ostenso

SYNOPSIS.

The Hendersons—Meryl and Margaret, sisters; Flint, their older brother, and Andrew, the father, have lived for twelve years in poverty in a fishing settlement on the shores of Lake Superior, after losing their fortune in Chicago. Great-Aunt Letitia, formerly dean of a girl's school in Ohio, is the liaison between the Hendersons and a cultured past. Flint and his friend, Ned Brenner, hope to build up a great export business. A forest fire brings Blake Lawrence, injured and lost, to the Henderson cottage. There were two great names in nearby Agate Bay and its environs—Lawrence and Greer. When Blake returns to Agate Bay he takes Meryl with him to be his bride. Meryl learns, after the wedding ceremony, through Lucia, a snobbish cousin of the Lawrences, that Blake married her as an escape from Christine, the wife of Julius Greer, with whom he had been in love. Meryl prepares to return home. Theresa, Blake's sister, persuades her to stay for six months, for Blake's sake, whom she still loves, and not to hurt her people. Theresa promises to teach her social service work. Greer at one time saved the Lawrence fortune and Blake feels honor bound not to interfere with the crooked schemes he knows Greer is engaged in. Meryl believes Blake won't hate Greer because of Christine. Greer causes the death of Ola Palka, an old friend and neighbor of the Hendersons. Theresa and Meryl go to New York to attend a charity conference.

INSTALLMENT XXXII.

A PROMISE GIVEN.

New York, Meryl wrote to the small white house at Singing Cove, was a million-million things rolled together into one. It was sound—symphony, syncope, and screaming discord. It was color—the unthinkable shine of skyscrapers in a January sun, the gray valleys of night rain in steep streets, the frenzied brilliance of lighted squares. It was odor—the odor of brutal, undefeated poverty on the east side, and of delicate, undefeated wealth on Park avenue.

But she did not betray to them the fact that as the days went by she had tried vainly to enjoy the hundred and one diversions her visit in the metropolis offered her.

Immediately after their arrival in the city Theresa and Meryl had been prevailed upon to stay with old friends of the Lawrences, the Charles Boissevains, on Park avenue. With a magnificent duplex apartment as their headquarters they had found the city opening to them like a flower. There had been concerts, and plays, and numerous parties everywhere, from Harlem to Greenwich Village. There had been meetings with celebrities in every department of art. There had been illuminating sessions in the conference of the

He led her to a secluded corner where she told him of her letter.

Charity Organization society. And yet, the superficial stimulus palling, Meryl found her heart and her mind empty because Blake—even the gloomy, self-contained Blake that she knew—was not there with her.

Out of the strange and crowded weeks, however, one thing had impressed her more deeply than anything else. That was her meeting with Cy Granville and the spontaneous growth of their friendship.

It was at a tea at the Boissevains' a few days after her advent there with Theresa that Meryl had first met Cy. And it was odd that she should have met him just at that moment. For only an hour before a letter had been placed in her hands from Flinty, containing the truth about the death of Ola Palka. Her emotions when she shook hands with Cy Granville were still in such turmoil that it seemed to her he could not fail to observe them. Perhaps he had sensed something, for he had led her to a secluded corner of the room where, to his sympathetic ears, she had told him of her letter from Flinty.

That moment had sealed their friendship. Cy's fervent abomination of Julius Greer matched her own. He had spent the last month in Washington in a vain effort to secure legislation against the enterprise which Greer was sponsoring. That fact in itself would have won Meryl's sympathy and admiration. But Cy himself, with his honest, homely face and his engaging smile, was far from unlikable.

Chester Hyde, who had been in New York for the last week on business, had had two opportunities for observing Cy's irreproachable but eager attentiveness to Meryl, once at a dinner in the Boissevain apartment and again at an exclusive night club in the East Fifties. On the second occasion he had sat at a table close by and had lifted his glass toward Meryl with a knowing look that had made her furious.

She was dressed now to go to dinner with Cy, the third time they had been together within the last week. She gave herself a cursory glance in the mirror and approved absently the black velvet dinner gown which gave her a look of real sophistication.

The amber wall lights at each table in Monte's place were designed to give the guests a feeling of privileged seclusion. The sleek, murmuring, cat-footed waiters augmented the effect by the lights.

"Meryl," he said in a low, hesitant tone, "we'll have to be going if we're to meet Tess. I'm sorry this has to come to an end."

"It has been lovely, Cy."

"It will probably be our last hour together—like this," he told her.

She smiled at him. "Have you had enough of me—so soon?"

"I won't answer that," he said seriously. "If you were not already the wife of one of my best friends——" He broke off abruptly and regarded her silently. "The fact is I'm going back west tomorrow night, and I'll be busy up to the last minute."

"But—I thought you were planning to stay in New York for another month."

"I was—here and in Washington. But I had a long distance call from Minneapolis today. Things aren't going any too well. It looks as if our friend Greer is going to crash through unless a miracle happens."

"And they've sent for you to perform the miracle?"

Cy grinned. "The days of miracles have passed, I'm afraid. We're putting up a fight, but we'll probably go down fighting. That's about all there is left to it."

"Blake's support would mean a great deal to you, wouldn't it, Cy?" she asked softly with an uncertain catch in her voice.

Cy hitched his shoulders up with some embarrassment. "It would, of course," he said in his gentle way. "The Lawrence name carries almost as much weight in the lake country as Greer's. But, I've talked it all out with Blake. I understand his position. Your husband has a very keen sense of honor, Meryl, and I am bound to respect it."

"Is it honor, or pride?" Meryl asked, and looked across at him with a directness which made Cy's glance fall as though in acute discomfort.

"Let's call it family honor, then," he replied.

"Is there nothing I could do to help in the fight?" she asked.

"I wouldn't want you to do anything. I don't want to see you in it. Nothing can be dirtier than politics, especially when it's mixed up with big business."

Some absurd loyalty within Meryl had forbidden her to reveal to Cy even a shadow of her disappointment at Blake's frozen refusal to oppose Julius Greer.

"Will you promise to do something for me?" she asked quickly. "Even if it hurts your own pride a little."

He leaned across the table and seized her hands in his. "For you, Meryl?" he said in confusion. "I'd go through hell, and take my pride with me——"

"Speak to Blake once more," she interrupted breathlessly.

His smile was almost pathetic as he pressed her fingers. "I'll go and see him as soon as I get back," he promised.

Tears sprang quickly to her eyes. "Please, Cy!" she pleaded. "It means—more to me—more than you can think."

"I understand you, dear," he said.

"I know you do," she replied.

Former Stars Are Extras in Hospital Film

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., April 17.—[Special.]—Alberta Vaughn, Helene Chadwick, and Merna Kennedy, all of them once starred, played glorified extras last week in Bill Boyd's Radio-RKO film, "Emergency Call."

Alberta was a switchboard girl in the police hospital and Merna a hospital file clerk. Some of the other good looking girls who played nurse bits really are nurses from Hollywood hospitals.

Besides Boyd, Bill Gargan, Wynne Gibson, and Betty Furness are in this film, whose high spot comes when the ambulance driver and surgeon, who are pals, find the police hospital has been tricked into using condemned and useless supplies provided by a grafting contractor [Edwin Maxwell]. One of the pals finally dies through relying on condemned ether.

Hinds recently played Dr. Eastman in "Gabriel Over the White House," Gregory La Cava brought him from the latter film to the former.

Attorney Hinds had previously played in some of the Pasadena Little theater productions, but always as an amateur in dramatics. He continues his practice of law, in which he is like Dr. Cecil Reynolds, Los Angeles brain specialist, who has been playing featured parts in stage and film productions for some years.

No Combination of Good Food Is Ever Harmful

BY MARY MEADE.

Food fears are about the most unfounded and unfortunate superstitions to which man is heir. You know what I mean if you've ever had the experience of unconcernedly ordering a square meal in your favorite lunchroom and in the middle of the process being held up with the exclamation that you mustn't eat lobster and ice cream or tomatoes and milk or whatever it was at the same meal.

Yet thousands of people—quite sane and sensible about such things as black cats and ladders in the street—still hold to the strange belief that certain foods, when eaten together, are poisonous. They are all right alone, but in combinations—never!

The answer, of course, is just this: No combination of good food is harmful. This has been proved many times by thorough scientific tests.

Then where did it all get started? Usually with a digestive disturbance. Some one has overeaten or has eaten spoiled or badly prepared food. Immediately accusing eyes are turned back over the last meal. Ah—fish and cream soup! Or cherries and milk! And the blame is laid on a harmless combination instead of where it should have been—on some one harmful food of the meal.

Likely the reason this happens so frequently when fish and shell fish are on hand is that sea foods have a decided tendency to spoil quickly. And when not entirely fresh, fish flesh is capable of producing very sick folk, just as can any spoiled meat or other spoiled protein food. But don't blame the milk. It was merely an innocent bystander.

As for lobster and ice cream, they usually spell a party, too much to eat, too late hours, and a general overdoing—plenty of excuse for nightmares. Lobster meat in itself has very little fat, but is quite concentrated protein. If it is fresh and good it is as digestible and harmless as any other animal or fish food. Ice cream is rich in fat. If eaten in quantities or "off schedule," things are likely to go wrong with our departments of the interior. And, of course, if there's a lobster in the offing then chalk down another mark for the fish and milk food fear!

Another stumbling block in the way of eating with variety is the fear some folk express of eating an acid food and milk together. The reason lies in the unpleasant appearance of curdled milk. It really doesn't look as if it would be a wholesome thing to have inside us. What we don't realize is that milk curdles in the stomach, cherries or no cherries, as one of the steps toward digestion. So while we may not be enthusiastic over the appearance of the curds in foods, yet we may rest assured that at least they won't hurt us.

Three Exhibits Get Attention in Art Circles

Illinois Society Displays Mrs. Bread's Work.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Easter's rainy week-end ushered in three exhibitions of interest. Under the auspices of the All-Illinois Society of Fine Arts, an exhibit of portraits and figure studies by Theodosia Park Breed opened in the Florentine room, Congress hotel. Mrs. Breed studied with Ralph Clarkson some years ago and later studied in New York, Prague, and Berlin. Her finest portrait in the present exhibit is that of her father, Robert E. Park, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago. The canvas is loaned by the university.

Another interesting portrait is that of Robert A. Hunter. The "Paquita" is a study of the Spanish dancer, is a good piece of modeling, the back is well done. "Chocolate Eyes" is the likeness of an impish little girl. The "Sylvia" is Mrs. Breed's daughter. A certain artificially and doll like quality about some of the portraits is to be regretted, but on the whole there is much that is pleasing and charming about Mrs. Breed's work.

The second exhibit is that of water colors of sailing vessels to be found in the Findlay galleries, Auditorium building. The water colors are by Ralph E. Power, who showed other marines a few years ago in the Palette and Chisel club. The present group consists of some twenty paintings. They are vigorous and picturesque. A white panoply of sail crowns blue seas. The romance of strange places runs through the rigging. Correct in detail, and many of them historic in character, these ships have a definite place in marine art. Mr. Power has dealt skilfully with his subject.

The third exhibit is that offered by the camera committee of the Prairie club in the Marshall Field tearoom. The exhibit is shown in connection with the 25th anniversary celebration of the club this month. There are amusing prints of earlier days, with the old fashioned costumes of the first "hikers," and there are a number of excellent photographs made recently. The exhibit is open to April 26.

THE STAGE

The Illinois theater, which has been inactive for more than a year, will reopen Thursday night, April 27, with "Shuffle Along of 1933," a Negro entertainment that seeks to revive the tradition of the "Shuffle Along" of thirteen years ago. Three of the four leading personalities of the earlier "Shufle Along"—Noble Sissle, Eubie Blake and Flournoy Miller— are featured in this group of entertainers. The show has had engagements in New York, Boston, and Philadelphia.

This première will start a new régime at the Illinois, with Christian G. Kiessling as manager. He is a well known Chicagoan who is returning to the theatrical field after twenty-seven years of activity in the state's attorney's office as secretary to Maclay Hoyne, Robert E. Crowe, and John A. Swanson.

The Illinois theater has not had a booking since the engagement of the last "Ziegfeld Follies," late in January, 1932. Its only other offering of that season was "The Green Pastures," in the fall of 1931. The title to the property now resides in the bondholder's committee, of which Harry J. Powers, former managing director and part owner of the theater, is chairman.

A sequel to "Of Thee I Sing," showing President Wintergreen and Vice President Throttlebottom in their second presidential term, is announced by Sam M. Harris, producer of this satirical extravanganza, for staging next fall. The same authors—George S. Kaufman, Morrie Ryskind, George Gershwin, and Ira Gershwin—have been commissioned to continue their musical travesty of national politics, and the principal players of the original company will be reëngaged for the new production. "Let 'Em Eat Cake" will be the sequel's title.

George M. Cohan will begin an engagement at the Grand Opera House Sunday night, May 14, in his latest comedy, "Pigeons and People."

The management of "Yoshe Kalb" announces that the Chicago première of this Yiddish drama next Thursday night will begin at 8:10 p. m.—C. C.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Amused the Onlookers.

While shopping the other day I entered a store to have a chat with a girl friend. We spoke for a few moments. Suddenly I felt one of the packages under my arm growing lighter.

Upon looking down, imagine my embarrassment to see fish lying on the counter and floor. In a few seconds a great many people had gathered around me. At first I didn't realize that the fish were mine. The astonishment on my face provoked much laughter on the part of onlookers. I hurriedly gathered the fish together and left the store. G. S.

the fashion revue the board of the Northwestern University settlement held at the Country club of Evanston. There were many gay parties crowding the club lounge . . . one of the nicest that of Mrs. Edwin Sherman for Miss Margaret Dawes, who will wed Beverly Jefferson on May 13 . . . and every one of the guests was making notes [mental and pencil] on the costumes preferred.

Mrs. Chester D. Tripp, the president of the hard working Evanston board, said last night she was sure the party would benefit the settlement to the extent of $1,000, one tenth of the amount the board contributes annually.

Mrs. Hutchins Lectures Tonight.

There will be a distinguished audience on hand this evening to hear Mrs. Robert Maynard Hutchins and young Mortimer Adler in a joint discussion of their "joint" book, "Diagrammatics." The informal lecture is scheduled for 8 o'clock at Mandel hall on the University of Chicago campus.

A great deal of interest is being evinced in the event, since it will present Mrs. Hutchins to the university students in a new rôle . . . as a sculptor and author rather than as the president's wife. Thornton Wilder, an old friend of both the Hutchinses, will preside, and the proceeds are going to the student lecture service which provides for three deserving college students.

In the audience will be Mrs. Joseph E. Otis, Mrs. Cyrus G. Hill, Miss Margaret Carr, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Stifler, Mr. and Mrs. Shailer Mathews, Miss Sophonisba Breckenridge, Mrs. Helen Walton, and Prof. and Mrs. Charles E. Merriam.

Another interesting program on the university campus this evening is the second episode in the history of American movies. The Renaissance society, associated with International house, has dug up some of Charlie Chaplin's first films and will show them at 8 o'clock with all of the proper atmosphere of their day.

Sunbeam League Gives Party Today

Today brings the annual spring card party and tea of the Sunbeam league at the Stevens hotel. And, according to the ticket sales reported yesterday by Miss Cecile Murphy, the great ballroom will be filled with card tables. All of the proceeds will go to support the kindergartens the league has organized in more than a half dozen hospitals in the city.

In spite of the fact that the board members will be weary tomorrow morning after their party today, they have scheduled their annual meeting for noon at the Stevens hotel. During luncheon a successor will be elected for Miss Virginia Erlandson, who presides over the league, as well as for the other members of the executive committee.

The James H. Winstons of Evanston were pleasantly surprised yesterday when a wire came from their young son, Albert, announcing that he had been elected the only freshman member of the student council at Amherst college. Mr. Winston was temporary chairman of his class and now is prominent in extracurricular activities.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Carson Pirie Jr., who have just recently returned from Florida, have taken a house for the summer at 32 Brittany road, Highland Park, near Bobolink. They are moving out there now, but they will not settle in their new home until they return from Sea Cliff, N. Y., where they are going tomorrow to spend two weeks with Mr. Pirie's family.

Lutheran Women.

The Chicago Lutheran Woman's league will meet at 11 o'clock this morning at the Woodlawn Immanuel Lutheran church, 64th street and Kenwood avenue. Luncheon will follow the program.

Child's Fear of Thunderstorms Is Not Strange

Any Loud Sudden Noise Apt to Terrify.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

The conversation swung from spring to summer and thence to thunderstorms.

"I love them," said one woman. "I love the crash and roll and the wind and the lightning. I'm always delighted when I see the clouds piling up for an electric storm."

This woman loves the organ, and revels in storms at sea.

"I never did like them especially," said another. "I've been in two houses that were struck by lightning and I've always been uneasy since."

I've never understood why people are so surprised or worried when their small children are afraid of thunderstorms. We know loud sudden noises alarm babies and young children. We know, also, that some young children are much more easily shocked or startled than others. Surely thunder is a loud sudden noise!

If some young children fear it, why is it so surprising? Children vary in this as in other things. The best general preventive of, or antidote to a fear of thunder storms is to act in a calm, matter of fact way when they're going on—admiring them and talking about them, or if it seems to work better, using a combination of accepting and ignoring them as you continue going about your affairs.

But if a fear develops, you'll find that somethimes a definite occurrence will "date" it. This may be due to an association with some one who is terrified, or to a storm so violent and spectacular that its very force is frightening.

Not always, however, can the beginning of this fear of thunder storms be traced. Where it cannot be, my own interpretation is that a storm may come when a child is in a highly sensitive state either as to nervous or emotional balance, and coming just at that delicate moment, it strikes terror to his heart where at another time it might not. Then, that pattern being set he continues to fear storms, at least for a while—perhaps months, perhaps years. But one day, to your surprise, you'll find that he's outgrown the fear. After all, you can only do just so much—time and nature have a share, too.

MINUTE MYSTERY

BY R. A. RIPLEY.

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his case-book covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

SELF-CONVICTED.

Prof. Fordney found in the dead man's pockets only the usual things. Loose change, jack-knife, car keys extra shells, matches, etc.—also an Ingersoll watch which had stopped at 1:18. Kitler's body had just been recovered from the quarry where Tom Simmons had thrown it.

Jake Kitler and Simmons had started out in Kitler's car early that morning to hunt deer. Driving over an old logging road to a clearing near Patsy's lake, they parked the car and then set out in different directions looking for game, said Simmons. He told Fordney they had arranged to meet back at the car at noon for lunch—but he arrived about half an hour late.

To his horror and amazement he found his friend dead from a shotgun wound through the chest. Putting the body in the back seat of the car, he started for town when he suddenly realized the seriousness of his position—he might not be able to convince the authorities that it was an accident! He was appalled; seized with panic, he decided to throw the body into a nearby quarry which was partially filled with water. This he did, but he said worry had driven him to confess.

The professor listened attentively—he knew Simmons' account of the tragedy was highly improbable. As the two had met no one else that morning, he knew the "confessor" had, no doubt, murdered his friend—under entirely different circumstances!

WHY DID THE PROFESSOR BELIEVE SO?

[See solution on page 29.]

Perhaps you have a story or problem you would like to submit to Prof Fordney. If so send it to him in care of this paper. He will be delighted to receive it.

much handier THAN HANDS to clean toilets

OF COURSE toilets must be clean! But that doesn't mean scrubbing and scouring with your hands to make them glisten. Scrubbing never gets the porcelain as bright and pure as cleaning with Sani-Flush.

Just sprinkle a bit of Sani-Flush in the bowl. (Follow directions on the can.) Flush. And the toilet sparkles. Stains and odors go. The hidden trap is purified and safe. And Sani-Flush can't harm plumbing.

LABORATORY TESTS CHECK EFFICACY OF KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN

Show Why This Delicious Cereal Overcomes Common Constipation

There are scientific reasons for the success of ALL-BRAN in preventing and relieving common constipation. Laboratory investigations show that it supplies "bulk" to exercise the intestines; and vitamin B to promote appetite, and help tone the intestinal tract.

These two important food-elements aid regular habits, and help do away with the headaches, loss of appetite and energy, so often the result of constipation.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is mild in action—much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Isn't this pleasant "cereal way" far more healthful than using pills and drugs—so often habit-forming!

Just eat two tablespoonsful of Kellogg's daily—enough for most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Besides, ALL-BRAN brings your body twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, softer, more palatable. Equally tasty as a cereal, or used in cooking. Recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

'Sway' Neck Avoided by This Exercise

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

As announced yesterday with the first exercise of the Six-a-Day set each and every one of you is urged to do [man, woman, boy and girl] this week you are offered something extremely valuable in health and look maintenance.

Out of the series that has been running in this column the last five weeks, Major Rayner of West Point has chosen a complete and full exercise set that will take not more than five minutes to do, but which in his words "are best suited, not only to limber up, stretch the muscular structure of the body, and correct bad postural habits, but also, combined as they are with deep breathing, to tone up the entire system."

Today appears the second of Major Rayner's selection in the four to five minute easy morning session. This is to take the kinks out of the neck muscles, massage them, and to stimulate the blood circulation. In military terminology there is a condition called "bottle neck." This neck exercise will correct it. And for the women, here's a way to defeat all those telltale neck lines you hear so much about.

The neck exercise, No. 2 in the Six-a-Day set, is done following the stretching exercise given yesterday. This exercise done consistently and regularly will surely "put a better head on your shoulders," give you more of that thing called style, which has everything to do with the smartness of the hat and the coiffure.

It's surprising how many men and women have a sway neck and are not aware of it as they might be aware of a sway back. The sway neck does the same thing to the lift of the head as the sway back does to the silhouette—makes one look older and dowdy anyway, without that "sure, smart, efficiently poised head" that looks the part of youth.

Even though there's nothing wrong with your neck, practice this No. 2 in the Six-a-Day just so it will be a long, long day before any of the well known neck thickening or age signs begin to appear.

Fault Finding Fiance Yet Has a Fatal Charm

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Dot" was engaged to the chap for over a year. His continuous faultfinding eventually got on her nerves. So one peeved evening she told him she'd be just as pleased if she never saw his face again. The young man took her literally and now "Dot" wants him back. More than she wants anything else, she wants that boy back. She'll stand his faultfinding. Even though nothing she ever did was right, she'd rather have that young man around than any one else in the world.

All the June wedding plans have gone up in smoke. And "Dot" has a big hope chest well filled with linens, laces, and lingerie.

"What to do about it?" "Dot" moans. The boy friend says he's through. That he doesn't have to be told twice he's not wanted around.

We suppose that's love. When you're willing to stand for faultfinding day after day it must be love. Being so, then, and happiness impossible with another—we're all for "Dot" getting the boy friend back in time for the June wedding. She'll probably have to do most of the unbending to get him back. Admit the quarrel was all her fault. Be humbly sorry.

Perhaps there is reason for his objections. This might be considered without any of the hot-headed resentment indicated. After all, they do say that it is only a friend who'll tell us our faults. Granted it isn't music to the ears of any one of us, still it's been known to prove valuably corrective medicine.

Anyway, if you're in love with a man and what you do irritates him, isn't it better to try to please him? If the faults get on his nerves now, you may be sure in marriage they'll become far worse irritants.

LADYSMAN GOES FROM 10-1 TO 4-1 IN DERBY BOOKS

Report Big Plunge on Favorite.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The betting in the Kentucky Derby future books yesterday indicated that W. R. Coe's Ladysman is going to win the renewal of the famous 3 year old race at Churchill Downs on May 6.

W. R. COE.

The odds against him, which have been short ever since the Derby nominations were announced, were battered down during the day. There was a genuine old fashioned plunge on the colt which has come to be known as the Sheik of Shoshone. Shoshone is the name of Coe's breeding farm.

Kearney Quotes Him at 4-1.

He was at 10 to 1 early yesterday. He had ruled as the favorite at about those odds since the wagering started. Last night the two big future book operators, Tom Shaw of New York and Tom Kearney of St. Louis, had slashed the odds down to about where they may be when the Derby field parades to the post.

Shaw quoted Ladysman at 5 to 1. Kearney's odds against him were 4 to 1. Not since Reigh Count's Derby year—1928—have the odds against a future book favorite been shorter.

It was Ladysman's impressive debut as a 3 year old at the Havre De Grace track in Maryland Saturday that started the plunge on the colt. He won the six furlong dash against some formidable eastern Derby contenders easily, it requiring only one slash of Jockey Sonny Workman's whip to send him on to victory.

Trainer Is Right.

Ladysman went into the race with a bad looking right hind leg. It had been scarred a few days earlier when he straddled a stall gate partition at the Coe training farm while bucking and playing. "It looks bad, but doesn't amount to anything," Trainer Bud Stotler told the fans who looked the colt over in the paddock.

The race a few minutes later demonstrated that Trainer Stotler knew what he was talking about.

Track scouts for the future book operators who watched Ladysman win made glowing reports on his condition. These reports were probably responsible for the sharp drop in the odds during the day.

Ladysman had ruled as the winter favorite because he was generally regarded as the 2 year old champion of last season. He didn't reach good form until midsummer last year and many racegoers believed he might be late in coming to hand this year. His race in Maryland indicated he will be at the top of his form by Derby day.

Gets 100-1 on Charley O.

There was some play in Chicago during the day on Sarada, another eastern Derby colt. This fellow is reported to have worked sensationally lately and to be one of the best conditioned 3 year olds anywhere in the country. Despite the play on him, the odds remained at around 20 to 1.

Harry McCall made some Chicagoans envious yesterday when he displayed a winter book ticket for $1,000 against his $10 on Charley O. to win the Derby. He made the wager in Miami at 100 to 1 odds just before Charley O. won the Florida Derby. McCall usually backs only Col. E. R. Bradley's colts for the Derby. He has been a part of Bradley's Palm Beach club organization for many years and to find him with a ticket on Charley O. bewildered the habitual backers of Bradley Derby timber. Since McCall made the bet the odds against Charley O. have dropped to 15 to 1.

The western colt which most Chicago players fancy is Head Play, which won the juvenile championship at Hawthorne last August. He is at 20 to 1 in the betting, yet the clockers in Kentucky make reports day after day that he is the fastest colt training in Kentucky.

NORTH SHORE TO PLAY 6TH CORPS IN POLO TOURNEY

BY HOWARD BARRY.

An open class elimination game between the North Shore Riding club and the Sixth Corps area team will top tonight's play in the national indoor polo tournament at the 124th Field Artillery armory. In a special intercity contest the Commonwealth Polo club of Boston will oppose the 122d Field Artillery of Chicago.

This game was arranged as a substitute for the scheduled match between the Brooklyn Riding and Drving club and the 124th Field Artillery Cardinals. Inability of the Brooklyn team to get here on time forced the revision of the program.

Nicholls Gets New Chance.

The North Shore Riding club team will be composed of Herb Lorber, Jim Hannah, and William H. Nicholls. The latter played on the Commonwealth team, which was defeated in the class B championship game Saturday night, but, under the rules of the tournament, any one who has competed in any class is eligible for a place on a team trying for the open title.

Nicholls is rated at six goals. Only one other player—Capt. Maxwell Corpening—has had so high a rating in the tournament thus far.

Against Lorber's selected team the Sixth Corps will send the same trio which has been playing together all season—Maj. C. C. Smith, Capt. C. A. Wilkinson, and Capt. C. E. Davis. In the course of their campaigning these three players have developed teamwork to a remarkable degree.

Spot Chicago Six Goals.

In the intercity match the Boston team will spot the Chicagoans six goals at the outset, for the Commonwealth players total ten goals and the 122d Field Artillery only four.

Jack Pickering, with a rating of four goals, will be at No. 1 for the Commonwealth team; George Oliver, also four goals, will take No. 2, and Lyle Phillips, a two goal player, will be No. 3. Oliver played conspicuously well with Maj. Hunter's open class team Saturday night.

Lieuts. Harrison, Johnson, and Zimmerman will represent the 122d Field Artillery.

SHORE IS NAMED MOST VALUABLE HOCKEY PLAYER

MONTREAL, Que., April 17.—(AP)—Eddie Shore, defense man of the Boston Bruins, has been chosen as the player most valuable to his team during the 1932-'33 National Hockey league season, it was announced at league headquarters tonight.

The choice, decided on the basis of votes by hockey writers throughout the league territory, carries with it the Dr. David A. Hart trophy.

For the fifth time in his career Frank Boucher, center of the New York Rangers, was adjudged the player who exhibited the best type of sportsmanship combined with a high standard of playing ability and to him was awarded the Lady Byng trophy.

Tiny Thompson of the Boston Bruins won the Georges Vezina memorial trophy for the best goalie record of the season.

Although Shore has been for years one of the league's outstanding figures, previously he never has won the "most valuable player" award. Bill Cook, veteran right wing of the New York Rangers, and Lawrence [Baldy] Northcott of the Montreal Maroons, finished second and third in the balloting.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

THOUGHTS OF HOME.

FORT AUBURNDALE, Fla., April 17.—Friend Arch: Well, Arch, your letter came with the $100 check in it, so I'll be on my way home at once. I didn't like to ask you to get it for me, but you know how it is, what with my bank still not reopening. You didn't say whether it was an advance order on my coming expense account from Louisville or whether you sent it yourself, but anyway, it answers the purpose.

I didn't think there'd be any expense account problems from here since I was on vacation, but Jimmy forwarded my office mail and many of the letters required answers to the number of 48 with 3 cents postage each. Of course, I know you'll want to refund this postage, but that isn't where the complication comes in.

Down here we buy postage stamps in those little books so the stamps won't stick together. A book of twelve costs 37 cents. Four books or 48 stamps, therefore, cost $1.48. But if I put 48 stamps on my expense account at $1.48 the auditing department sure will wonder how come and change it to $1.44. Of course 4 cents isn't much, but it's the principle of the thing and it sort of worries me. I don't see why something always is bobbing up in my expense accounts.

Although most of the people here are leaving now, I've met several others. They're Maurice Shurtleff of Elgin, his wife and two children. He used to go to college at Oberlin with "Nelly" Metcalf, present University of Chicago athletic director. He's a son of Edwin D., for so many years speaker of the house and now a Circuit judge.

Well, Maurice was going home but he had a wire from his firm at home that they had made money in March while he was away for the first time in 27 months and so he better stay as long as he wanted. That wouldn't have been so good in most cases only he owns the firm. So it was all right and he's going to stay another month to see if they can make any more money. If they do he's going to send for $100 like I did.

Remember George Haskins of Winnetka who was in our foursome once at Skokie? His wife and son, Bud, showed up the other day on their way to Miami Beach, but liked it so well here they never got any farther.

Did I tell you about the honest garage man on the federal highway quite a bit north of here? He had a sign out, "Last Chance for 20c Gas." As we were taking a jaunt along the coast we filled up the tank of the old bus. The sign was correct. At the next station the price of gasoline was 19 cents.

Well, I better stop writing, for it must be getting late. I'm not sure just what time it is because yesterday I went into the ocean with my watch in the change pocket of my bathing trunks. For some reason the watch has stopped since. I asked the jeweler what was the best thing to do with the watch and he said the best thing was to throw it away. But it has great sentimental value so I don't know yet what I'll do about it.

I'll be seeing you in a few days.

Regards,
HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

LOPEZ TO AID SHAUGHNESSY AS MAROON COACH

Julian Lopez, assistant to Clark Shaughnessy for the last three years at Loyola of New Orleans, will aid Shaughnessy in coaching the University of Chicago football team during the remaining month of spring practice on the Midway. Lopez, who was quarter back on the Loyola team in 1927, '28, and '29, reported for duty yesterday.

Coach Shaughnessy has divided his Maroon squad into four teams, and while he is himself teaching the first and third teams the elements of his complicated attack, Lopez will run the second and fourth teams.

Lopez is a member of the Louisiana bar and was employed in the trust department of a large New Orleans bank until it closed recently. He is regarded by Shaughnessy as the ablest quarter back Loyola has had.

The other Maroon coaches are emphasizing the teaching of specialties. Lopez's arrangement on the Midway is for one month only.

Petitions urging that Harlan O. [Pat] Page be retained as baseball coach at the University were circulated yesterday by members of the Maroon baseball squad. The petitions will be presented to Thomas Nelson Metcalf, director of athletics, within a few days.

CUBS GO BACK TO WORK TODAY AGAINST PIRATES

Players Hope to Put One Over on Weather Man.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cubs had a laugh on the weather man yesterday, he thinking he was raining them out of another ball game, whereas there never was a game scheduled. This caused a great deal of laughter among the boys for a while but when they got bulletins indicating the final with the Pittsburgh Pirates may be rained out today they were not so full of mirth.

Many more days of idleness and all the fruits of California training, for which they braved earthquakes, phantom tidal waves, and the moratorium, will have been dissipated.

Weather Man Frowns.

Since the Cubs left Los Angeles on the night of April 2 this is the way they have followed up their sunshine maneuvers on the coast:

April 3—Sat on the train and watched the great American desert.

April 4—Sat on the train and watched clouds of dust from a record sandstorm fill their hair, eyes, and ears.

April 5—Scheduled to play Kansas City but didn't because of rain.

April 6—Scheduled to play Kansas City but didn't because of cold.

April 8—Got licked by the White Sox in arctic temperatures.

April 9—Got licked by the White Sox in more arctic temperatures.

April 10 and 11—Tried to work out but it was too cold to do much good.

April 12—LON WARNEKE FORGOT ABOUT THE COLD AND SHUT OUT THE ST. LOUIS CARDINALS, 3 TO 0, ON FOUR HITS.

April 13—Got licked by the Cardinals in near freezing weather.

April 14—Frozen out.

April 16—Frozen out.

Yesterday—Open date on schedule.

Today—Probably rain and continued cold.

Tomorrow—Take a daylight ride to St. Louis.

Thursday—They may get a break.

May Do Them Good.

Of course all these things may eventually work to the Cubs' advantage for thus far they have not been forced to use all the members of their big four or first string pitching staff. Nor is there any assurance that the team is possessed of adequate relief talent in the pitching department.

The postponements, however, are taking the form of early double headers, the first of which now arranged is with the Cardinals on April 30. And double headers call for reserve strength. It is apparent therefore that Manager Charley Grimm's biggest task is to get his reserve pitchers in shape, if that is possible.

Nelson Has Trick Arm.

Tinning hasn't melted much under the inspiration of the current thermometer and Old Man Grimes risks his life in more ways than one every time he ventures on the diamond on these kind of days. Lynn Nelson, who probably is the best of the reserve pitchers now under contract, has a trick arm that may act up if forced during the cold. Roy Henshaw is eager and good but a little too green for the tough spots. And so on.

The trip wich starts tomorrow should afford some warmth on the first two stops—St. Louis and Cincinnati—and a week will have elapsed before they hit Pittsburgh.

The Cubs will be in St. Louis Thursday, Friday, and Saturday; in Cincinnati Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday. Their stay in Pittsburgh will be of only two days' duration, next Wednesday and Thursday, after which they come home for two games with Cincinnati and the April 30 double header with St. Louis before striking out for their first eastern swing, which opens in New York on May 2.

Baer Down to 224 Pounds in Workouts for Schmeling

New York, April 17.—[Special.]—Max Baer had another workout in Stillman's gymnasium today while his Atlantic City training camp was being prepared for him. Baer went through six rounds. He is down to 224 pounds and expects to be well below that weight when he meets Max Schmeling at the Yankee stadium, June 8.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

THIS looks like a big year for the south side. The White Sox are starting it by giving the baseball adherents something to shout about for the first time in 13 years. The University of Chicago football squad, which has been the White Sox of the Big Ten for several seasons, promises to give Midway fans equal opportunity to exercise their vocal chords.

Clark Daniel Shaughnessy, whose Maroons are now in the third week of spring practice, has no illusions about winning a Western conference championship in his first year as a Big Ten coach. But he does predict his athletes will be no doormats for other title seekers.

"We will have an interesting team," he said the other day. "The boys are too light to rate as championship contenders, but they will give all opponents a lot of trouble.

"I teach a system of football that is basically like Notre Dame's. We depend more upon speed, finesse and individual thinking than we do upon power. I encourage boys to think for themselves. I would rather have them deviate from orthodox football and perhaps make an occasional mistake than to have them follow routine always. In this way they really get some good out of football. It adds to the spectators' interest too, because they sometimes see plays that nobody would imagine possible.

"I never have worked with a squad so eager to learn. There seems to be a general weakness, particularly among the old timers, in blocking and tackling. I guarantee that this will be corrected before our first conference game. There is a big improvement already. We may not have the numerical strength to go anywhere next season, but I am reasonably sure that the fans will be able to say we have a team that knows how to execute fundamentals."

Shaughnessy also is giving some attention to next year's uniforms. He wants his team to look snappy. Drab colors, he contends, sometimes contribute to inferiority complex. He realizes, too, that football is a show and he likes to make it attractive and entertaining for spectators.

Maroon fans, who for the first time in the history of the university have a chance to study the policies of a new football coach, may take it that they have a man who undestands the real purposes of intercollegiate football. They are:

1. Revenue.
2. Advertising.

None of the universities, of course, will admit this statement. But they recognize it in their policies. Otherwise there would be no excuse for intercollegiate games. Most of them have been several steps ahead of the University of Chicago. It may be different henceforth if Shaughnessy is given half a chance.

You may say that a year is enough to demonstrate a coach's ability or lack of it and maybe you are right. Still the Rocknes, Warners, Yosts and Joneses required much more. The legends of their magic grew with the years.

How high would these legends have soared if those men had been restricted to a year to demonstrate the soundness of their theories?

A play occurred in Saturday's game between the Cubs and the Pirates that has developed no end of discussion.

Frank Demaree was at bat for the Cubs in the ninth inning with the score tied, the bases full and two out. The first two pitches were balls. Orthodox policy called for Demaree to let the next throw go by without swinging. Pitcher Harris knew it, of course. So he pitched one straight over the plate. It was what the boys call a cripple.

Demaree, probably acting under instructions from the bench, followed routine and let it pass. It was a strike. He grounded out a moment later and the game went into extra innings, the Cubs eventually losing.

Should Demaree have socked that cripple or was it smart baseball to wait it out? Wasn't his chance of hitting safely better if he had picked out that third pitch than by waiting until he had the hazard of a strike? Demaree, remember, is a comparative newcomer in major league baseball.

This, of course, is second guessing, but what would you have done?

CHICAGO LOSES 5 RUN LEAD AS GASTON TIRES

Frasier Is Pounded in Rescue Role.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., April 17.—Home runs brought disaster to the White Sox in ten innings today.

MILT GASTON.

With one of the homers the Tigers pulled up into a 5 to 5 tie in the eighth. With the other they sent the Chicagoans, who had started off with a five run lead, spinning into their second straight defeat. The score was 8 to 5. Two were on bases in the tenth when Ervin Pete Fox, a freshman from the Texas league, broke up the game.

The painful happenings toward the finish can be charged to the fact that Milt Gaston tired suddenly. After his teammates had presented him with five runs in the first inning, which was delayed by rain and repeated removals and replacements of the tarpaulin, the big right hander set out to finish the job as quickly as possible. He breezed through seven innings, allowing only one run. Then he fell apart unexpectedly in the eighth after Luke Appling had fumbled. Two doubles and a homer by Joyner White tied the score.

Frasier Is Victim.

When the finish came Vic Frasier was pitching for the Sox. In the ninth he had blinded the Tigers with his speed, and indications were that he could carry the struggle into darkness against Fred Marberry, the fourth Detroit pitcher. But a scratch hit to deep short by Owen at the start of the tenth put Frasier in a spot from which there was no escape. The next man bunted and then Stone was passed purposely. The situation eased a bit when White flied to Haas, but a moment later Simmons was standing helplessly in front of the left field score board watching Fox's drive take its long ride out of the park.

Although four Tiger pitchers were in action, the Sox didn't hit hard enough to deserve the attention of that many. Their start was so impressive that Vic Sorrell retired after facing three batters. Red Herring was rushed in, but before he could suppress the uprising the total of hits had reached five and the run total was the same.

It turned out that the Sox had crowded their day's attack into that one inning. The net result of their subsequent efforts was two singles, one by Grube to start the sixth, and one by Simmons in the seventh.

That Glorious First!

The intermittent action in the joyful first inning began with Sorrell handing a pass to Hayes. He went to third on Haas' single to right. Fonseca ran the count to 3 and 2 and then was surprised to hear Umpire Van Grafian announce the batter would have to halt because of the slight rain. Except for the umpire's shrinking suit there was no real reason for the intermission.

After the wait, during which the canvas cover was put on for the third time and the diamond was raked at the insistence of the umpires, Fonseca singled over short to score Hayes. That was all for Sorrell. Herring pitched once to Simmons and Al hooked it for a double to right, scoring both Haas and Fonseca. On Appling's fly to center Simmons moved over to third, and he scored on Kress' single through short. Dykes doubled to right and Kress crossed the plate with the fifth and last run of the big inning.

During the first three innings Gas-

WEATHER JINX AGAIN WRECKS PLANS OF GIANTS

Philadelphia, Pa., April 17.—[Special.]—The weather jinx that attached itself to the Giants in Boston last week, reached out here today to cause another upset to the team's plans for a baseball game away from the metropolitan area.

The scheduled clash with the Phillies was called off because of rain, making the fifth postponement for the Giants in the schedule of six games to date.

These April shower postponements, however, make the double headers of June, July and August, so there is a chance that the Giants may yet find a silver lining in the clouds that to date have confined the club to one game. Today's scheduled game will be played here as part of a double-header on June 3, it was announced by the club secretary, Jim Tierney.

WESLEY FERRELL RECOVERING FROM SHOULDER INJURY

St. Louis, Mo., April 17.—(AP)—Wesley Ferrell, Cleveland right hander, who tore adhesions in his shoulder loose while pitching here yesterday, tonight was responding to treatment and his baseball career was expected to continue.

Dr. Robert F. Hyland, club physician, examined the athlete thoroughly today and said the injury apparently was slight. Ferrell probably can take his turn on the mound in a few days, the physician decided.

For several years the hurler has experienced difficulty with the adhesions.

Arizmendi to Take Layoff Following Tonsil Removal

Los Angeles, Cal., April 17.—(AP)—Baby Arizmendi, Mexican bantam weight boxer, underwent an operation here today for removal of his tonsils. Afterward his condition was pronounced satisfactory. Cal Working, manager of the boxer, said Arizmendi will be ready for the ring in six weeks.

Invite Bird Fans to Attend Audubon Meet

BY BOB BECKER.

Tonight will be officially known as "Chicagoland bird night" for several hundred nature lovers who will assemble in the Chicago Academy of Sciences to attend the annual meeting of the Illinois Audubon society. Members of the Chicago Ornithological society and the Academy of Sciences will be special guests of the Audubon group at this meeting.

An invitation, however, is being broadcast to nature fans in Chicagoland that this meeting is an open house affair. Any one who is interested in birds and the outdoors in general is welcome to attend. The meeting will be held in the lecture hall of the Academy at Clark and Center streets at 8 o'clock.

W. I. Lyon to Speak.

The first speaker is W. I. Lyon, president of the Inland Bird Banding association, who is scheduled to tell of his experiences in trapping and banding more than 50,000 birds. He will also have many interesting records on migrations to tell bird fans. Alfred M. Bailey, curator of the academy, also is on the formal program and will show several reels of motion pictures on birds of Colorado.

This April meeting of bird fans is timed to the season. Nature lovers in Chicagoland are beginning to get busy with their binoculars and notebooks to record the great waves of southern birds which pass through Chicagoland during late April and early May.

Studies Fox Sparrows.

For example, last Sunday evening Mr. Lyon, a resident of Waukegan, reported to us that he had just finished a week of activity studying fox sparrows. Large numbers of these handsome sparrows have been coming up from the south and finding their way into his bird banding traps. Sunday also marked up an interesting record for Mr. Lyon in connection with the migration of brown creepers. He said that he had just banded brown creeper number 1,000. All were taken in his yard at Waukegan. Of this thousand he has had a return thus far from only one bird which was picked up in Minnesota.

Any nature lover interested in banding birds or in learning more about spring migrations will find it worthwhile to hear Mr. Lyon's talk tonight.

Lincoln Park Boat Club Holds Dinner Tomorrow

Lincoln Park Boat club will hold its annual stag dinner tomorrow at 7 p. m. at the Lincoln Turner hall in Diversey parkway. There will be a floor show under the leadership of Ray Binder. Bob Bobach is commodore, and Herbert J. Fluegge chairman of entertainment.

100 Jockeys, 300 Trainers Get Licenses

Licenses were granted to more than 100 jockeys and nearly 300 owners and trainers at the annual meeting of the license committee of the Illinois Turf association held here yesterday.

Only one application for a license was tabled, that of Trainer Jack Carter who had been refused a license by the Jockey Club in New York. The application of Trainer J. E. Hankins was held up for consideration.

The applications of 15 trainers and seven apprentice jockeys were held up pending identification.

Nearly all of the star jockeys and the trainers of the most pretentious stables in America were granted licenses at the meeting which was presided over by Charles F. Price the presiding steward at the Washington Park and Lincoln Fields tracks.

COMMISSION IS SUMMONED IN KRONE MAT WRIT

The state athletic commission yesterday was served with a summons to appear before Superior court Judge James Lindsay in the temporary injunction proceedings instituted by Doc Krone to restrain the commission from interfering with wrestling shows scheduled at the Coliseum on May 4 and 17. The hearing was set for Monday, May 1.

The commission's ban on wrestling in Illinois was unchanged yesterday. However, Thomas J. Rollavitch, veteran welterweight wrestler, as spokesman for a group of other Chicago wrestlers, gave the board some interesting information.

He asked the commission to reinstate wrestling and place it in three classes: No. 1—contests. No. 2—exhibitions. No. 3—comedy bouts. The commission said that his suggestions would be given consideration.

Outruns Tambour by Two Lengths; Action Third.

Havre de Grace, Md., April 17.—[Special.]—Neverfade, Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's 5 year old horse, made a triumphant return to the races after a layoff of nearly two years when he scored by two lengths over an odds-on favorite, P. M. Burgh's Tambour, in the featured Westminster purse at the Havre de Grace track today. Action was third.

The winner was easily the best of the six starters. He was away in the van and was able to stall off any threat without too much difficulty.

Track Is Sloppy.

Cloudy skies failed to hold down the attendance, but the sloppy going caused numerous scratches. Favorites disappointed the form players, only two winning.

Snobful, Open Hearth and Annimessic completed the field in the feature, finishing in that order after the first three. None of them was dangerous at any stage of the mile and seventy yard race.

Neverfade outran his field from the break and was rated along with a small margin until Tambour's effort forced him to a drive. Under mild urging by Jockey J. Renick, the son of Sun Circle and Tweed responded willingly and was going away at the finish.

Neverfade Pays $11.20.

Tambour ran a game race, but found the speed of the winner in the late stages more than she was able to cope with. She held on well and outdistanced Action, which had tired after trying to catch Neverfade in the early stages.

Tambour went to post a 7 to 10 favorite, while Neverfade was regarded secondly. He paid $11.20 for $2 straight.

Jockeys Robby Robertson and Hubert Callahan completed doubles, the former bringing home Ilchester and Corrymeela in the second and fourth races, while the latter scored astride Marse Robert and General Lejeune in the last two. Robertson's victories also completed a double for Trainer Elmer Trueman.

FUNERAL RITES FOR CAREY TO BE HELD TOMORROW

Los Angeles, Cal., April 17.—(AP)—Funeral rites will be held for Bob Carey, national automobile racing champion, here Wednesday afternoon and his body will be sent to his home at Anderson, Ind., for burial.

Carey was killed yesterday in time trials at the Ascot speedway here when the foot throttle stuck on his expensive machine and it crashed into a rail of the track.

Track officials estimated the car was traveling 90 miles an hour at the time of the crash. Carey, who was 28 years old, had been racing ten years. He is survived by a widow and 8 year old son.

RED SOX DEFEAT SENATORS, 4-2; FIRST VICTORY

3 Boston Pitchers Yield Only Four Hits.

Washington, D. C., April 17.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox won their first game of the season, 4 to 2, today, although reserve pitchers were forced to rush in to quell a Washington uprising.

The result might have been the same, however, if young Henry Johnson had been left in. Up until the time that he was withdrawn in the eighth, Washington had made only one run and three hits off him.

Kline succeeded him and was greeted with a sharp single which scored Myer, who had just driven in the first Washington run with a double.

Cronin walked and it appeared as if the Boston team would lose another hard struggle when Goslin slammed a sizzling liner to left. Watwood managed to grab it, however, near the bleacher wall after a hard run. He fell down but held the ball and Washington's rally was over.

Rain O. K. with Foxx; Has Time to Get in Shape

New York, April 17.—(AP)—Rain that washes out ball games may fall like the tears of anxious club owners, but that steady drumming on the window panes is sweet music to Jimmy Foxx, long distance hitter with the Athletics.

"This is just fine," he said today as he stretched out on a hotel sofa and watched the rain pour down while the club trainer worked on an ugly sore on his left shin. "A couple more days of this and I can start even with those pitchers."

Slowed by Spike Wound.

An infected spike wound suffered in spring training has caused Foxx a great deal of trouble. It kept him out of the opening game. It has slowed down the big fellow, who hammered out 58 home runs last season and who was primed to ruin Babe Ruth's record of 60 this year.

"Anybody who can hit 58 home runs," he remarked, "should be able to hit 60. That sounds reasonable, doesn't it? Connie Mack told me last fall that if I had thought more of hitting for distance, and less about trying to beat Dale Alexander for the batting championship, I'd have beaten the Babe's record then.

"But it isn't as simple as that. Sometimes you can't take a chance on lofting a ball for distance when a hit means runs, because a fielder may get under it. The pitchers have a lot to say about that, too. For instance, pitchers never give me a ball inside in the Yankee stadium, or the Washington park. I can pull those along the left field line and into the stands. They keep the ball outside and I hit to center."

Might Have Had 65.

"It doesn't mean anything now," he said, "but if conditions and rules had been the same as when Babe hit his 60 in 1927, I'd have had 65 last season. Five times I hit the screen in front of the right field stands in St. Louis. That's a double now. In 1927 there was no screen there and those drives would have been homers. I got two into the left field stands at the Yankee stadium on the first bounce. They used to be home runs. Now they're doubles."

Lou Vie, Chicago, beat Jackie Schweitzer, New York [6].
Sammy Levine beat Carl Scalise [6].
Laddie Tonelli beat Roy Moore [6].
Izzy Lebanski knocked out Whitey Ross [1].

Major Openers Draw 15,000 More Than Last Year

New York, April 17.—(AP)—Although it required more time than usual to put them on, the eight originally scheduled major league openings have been completed, with an aggregate attendance of 153,526, tabulation today revealed.

The Boston Nationals, compelled to start off against Philadelphia instead of New York, drew only 7,500, because of continued unseasonable weather yesterday.

Despite this and a turnout of only 4,500 at St. Louis on opening day last Wednesday, the 1933 total for eight games is 15,000 in excess of the aggregate for the eight openers last year. The largest crowd, 36,221 paid, was registered at the Yankee Stadium. The figures:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.		AMERICAN LEAGUE.
Boston	7,500	Washington	24,000
Philadelphia	12,000	Detroit	10,000
Cincinnati	25,305	St. Louis	4,500
Chicago	25,000	New York	36,221
Total	69,805	Total	83,721

BY WILFRID SMITH.

When the University of Michigan sends its track and field stars to Dyche stadium May 19 and 20 to defend its Western conference outdoor championship there will be no doubt in the minds of most of the Big Ten coaches that the Wolverines will take first place and five points in the running high jump.

In Willis Ward, Negro sophomore jumper, who last fall won his letter in football as an end, Michigan has the best high jumper since the days when Harold Osborn competed for Illinois. Osborn established the world record of 6 feet 8¼ inches in 1924; set the Olympic record of 6 feet 6 inches in the 1924 games at Paris, and in that same year won the Olympic decathlon title.

Wins Indoor Event Easily.

In this, his first year of competition, Ward won the high jump in the annual indoor conference meet at the University of Chicago fieldhouse. He jumped 6 feet 4 inches. If Ward doesn't have any more competition outdoors than he did at the indoor meet he is a sure bet to win. Ollie Olson of Northwestern took second place with a leap of 6 feet 1 inch. Mel Read, Northwestern; William Jolly, Minnesota, and Konrad Moisio, Michigan, tied for third place. All cleared 6 feet.

Of these point winners indoors, Moisio was the only one who scored in the outdoor high jump last spring. Moisio tied with Hochman of Ohio State for second place at 6 feet 2 inches. This indicates that Moisio may press Ward for the championship next month.

Jumps 6 Feet 7⅛ Inches.

Ward's reputation, however, does not rest entirely on what he has done this winter. Ward competed last June in the National Collegiate meet at Stagg field. Since he then was a freshman at Michigan he was ineligible for the N. C. A. A. However, this meet was designated as one of the five semi-final American Olympic trials and Ward thus could compete. Ward won with a remarkable jump of 6 feet 7⅛ inches, the best by any athlete in the central states since the days of Osborn.

Bert Nelson, then from Butler university, won the N. C. A. A. title that afternoon, although he finished behind Ward. Nelson jumped 6 feet 5¾ inches.

May Be a Flash.

It might be pointed out that Ward's jump last spring may be a flash in the pan, his one great performance. All excellent jumpers find one afternoon occasionally when, for no apparent reason, they add an inch or two to their best marks.

This certainly was rue of Ted Shaw, who last year won the Big Ten high jump with a mark of 6 feet 3 inches. The year before Shaw shared the title with Hackle of Minnesota at 6 feet 2 inches. In 1930, Shaw's sophomore year at the University of Wisconsin, he won the high jump at the Kansas relays with a mark of 6 feet 6 3-16 inches, which, as it turned out, was his best effort in competition.

Russell Is Champion.

If Ward can better 6 feet 6 inches he will replace Russell of Chicago as the Big Ten champion. Russell set the present standard in 1915. It's unusual that Osborn, holder of the American record, Olympic record and the world record was unsuccessful in displacing Russell.

Like Eddie Tolan, Michigan's great sprinter, who won both Olympic sprints last summer, Ward went to Ann Arbor from Detroit, where he competed for Northwest High school. Barring injury, for Ward's scholastic record precludes ineligibility on that score, he should finish his college career with six varsity letters, three each in football and track.

BOSTON TO PASS UP ITS HORSE SHOWS THIS YEAR

Boston, Mass., April 17.—(AP)—Acting on the unanimous recommendation of its executive committee, the board of directors of the Boston Horse Show, Inc., today voted to cancel this year's show. The dates of Oct. 31 to Nov. 4 already had been assigned to Boston by the Association of American Horse Shows.

The Boston show attracted exhibitors from coast to coast and military teams from Canada, Ireland, England, Germany, France, and Sweden, as well as the United States.

The directors stated that the show, which depends on the support of guarantors, will be revived when conditions improve.

Ryder Cup Golfers to Play in Benefit Match

New York, April 17.—(AP)—Members of the United States Ryder cup team, the day before they sail for England, will compete in a benefit match at White Plains, N. Y., June 13, against a picked team of metropolitan amateurs captained by Jess W. Sweetser.

WIN HANDBALL DOUBLES.

Dr. G. W. Christoph and Fred G. Litsinger won the Hamilton club doubles handball tournament. They defeated Harry Drake and Melvin Griffith, 21-12, 21-12.

DELAYED BY ADVERSE WEATHER

Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia heavyweight, found weather conditions adverse for his scheduled plane trip here yesterday, so took a train. He is due this morning and will start tapering off for his bout with Izzy Gastanaga at the Stadium Friday night.

Loughran Plane Trip Halted by Weather; He's Due Today

Unfavorable weather early yesterday prevented Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia boxer, from flying here as scheduled to finish preparations for a 10 round contest with Izzy Gastanaga at the Chicago Stadium Friday night. Later in the day he took a train. According to the Illinois athletic commission's ruling a windup fighter is due here five days in advance of his bout. In the case of Loughran he was given a day of grace.

Gastanaga took a vacation yesterday, but he will resume training today by sparring several rounds with Mickey Patrick and Harvey Mortenson. Izzy's trainer, Sam Buxbaum, announced that the Spaniard is in fine condition and from today on he will do only enough work to keep on edge.

Otto Von Porat, who faces Hans Birkie in a 10 round supporting match, may have trouble landing a punch that Birkie cannot absorb. Although Von Porat is one of the hardest punchers now boxing, Birkie has fought such boxers as Primo Carnera, Charley Retzlaff, and Gastanaga without being harmed to any great extent.

Nate Lewis, Stadium matchmaker, yesterday received a wire from Frank Bachman, manager of Maxie Rosenbloom, who generally is recognized as light heavyweight titleholder, offering to meet the winner of the Tiger Jack Fox-Lou Scozza eight round contest on Friday's bill. Ben Jeby, recognized as middleweight champion in New York, said he will arrive in time to witness the Frankie O'Brien-Marty Sampson bout at eight rounds. Jeby is willing to face the winner. Nick Scalba has postponed his arrival from New York for his six rounder against Joey Palazolla of Detroit until Thursday.

Spike Herrera and Eddie Smith, Chicago welterweights, are to clash in a five round bout tonight at the Midway arena, 6115 Cottage Grove avenue. Other contests are: Art Mitchell vs. Sammy Morales, Virgil Bemi vs. Jack O'Connell, Willie Davis vs. Jack Roberts, Elnar Hedquist vs. Clarence Ballard, Joey Haines vs. Johnny Hayes, Guy Schriver vs. Owen Miller.

After Jackie Sharkey faces Wayne Short at St. Paul Friday he is booked to meet Johnny Pena, Chicago featherweight, at Minneapolis, Minn., April 28. . . . The Century Athletic club, which presented cards at Loyola university and Logan Square Masonic temple in recent weeks, has been suspended for violation of rules.

The King Levinsky-Charlie Retzlaff bout, originally scheduled for the Stadium on May 5, and then booked for May 4, yesterday was set ahead to May 3. . . . An amateur show will be offered tomorrow night at the Medinah Michigan Avenue club. It originally was slated for Friday. . . . Another amateur card tomorrow is to be presented at Queen of Angels parish, Sunnyside and Western avenues. . . . Members of the Catholic Youth Organization will compete in contests Thursday at the C. Y. O. center.

PREP BASEBALL LEAGUE OPENING HALTED BY RAIN

The weather man appears to have the Indian sign on Chicago Public High School league teams which have been trying to start their baseball season for three weeks. Eight contests, with Lane Tech scheduled to meet Senn in the feature game, were postponed yesterday because of rain. Lane Tech, winner of eight league championships, will start its league season against Schurz at Logan Square park tomorrow.

It will be a fourth round game. Dates for the first, second, and third round contests will be announced later, A. H. Pritzlaff, director of physical education, said. The postponement of these contests indicate that the league season will be extended for several weeks. In addition to the Lane Tech-Schurz game tomorrow there will be seven other contests.

A one day postponement of the annual Cook county swimming relays was announced yesterday. The meet was to open tonight at the Lake Shore Athletic club pool, but was deferred until tomorrow night. The first race will start at 7 o'clock. The finals are scheduled for Friday night. Among the schools entered are Austin, Calumet, Englewood, Fenger, Hyde Park, Lane Tech, Morgan Park, Roosevelt, Schurz, Senn, Tilden, and Maine township of Des Plaines.

Glenbard's track and field team will compete in seven meets this season. Its first opponent will be Downers Grove on Friday. Glenbard is entered in the West Suburban conference meet at Downers Grove, May 5, and also in the Illinois state district meet at Aurora, and the Illinois state meet at Champaign on May 19.

Six contests will open the play for the Chicago Public High School league tennis championship May 3. Three will be played in the north section, while the other three will be played in the west division.

Lake Forest academy's track team will meet the Lake Forest college freshman squad in the opening event on its schedule, April 29. Other teams on the academy's schedule include University High of Milwaukee, Wis., and Wayland academy of Beaver Dam, Wis.

Has Any One Seen That New Sedan of Billy Herman's?

Tiger Homer in 10th Beats White Sox, 8-5

ton apparently wanted to determine just how effectively he could handle himself under pressure. He had the first man on base in each inning, yet nothing happened. Davis started the Tiger attack with a single to center. Two fly balls and a strikeout followed. White opened the second with a single and the next three men did nothing. Earl Webb batted for Herring to start the third and walked. A double play started by Gaston put a crimp in this maneuver. In the fourth, however, the Tigers finally scored a run on an infield single by Fox and Rogell's double to center.

Appling's error that started the trouble in the eighth was on a grounder by Walker, who batted for Wyatt to open the inning. The ball took an unexpected hop, struck Luke in the right thumb, and momentarily ruined him as a thrower. Davis fouled out, but Owen doubled over Simmons' head, putting Walker on third. The two runners went home when Gehringer doubled to right. On Stone's tap Gehringer was run down going to third. Then, just when Gaston thought he was going to get out of the jam, White hit his homer into the bleachers in right, tieing the score at 5-5.

Jones May Pitch Today.

Because Ted Lyons is being bothered by stomach pains and Ed Durham has a sore arm, it may be necessary for Sam Jones to pitch the final against the Tigers tomorrow. Tom Bridges is scheduled to start for the home troops.

Chocolate Signs to Fight Farr in Warmup Battle

New York, April 17.—[Special.]—Kid Chocolate, recognized as featherweight champion in New York, was signed today to meet Johnny Farr at the Philadelphia arena May 1 in a nontitle bout that will be his final tuneup for his championship match with Seaman Watson of England at Madison Square Garden May 12. Watson is scheduled to arrive Wednesday.

BRUNDAGE GIVES HIS STAND ON OLYMPIC GAMES

Says Site Will Be Decided at Vienna Meeting.

Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic committee, denied yesterday that he had expressed belief that the 1936 Olympic site would be transferred from Germany to some other country. His statement was made in answer to a report quoting him to the effect that Hitler's antagonism for the Jews would force the committee to cancel its plans for holding the games in Berlin.

"It was a general statement that I made," he said. "My belief is that the games will not be held in any country where there is interference with the fundamental Olympic theory of equality of all races."

Recalls A. A. U. Shift.

He recalled that some years ago the National A. A. U. track and field meet was scheduled to be held in New Orleans. When the southerners refused to permit a Negro athlete to compete, the meet was shifted to a city north of the Mason-Dixon line.

Brundage's original statement was made in a letter to K. A. Miller, managing editor of the Jewish Times, a Baltimore publication. In this communication, Brundage said:

"This will acknowledge your night letter dated April 14 relative to the steps reported to have been taken in Germany that would prevent the participation of Jews in international competition. Direct jurisdiction on the venue of the Olympic games is in the hands of the international Olympic committee which meets in Vienna this summer.

Protocol Is Definite.

"This matter will undoubtedly come before it. My personal but unofficial opinion is that the games will not be held in any country where there will be interference with the fundamental Olympic theory of equality of all races.

"The Olympic protocol provides that there shall be no restriction of competition because of class, color or creed. The matter will no doubt be taken up by the American Olympic committee."

The leaders had covered 385 miles, 9 laps. Al Crossley and Frank Bartell of Boston were in second place, two laps to the bad, with Tino Reboli and Tom Saetta of Italy third, another lap behind. The race began at midnight last night.

$500,000 BUSBY TRIAL HINGES ON LEGAL ISSUE

Maneuvers for Right of Cross-Examination.

Attorneys maneuvered before Probate Judge Harold J. Taylor yesterday for the privilege of cross-examining witnesses to be called in the case of Mrs. Esther Busby, who has petitioned for the removal of the First Union Trust and Savings bank as executor of the estate of her husband, Leonard A. Busby, traction executive.

Mrs. Busby charges that the bank neglected to sell securities which were the chief asset of the estate while the market values were high immediately after her husband's death in September, 1930. As a result, she charges, the $500,000 net worth of the estate was wiped out by falling market values and the petition asks that the loss be charged against the executor.

Issue of Law Up to Court.

Attorney John D. Black, representing the bank, asked the court last week to rule out Mrs. Busby's petition on the documentary evidence presented without hearing testimony. Mrs. Busby's attorney, Edward R. Johnston, countered yesterday with citations of cases in which courts have held that the burden of proof is on the executor.

If Attorney Johnston's view is upheld it will place the executor in the position of plaintiff in the case. The executor would then be compelled to call bank officials and business experts as witnesses to prove the estate was properly administered. Under the rules a lawyer cannot cross-examine a witness he has called.

Judge Taylor indicated at the close of the hearing that he would rule on these legal points later in the week after last of the documentary evidence concerning the handling of the estate by the executor has been presented.

Attorney Johnston discussed an audit of Mr. Busby's estate which disclosed that the total value of stocks which he held at the time of his death was $1,473,112. This was subject to a debt of $911,000, leaving an equity of $562,000.

Tells of Lost Values.

Market conditions were such in September, 1930, the attorney stated, that by Sept. 30, only three weeks after Mr. Busby's death, the equity in his estate had shrunk to $399,000. A month later the equity amounted only to $135,000. A rise followed in January and February of 1931, and on the 28th day of the latter month the equity amounted to $399,000. The market dropped quickly and within five months the estate was insolvent.

"The executor had no right to speculate in an effort to increase the estate," said Attorney Johnston. He asserted that the market records would show that the executor could have preserved the estate by selling.

WIFE OF VILLAGE PRESIDENT DIES; HEART ATTACK

Mrs. Emma Vaile Tolsted, 69 years old, wife of Henry Tolsted, village president of Maywood, died early this morning in her home at 817 North 3d avenue in the suburb. She was stricken with a heart attack last night while attending a political meeting at which her husband, who is seeking reëlection in today's election, was to have spoken. He left the meeting without speaking and took his wife home.

Tolsted is 75 years old, and has served thirteen years as president of Maywood. Whether his wife's death will affect his serving another term if he is elected was being discussed by his family. Two sons survive in addition to Tolsted.

LIEUT. O'BRIEN WINS CAPTAINCY IN COURT ACTION

Lieut. William J. O'Brien, now acting captain of the Sheffield avenue police district, is to be promoted to the civil service rank of captain as a result of mandamus proceedings which he instituted in the Superior court. Assistant Corporation Counsel Francis J. Vurpillat yesterday formally notified Police Commissioner Allman of the issuance of the writ of mandamus, and Richard J. Collins, president of the civil service commission, said that Lieut. O'Brien will be certified to his new rank.

Judge Joseph B. David entered judgment in the case eighteen months ago, but Lieut. O'Brien withheld further action at that time at the request of Mayor Cermak.

When Michael Grady and Thomas Duffy were promoted to captaincies, under the last Republican city administration, while Capt. Michael Hughes was police commissioner, they stood 84th and 85th, respectively, on the eligibility list, whereas Lieut. O'Brien was 56th. Judge David found that the civil service commission and police authorities had acted "wrongfully, wantonly, and unlawfully" in promoting the other two officers over Lieut. O'Brien's head.

FEAR SALES TAX DRIVING TRADE OUT OF ILLINOIS

Many Firms See Loss of Contracts.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

The possibility that the new Illinois sales tax may drive business from Illinois industries to those of other states is being considered in business circles. Already a number of industries, including printing, railroad supply, and building material, have expressed the fear of such a result.

Chicago printing establishments turn out more railroad tariffs than do those of any other city, according to trade officials. Many of the railroad systems having tariffs printed here have most of their mileage in other states.

Trade officials say some railroad officials assert that they should be taxed on tariff printing which applies only to the state of Illinois and not to other states, and they are refusing to pay the printers the sales tax. The printers, who are just about breaking even now, hold they are unable to absorb the tax. The railroads are threatening to place their printing business in other states.

Applies to Railway Supplies.

The same situation applies to railroad supplies, in the production of which Chicago leads the country. As an example, a railroad having its general offices here ordered some supplies to be used on a part of its system running through Iowa. Delivery of the supplies was specified to take place at the Chicago freight office of the road.

The company manufacturing the supplies pointed out that order and delivery of the goods in Chicago would necessitate payment of the sales tax. The railroad company raises the threat that if it must pay the tax it will be forced by its financial condition to buy in some other state.

Printing and supply companies serving the railroads are complaining that the new sales tax may result in their losing business contacts which they have secured and maintained over a long period of years.

Advertising Firms Affected.

A lithographer who serves a number of nationally known advertising agencies reports that its business is perilled. The lithographer furnishes the advertising agencies with printed matter and supplies, which are held for dispatch to various parts of the country on order throughout the year. In fact, most of the printed matter in this case, it was stated, eventually leaves the state. Imposition of a sales tax on products which would eventually be used in other states, it was held, would result in the advertising companies' transferring their orders to states having no sales tax.

Companies having their main offices in other cities, with branches and warehouses here, have not yet been able to find out what their status is. They intimate that if they are forced to impose taxes on goods held in warehouses here but sold through the parent offices, the result will be that they will give up the Chicago branches and thereby throw many persons out of work.

Find Law Is Vague.

In this connection it is stated that the law says articles in interstate commerce are not taxable, but the law does not define what set of conditions determine this.

Among the industries which are stated to have their business threatened by the sales tax are the following: Meat packing, which in 1931 did a business of $447,000,000; electrical machinery, which did a $178,000,000 business in 1931; confectionery, with a $75,000,000 business in 1931; bread and baking products, with a $104,000,000 business in 1931; printing and publishing, with a $135,000,000 business in 1931, and boots and shoes, with a $53,000,000 business in 1931.

FILES PLEA UPHOLDING TAX

Springfield, Ill., April 17.—(AP)—Montgomery S. Winning, assistant attorney general, today filed with the Supreme court a 72 page brief upholding the constitutionality of the new three per cent state sales tax.

The case will be argued here Friday. It came to the Supreme court from Madison county, where Circuit Judge Jesse R. Brown of Alton issued a permanent injunction restraining the state from collecting the tax from retail merchants.

Winning devoted most of his brief to refutation of three points raised by attorneys for Robert Irving Winter of Alton, president of the Council of Illinois Merchants, who obtained the injunction.

These points were that the supreme matter of the act was not expressed in the title, that it is not a form of taxation permitted under the state constitution, and that the act delegates the power of appropriations to county boards by making it possible for them to divert to relief purposes that county's share of the sales tax revenue.

In their attack on the title, opponents maintained the omission of the sellers of motor fuel and farm products when sold by the producer made it defective.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 17.—With the reopening of financial markets in Europe tomorrow after the Easter holiday, the dollar will face its first real test since the severe raid against it last Thursday.

Trading was restricted here today in view of the general shutdown abroad, but the dollar made a further recovery and the sentiment of the market was greatly improved by the announcement, made late in the day, that three more licenses to export gold to France had been granted, making a total of five since Saturday morning.

Send Gold to France.

The granting of licenses to export gold was construed as a sign that the treasury authorities had determined to keep the dollar close to parity with the most important of the gold standard exchanges, the franc.

It was expected tonight that between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 of gold will be exported to France on the fast ships sailing tomorrow, but the total amount likely to be sent out under license will depend entirely upon the course of the exchanges.

The licensing of exchange shipments of gold did not entirely clear up the uncertainty created in the financial community by the treasury's failure to make a plain declaration of its policy. As the foreign exchange market construes the situation, it appears that the treasury is unwilling to commit the government to a hard and fast policy on so important a question as the currency in advance of the coming economic conferences in Washington. Such a commitment, it is argued, would weaken the bargaining position of this country.

Dollar's Position Bullish.

The position of the dollar, it is argued, is essentially bullish, despite the freezing of foreign debts and the falling off in trade.

The pound sterling ranged between $3.48½ and $3.45¼ today and closed at $3.46¼, down 1¾ cents. The franc, which had broken late Saturday morning, following the news of the first licenses for gold exports to that country, recovered ⅛ point yesterday to close at 3.95¼ cents. At this level the exchange was about ½ point above the price at which gold exports are normally profitable.

M'ADOO PARTNER LIKELY CHOICE FOR CONTROLLER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 17.—Unless there is a last minute slipup, J. P. T. O'Connor of Los Angeles, law partner of William Gibbs McAdoo, will be named controller of the currency by President Roosevelt, it was learned today.

According to authentic reports Mr. O'Connor has the support of James A. Farley, postmaster general, for that position and his appointment is expected momentarily. Wall street has been awaiting this appointment and financial economists have said that the delay thus far has made for uncertainty in business circles, due to the fact that business did not know the type of man whom Mr. Roosevelt would select.

Mr. O'Connor was once the "boy senator" from North Dakota, his native state, where he had studied law and was a practicing attorney at the time. Later Mr. O'Connor moved to California and became associated with Mr. McAdoo. However, in the preconvention campaign he was a Roosevelt man.

Mr. Farley, who was in New York over the week-end arranging with W. Kingsland Macy, Republican state chairman, the details of the wet convention in Albany, has returned to Washington.

CITIES SERVICE 1932 EARNINGS DOWN ONLY 3.4%

New York, April 17.—(AP)—The annual report of the Cities Service company states that consolidated net earnings in 1932, before depletion and depreciation, amounted to $60,951,583, compared with $63,106,882 in 1931, a decrease of 3.4 per cent. Reserve appropriations deducted from current income for the year amounted to $18,367,449. Charges against reserves for the same period were $6,401,906.

In a statement accompanying the report, Henry L. Doherty, president, said that at the beginning of 1932 the total amount of notes payable and funded debt maturing within twelve months was more than $110,000,000. At the end of 1932 the total of such items was $61,000,000, and since Dec. 31, 1932, $19,200,000 of the latter have been replaced by notes payable due after Jan. 1, 1934.

On Dec. 31, 1932, consolidated current assets were listed at $87,489,014, including $28,365,371 in cash. Current liabilities, including $58,059,973 notes payable, amounted to $83,001,522. At the close of 1931 the company had current assets of $113,849,305, including cash of $41,817,256, and current liabilities of $95,014,201.

AUSTRALIA PLANS TO DROP MONEY BACKED BY GOLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia, April 17.—The federal government will issue new currency notes within the next few months, minus the inscription promising to pay the bearer in gold coin. The present notes carries the promise to pay in gold coin on demand, though practically they have been unable to be converted into gold since 1929, when Australia went off the gold standard. The present notes will be withdrawn from circulation.

Australia still carries a 25 per cent unfavorable exchange rate with London and about 40 per cent with New York. Several Australian bankers have intimated that if the dollar value of the British pound goes higher, the exchange rate between Australia and London may be increased from 25 to 40 per cent.

STOCKS ABSORB SOME SELLING, BUT LOSE LITTLE

Late Selling Checks Midday Rally.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 17.—Stocks ushered in the new week on an off-key in moderately active trading. The list was for the most part heavy during the greater part of the day and whatever results were obtained from a fair-sized rally midway through the afternoon were neutralized in a final selling flurry. Volume barely topped the one million share mark.

The market's action reflected a disposition in the street to interpret the renewed dullness is an indication of "staleness" on the long side. Traders working on the downside in the hope of a reactionary movement were credited with a considerable portion of the selling. There was unvarnished liquidation to be found, however, but the way the market absorbed it on the recessions was encouraging.

Watch Inflation Waves.

To the exclusion of virtually everything else in the day's news output, trader interest is keen in the developments on inflation in Washington. The inclination to buy, however, is far from an enthusiastic one in view of substantial indications that inflation proposals are headed for defeat. The sharp rally of the dollar also tended to stifle thought in this direction.

The short lived afternoon turnabout came on the heels of a rather optimistic statement by Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation. Steel common closed fractionally higher, but the preferred registered a small dip on the day. For a brief interval, at least, Steel was back in its old position of leadership following the Taylor declaration, rebounding well over a point from the forenoon low of under 32.

Mining Shares Strong.

Mining shares, both the silver and gold variety, again monopolized the spotlight as a group with a strong showing throughout.

American Smelters was a strong feature, moving into new high ground for the year. Other metal shares to maintain gains were Homestake, Dome, and McIntyre.

Shares of sugar companies also were well taken at rising prices as the commodity turned around to hit a new high for the year. Outstanding in this group at new year's tops were United Fruit and Great Western Sugar.

Posting one of the largest volumes in the list Aviation Corporation of Delaware was well taken and finished with a small fractional change on the upside.

American Telephone Drops.

At the same time a poor first-quarter showing hurt American Telephone and fresh selling sent that utility leader to a new bottom for the year at under 87. Other utilities were depressed in sympathy.

The rank and file of industrials closed fractionally down. Du Pont especially was out of favor on a none too healthy earnings statement. American Can attempted to run counter to the trend at times on reports of a higher operation rate, but closed off with the others.

Rails were down 1 to 3 points in early trading recovered only to run into fresh selling. The same was true of coppers, foods, motors and chemicals. Allied Chemical was a glaring soft spot, closing down more than 3.

FIRST BIG NOTE OFFERING MADE SINCE NOVEMBER

The largest public financing operation in the investment market in several months was announced last night by a banking syndicate which will today offer 25 million dollars of notes of the Edison Electric Illuminating company of Boston.

The offering is the most important brought out in nearly a year. Barring federal government operations, it is the largest public offering since November.

Proceeds of the note sale will be used to retire a 10 million dollar 4½ per cent coupon note issue and 16 millions of bank loans which fall due May 2.

The offering consists of 10 million dollars of discount notes, dated April 15, 1933, which run for six months, maturing on Oct. 16, and 16 millions of 3 year 5 per cent coupon notes which will mature April 15, 1936.

The offering syndicate is headed by the First of Boston corporation and includes 22 other leading investment houses.

English Bank's Gold Highest in Its History

BY HOWARD WOOD.

To those Americans who last December read with sympathetic interest the contentions of Britishers that American insistence on war payments was slowly but surely draining the gold out of Great Britain the news that the gold holdings of the Bank of England are now the largest in history comes as a distinct surprise.

On Jan. 12, after Great Britain had paid the United States $90,000,000 in gold on account of war debts, the gold holdings of the Bank of England were £120,000,000. In the succeeding three months the Bank of England increased its gold holdings by £57,000,000, and on April 6 its holdings were £177,000,000.

British Capital Flees U. S.

This piling up of gold in London was not the result of booming foreign trade and a sudden improvement in the balance of international payments. It was entirely due to flight of British capital from America.

For weeks while the British government through its three-quarter billion dollar equalization fund has been pegging the dollar at par in the foreign exchange markets, British subjects have been selling their American stocks and bonds and converting them into gold for shipment to London.

Prior to the imposition of the gold embargo by the United States there was a heavy shifting of capital from this country to England. Not all of this shifting, however, was by British subjects. Just before the banking moratorium Americans also, alarmed by the spread of bank holidays from state to state, were converting their securities to cash and buying sterling.

Buy Depreciated Currency.

Their reasoning was that the United States seemed destined to go off the gold standard and that if that should happen it would be safer to hold a currency which had already depreciated rather than one that was about to depreciate.

In view of the widespread expectation of inflation it is safe to say that this shifting of funds from the United States to Great Britain would still be going on were it not for the embargo on gold which prohibits exportation of the metal for speculative purposes.

In view of the contention of prominent English financial leaders that war debts due the United States cannot be paid because of the unwillingness of Americans to accept goods and the lack of enough gold to ship it is interesting to note how the British gold stock can be built up by the liquidation of American investments.

BANKERS DISAPPOINTED

Word received here late yesterday of the probable appointment of J. F. T. O'Connor, Los Angeles attorney-partner of Senator MacAdoo, as controller of the currency was disappointing news to bankers in Chicago and elsewhere in the middle west.

For weeks hope has been entertained that the key job at the head of the national banking system might go to a man familiar with the banking troubles of the middle west, because the controller's biggest job during the present administration will be to clear up the débris left by the banking hurricane in the central states.

If, as many bankers believe, during the present administration a single unified national banking system is to be made by welding the state and national systems together, the controller will be one of the most important government officials.

Michigan, which is just beginning to make order out of banking chaos, and Ohio, which has been through almost as bad a storm, are especially interested. Ohio bankers for weeks have been urging the appointment of a controller who knows middle west banking.

BANKS BOOST U. S. BILL BIDS

Chicago and New York banks which a week ago failed to get allotments of a new issue of treasury bills this time took no chances. This time instead of bidding prices that would bring them a yield of about nine-tenths of one per cent on an annual basis, they bid prices that would bring them only about half of one per cent on an annual basis. An issue of $75,000,000 90 day bills is being sold this week.

Last week the bankers bid at prices that would keep them out of the red, but they didn't get the bills because, it was charged, independent bill dealers had been commissioned to take them for the account of the Federal Reserve bank of New York.

The banks insist that they can't break even and buy bills that don't yield more than half of one per cent interest, but they've got to put their money to work somewhere and the treasury bills do answer the demands of liquidity.

Tearing Up Millions in "Cash"

Boxes, bales and barrels of the $25,000,000 of scrip printed by the Chicago clearing house at the time of the bank moratorium, being shredded by a paper cutting machine in the vault of the City State bank, 120 South La Salle street. Later the pieces will be burned. None of the scrip was used, its purpose being fulfilled by the federal "asset currency."

70% of Closed Banks Won't Open: Barrett

Washington, D. C., April 17.—(AP)—State Auditor Edward J. Barrett of Illinois said tonight that operations of 70 per cent of the 225 Illinois state banks now closed would be permanently suspended. Barrett said this action would affect less than nine per cent of the total deposits in state institutions.

Auditor Barrett, who spent the day in conference with federal treasury officials, said that almost 91 per cent of the money on deposit in state banks was in 456 institutions already opened.

Only Small Banks Affected.

"The only banks affected," he said, "were those in smaller villages. They are banks which possibly should not have been operating during the last decade."

Mr. Barrett conferred with Assistant Secretary Cummings in an effort to formulate a policy in conformity with the national banking policy, to better administer the affairs of closed banks in Illinois.

Cummings is in charge of reopening of national banks, and Barrett, who brought with him William L. O'Connell, Illinois general receiver, said he was anxious to formulate a state policy parallel to national rules.

CONGRESS TRUST TO PAY 10%.

State Auditor Barrett's office yesterday instructed the receiver of the Congress Trust and Savings bank of Chicago to pay a common dividend of 10 per cent, amounting to $82,208.57.

This is a second dividend to be paid, a 25 per cent dividend having been paid previously. Checks will be mailed on or about April 25.

The office also announced last night that three more downstate banks have been given authority to reopen today. They are:

BRADLEY—Bradley State and Savings bank.

SOMONAUK—Farmers' State Bank of Somonauk.

CHICAGO SCRIP WORTH $25,000,000 CUT UP, BURNED

It Cost $40,000, but It Wasn't Needed.

Destruction of 25 million dollars of scrip money which the Chicago clearing house had engraved during the banking holiday, was begun yesterday. Employés of the clearing house worked through the day cutting up the certificates. The pieces will be burned, Howard Sims, manager of the clearing house, said.

The scrip was hurriedly engraved by the clearing house during the banking holiday at a cost of $40,000 to insure against a shortage of credit medium in case the moratorium continued indefinitely. Need for the scrip was removed by the provision by the treasury department for the new federal reserve "asset" currency.

The high cost of vault rental made the immediate destruction of scrip advisable, according to Mr. Sims. The scrip has been stored in the vaults of the State Bank building, 120 South La Salle street. Stacks of the scrip were hauled out yesterday by clearing house employés and sent through a paper cutter. The money was in $5, $10, $20, and $50 dollar denominations.

TREASURY RATE ON 90 DAY BILLS DROPS TO .49%

Washington, D. C., April 17.—(AP)—Applications for approximately $75,000,000 of 91-day treasury bills dated April 19, were announced tonight by Secretary Woodin to have totaled $348,315,000.

A total of $75,188,000 was accepted, with the average price of the bills to be issued, 99.876, at an average rate on a bank discount basis of about .49 per cent. The highest bid was 99.900, equivalent to an annual interest rate of about .40, and the lowest was 99.865.

BETTER TIMES SOON, PREDICTS U. S. STEEL HEAD

Tells Stockholders to Be Hopeful.

New York, April 17.—[Special.]—Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, today added his voice to the chorus of industrial executives who believe the course of the depression has turned.

At the annual meeting of stockholders in Hoboken, Mr. Taylor, who is noted in the financial district for the cautiousness of his utterances, declared:

And in support of this belief he cited the fact that the corporation is operating at 21 per cent of capacity this week, the first time that operations have reached this level since March, 1932.

For Nonpartisan Coöperation.

Following his address Mr. Taylor presented to the meeting a motion by a stockholder for a vote of confidence in the Roosevelt administration. It was carried without dissent by a standing vote.

In offering the resolution the chairman said he was more than glad to do so and declared that "in these difficult times there are unusual undertakings to be set in motion to assist the revival."

"I have great hope and believe with you, sir," he said to the stockholder offering the resolution, "that we are on the way to better things. We should rally under this banner without regard to party to save this country of ours."

Before giving tongue to this conclusion, he outlined the steps taken by the corporation to keep it in a sound condition, and declared that both its finances and the morale of its personnel never were better.

Praises Morale in Company.

"It has been the policy of directors and executives so to conduct its affairs that we might withstand not only the immediate shock and difficulties which perplexed us," he declared, "but to hold the corporation and its properties and assets in such a condition as to insure its security and to enable it to hold with credit and honor its position. To this task all concerned have contributed their utmost in efforts, thoughtfulness and coöperative spirit of charity.

"No better example of coöperative effort can be found in the pages of industrial history than that written in by the men and women of the United States Steel corporation.

"It follows naturally from what I have said that the morale of the United States Steel corporation was never higher or better than today. Morale judged under stress and strain is the kind of morale the American people are accustomed to applaud.

Test of Endurance.

"The depression has touched every one and left its mark upon every one in the community. It has spared no one. It has tested our endurance and our ability.

"In holding the scales within the corporation in order to deal justly with all classes concerned, whether investors or workers, we have step by step resisted the decline in business and the decline in earnings by timely modest but necessary reductions, first in salaries, next in wages and dividends, eliminating altogether any thought of bonus compensation because it requires that earnings should aggregate at least 100 million dollars in a single year.

"There have been no bonuses in the last two years and there probably will be no occasion to discuss one this year.

"In the early days of the decline in values and trade we may well have thought it would be of temporary character.

WORKING HOURS IN 44 INDUSTRIES AVERAGING 32.4

Cut Estimate of Jobs to Be Made by Black Bill.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 17.—The national industrial conference board estimated today that a 30 hour week for the American mining and manufacturing industry, as proposed in the Black bill in congress would increase employment by about 1,000,000. Estimates before congress placed the figure at 6,000,000.

The board's estimate was based on reports from more than 1,000 manufacturing establishments, which in February employed about one-sixth of the industrial workers who had jobs

Average Hours Now 32.6.

The reports covered some thirty-five divisions of manufacturing industry and showed average hours per week to be 32.6 for February. Hours in the textile finishing group were 44, compared with 16.9 in iron and steel. These two figures represented the range in the thirty-five divisions.

To arrive at its estimate of 1,000,000 additional employment the conference board said it segregated "the reports of plants working longer than a 30 hour week and computed the number of additional workers that presumably would be required to deliver the number of man hours of work reported if the week were reduced to 30 hours."

"On the assumption," the board said, "that the plants covered represent a fair sample of manufacturing industry the resulting figure for the additional number of workers that would be required by all manufacturing industry, if plants were held to a maximum of 30 hours, is 863,655.

"If the mining industry, also covered by the Black bill, is assumed to be operating at about the same rate as manufacturing—a liberal assumption in the light of conditions in the mining industries—an additional 113,357 would be required, making a total of 976,812 that presumably would be employed as a result of the enactment of this measure."

NEWSPRINT CUT $5 A TON; MILLS PRICE UNDER $35

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 17.—A temporary reduction of $5 a ton in the price of newsprint, effective April 1, was announced yesterday by the International Paper company. The new price is $40 a ton delivered F. O. B. New York, thus making it less than $45 a ton at the mill.

As the International Paper company is one of the leading manufacturers of newsprint here and in Canada, producing 600,000 tons annually, it is expected that other newsprint producers also will reduce prices.

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance.

I carry two policies with Northwestern Mutual. My premium runs over $1,200. Will you please give me some information on the company?—S. A. A.

Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company began business in 1858. It is purely mutual.

The company has had a rapid growth. Admitted assets on Dec. 31, 1932, totaled $996,004,000, against $977,266,000 the year before, $937,721,000 on Dec. 31, 1930, and $472,693,000 on Dec. 31, 1920.

Assets on Dec. 31, 1932, included $204,889,000 farm mortgage loans, $189,566,000 city mortgage loans and $13,987,000 farm properties. Foreclosed farm lands consist of 1,600 farms. Ninety-eight per cent are leased to tenants. During 1931 the company sold 118 farms at a profit of $22,000 over book valuation. In 1932 total book loss on sale of 115 farms was $6,503. The company's policy is to sell first class farms only when terms are favorable.

The company has 21 million dollars invested in United States government bonds; $38,652,000 in state, county, and municipal bonds; $37,849,000 in Canadian government bonds; $172,662,000 in railroad bonds; $21,581,000 in utility bonds, and $236,728,000 in policy loans. Cash amounts to $5,287,000.

Policyholders' reserve at the close of last year was $811,558,000 and reserve for contingencies totaled $55,223,000. The company has had no occasion to borrow from any source.

Income in 1932 was $189,902,000 and disbursements were $171,413,000. In 1931 income was $191,461,000 and disbursements were $152,554,000.

Insurance in force on Dec. 31, 1932, amounted to three billion 999 million dollars, against 4 billion 96 million dollars the year before. This was the first time since 1878 that insurance in force decreased. Face value of policies outstanding on Dec. 31, 1930, totaled four billion 55 million dollars, against one billion 681 million dollars on Dec. 31, 1920.

Wanted—a Broker.

I am a student. Our professor asked us to watch the financial columns closely in order to accustom ourselves with new problems of investment. It would be much more interesting if I actually owned some shares of stock. I have in mind one selling for about 17½ cents a share. Is there any broker you might recommend who would purchase eight shares for me?—B. G.

The commission for purchasing eight shares of stock and the transfer charges and tax would come up to more than the stock actually costs. We prefer not to recommend brokers. If you care to submit the names of several we shall be glad to comment on their standing where sufficient information is available.

WHEAT RESISTS PROFIT TAKING; LOSS IS SLIGHT

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Commission house buying of wheat futures in small lots yesterday was said by brokers to have been the largest since the current movement in the market started a month ago. The buying was effective in offsetting heavy profit taking sales, and brought about a rally of over 1 cent from the inside figures of the morning.

An early selling movement, based on a decline in sterling and an easier stock market, carried prices off around 1½ cents from Saturday's finish. The loss was largely regained, however, and the finish was at the best prices of the day, with net losses of ¼ to ⅝ cent.

May wheat, which touched 59¾ cents on the break, moved up to close at 60⅜ to 60⅝ cents, while the July option was 62¼ to 62⅜ cents, and the September delivery 63⅝ to 63¾ cents.

More Crop Damage Reports.

Crop news continued sensationally bullish, although many of the reports were not given out. According to some private estimates from Kansas, that state will do well to harvest 40,000,000 bushels unless it rains soon. The government April returns suggested a yield of 55,000,000 bushels, while last year's harvest was 106,000,000 bushels.

Increasing crop losses in the hard wheat area west of the Missouri river were indicated in returns to B. W. Snow, the Bartlett-Frazier company expert. Practically no rain has fallen since the government's April report was made up, and the crop was in no condition to withstand the continued dry weather.

The grain fleet cleared from Chicago yesterday for eastern lake ports, two boats with 488,000 bushels of corn leaving for Ogdensburg, N. Y., and three boats with 545,000 bushels clearing for Buffalo, thus inaugurating the shipping season. Two boats with nearly 509,000 bushels wheat are due to arrive from Milwaukee.

Corn Moderately Lower.

Corn futures dropped around 1 cent from Saturday's finish on scattered selling, but rallied later and closed ¾ to ⅞ cent lower. May was 32⅛ to 32¼ cents; July 34½ cents, and September 36¼ to 36⅝ cents, at the last. Only one car of corn was booked to arrive from the country, while the shipping demand was limited at 6,000 bushels. Wet weather is checking field work over a considerable area in the central west.

Seeding of oats in Illinois has been delayed to such an extent that farmers are not expected to put in the acreage anticipated a short while ago. The wet weather has become a major factor in the market. While prices were easier early, the close was ⅛ cent lower to ⅛ cent higher. May finished at 21 cents and July at 21½ cents. Rye was ¼ to 1 cent lower, May being 44 cents, and July 45 cents, at the last.

Strength in cash barley had some effect on futures and the latter receded ½ to ⅝ cent higher for the day. May closed at 33¾ cents and July at 35¼ cents.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Fresh eggs were again in large supply, but demand was sufficient to hold prices at former levels. Receipts, 47,933 cases. Butter was steady with receipts, 7,090 tubs. Potatoes brought former prices. Receipts, 127 cars with 281 cars on team track. Live hens and Leghorns advanced 1c while old roosters were ½c lower and ducks and geese 1c lower. Receipts, 2 cars and 7 trucks.

DU PONT INCOME IN 1ST QUARTER 35 CTS. A SHARE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 17.—E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. issued today a preliminary report of operations for the first quarter of 1933 which disclosed net earnings equal to 35 cents a share on the common stock. This includes 23 cents a share from the company's investment in General Motors. For the corresponding quarter last year the company earned 74 cents a share on the common, including 45 cents a share from its General Motors investment.

The figures include the company's equity in undivided profits or losses of controlled companies not consolidated.

The Underwood-Elliott-Fisher company's quarterly statement for the initial period of 1933 revealed consolidated net income of $132,383 after all charges, equal after preferred dividends to 13 cents a share on the no par common shares, compared with net income of $49,540, or less than 1 cent a share, in the corresponding period last year.

Kennecott Copper Reports Loss.

The report of the Kennecott Copper corporation for last year shows net loss of $7,102,198 after charges, including $1,576,963 current inventory adjustments, but before depletion. For the preceding year the company operated at a net profit of $3,848,827 before depletion and inventory and metal adjustments.

Current assets aggregated $36,091,150 at the close of 1932, against $47,939,-825 a year earlier, and current liabilities were $2,411,262, against $3,045,541. Cash totaled $13,901,188, against $18,871,751.

The Atlantic Refining company and subsidiaries reported a loss of $3,127,-000 for the initial quarter of 1933 after deducting inventory adjustment of $1,879,000. This compares with a profit of $435,000 for the corresponding period of last year, equal to 16 cents a share.

United Corporation Reports.

In the first quarter of this year the United corporation failed to earn the full dividend on the common stock by $54,395, the balance available being only $1,398,551, against requirements of $1,452,947. This resulted in a decline in earned surplus to $8,033,084 from the $8,087,479 reported at the end of the final quarter in 1932.

Exclusive of dividends received in stock from the Columbia Gas and Electric corporation and the Electric Bond and Share company, United Corporation received during the quarter ended with March 31 dividends and interest amounting to $3,487,038, while current expenses and interest paid reduced this by $221,974 to $3,265,064.

New York, April 17.—Bonds drifted lower today despite reports of slight expansion in industrial operations and easy money. Dribbling selling of the character which has been following into the market for some time, mainly from banks and institutions in process of liquidation, depressed prices in absence of aggressive demand.

Traders who had profits in industrial and other issues which had moved up on prospective benefits from appreciation of commodity prices, including such issues as Chile Copper 5s, American Smelting and Refining 5s, and Goodyear Tire 5s, turned to the selling side on the reaction in stocks and commodities.

COTTON AVERAGES LOWER; NET LOSS OVER $1 BALE

Cotton prices were erratic yesterday, particularly in Chicago with an early loss of more than $1 a bale, which was about all recovered later due to short covering and general buying. Toward the last the market ran into selling apparently from the south where spot markets were 15 points lower, and closed with net losses of 19 to 28 points, the latter showing net loss of nearly $1.25 a bale. New Orleans lost 12 to 15 points on futures and 15 points on spots to 6.60 cents; New York was off 17 to 21 points on futures and 15 points on spots, the latter being 6.70 cents; Galveston was 6.60 cents and Houston, 6.50 cents. The Liverpool market was closed.

SOLUTION TO SELF-CONVICTED

Had Simmons' account of the tragedy been true it would be highly improbable that he (Simmons) would have taken the keys from the car and put them in the dead man's pocket before throwing him into the quarry. It didn't stand to reason! Simmons was electrocuted for Kitler's murder.
